Japanese May Have To Fight, M'Arthur Says

Message Points Up Nippon Uneasiness

TOKYO, Dec. 31 (AP) — Gen. MacArthur told the Japanese people today they soon may have to shoulder arms with the United Nations to oppose Communism.

The General said in his annual New Year's message to this occupied country that if "international lawlessness" continues to threaten peace, "it will become your duty within the principles of the United Nations, in concert with others who cherish freedom, to mount force to repel force."

Some Japanese believe their islands are on the edge of open attack. The majority believe that the Allied loss of Korea would expose the archipelago to constant danger of assault.

Air Attacks Feared

The new year opened with renewed nervous talk in this country that Communist warplanes might yet hit at the American airfields in Japan mounting Allied assaults on Korea targets.

MacArthur gave no indication in his statement whether he thought Japan was menaced sufficiently now to permit the open rearmament which many apprehensive Japanese believe necessary.

In effect, however, he warned, that while the democracies will continue to protect these islands, Japan cannot expect them to do it alone.

The General went farther than ever before in agreeing with the Japanese that their no-war constitution was an inadequate dike in a tumultuous east.

Praised As An Ideal

After praising it as an ideal, he said: "If however, international lawlessness continues to threaten the peace and to exercise dominion over the lives of men, it is inherent that this ideal must give way to the overwhelming law of self preservation" and the Japanese will be duty bound to fight for themselves.

"It is my fervent hope that such an eventuality will never come to pass, but should it, Japan's security would be the deep concern of all the other free nations of the Pacific area," he said.

MacArthur, in all of his public statements, is caught in the web of official policy surrounding the post-war administration of Japan. He cannot bluntly tell the Japanese to begin building defenses, lest Communist propaganda or the concern of war-scarred Pacific neighbors create an international furor too big to stop.

Dr. Karl Renner, Aged President Of Austria, Dies

Nation Is Plunged Into Deep Mourning

VIENNA, Dec. 31 (AP)—The death of her aged president turned Austria into a nation of mourning today.

The New Year's holiday atmosphere disappeared swiftly as the country awoke to news of the death of Dr. Karl Renner, 80-year-old "savior of the fatherland."

Hundreds of New Year's Eve celebrations were cancelled. Vienna's radio stations turned from holiday music to classics written by composers who lived and wrote in Vienna. Instead of gay holiday streamers, Austrians flew thousands of black flags from the windows of their homes.

Renner died of a heart ailment in his villa in Grinzing, a wine growing suburb of Vienna, just after midnight.

Chancellor Leopold Figl went to the President's home immediately and expressed the sympathy of the nation to Renner's widow, Luise, and a daughter who had been at the bedside when Renner died.

Then Figl announced that national mourning would begin formally on New Year's Day. The body is to lie in state in the presidential palace in central Vienna, where Austrians will have the opportunity of looking on the remains of the revered founder of the First and Second Austrian Republics. The body was taken to the palace this afternoon.

Burial will take place Friday in a plot in Vienna's central cemetery.

The government announced that Chancellor Figl would act as president for 14 days. In the meantime, the nation's assembly will meet to appoint a new president.

Arms Buying Speedup Move Is Considered

May Shift Task To NPA Director

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — A shakeup in the military buying program was reported under study today. It may put William H. Harrison in charge of defense buying as well as industrial production.

The move, officials said privately, is being studied by Charles E. Wilson, newly named director of the Office of Defense Mobilization.

A number of officials have voiced dissatisfaction to Wilson over what they regard as the slow rate of acceleration in the placing of munitions orders.

Some have suggested that Harrison, the boss of priorities and civilian industry as chief of the National Production Authority, be given general control over the procurement activities of the munitions board and the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Wilson Is "Disturbed"

Harrison would operate under Wilson, who received supreme authority over all civilian mobilization activities from President Truman two weeks ago.

Whether Wilson will accept this drastic proposal or adopt some other device was uncertain. But his associates said he is "disturbed" over procurement and definitely will take action soon.

Other officials said Wilson may, at the same time or later, merge Harrison's NPA with the other emergency bureaus in the Commerce Commission and other agencies.

Harrison was president of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co. until brought to Washington this fall. During World War II he was vice chairman of the War Production Board in charge of production, then became a major general in charge of Signal Corps procurement.

Good But Not Good Enough

The Defense Department has reported that its major purchase commitments up to December 1 totaled $9,200,000,000. At that time, military appropriations totaled roughly $250,000,000,000. Another $19,000,000,000 is about to be approved.

The rate of military spending when fighting broke out was about $12,000,000,000 a year. Civilian experts estimate the annual rate had risen to $16,800,000,000 by October, $17,700,000,000 in November, and $18,500,000,000 in December.

Wilson and his top aides in ODM are said to consider this "pretty good" but not yet good enough. They are aware that tooling-up is a slow process and is followed by a deluge of production when the lines finally start rolling.

Abandoned Tug Sinks In Lake Erie

Strong Red Probing Thrusts Usher In New Year In Korea

"Looks Like Beginning Of Something Big," U. S. Eighth Army Officer Says

TOKYO, Monday, Jan. 1 (AP) — The year 1951 came to Korea under a barrage of Red artillery and strong probing thrusts by quilt-cloaked Chinese infantrymen at United Nations outposts along the ice-jammed Imjin River defense line, north of Seoul.

It was the first time Chinese big guns had pounded U. N. positions since the retreat from Pyongyang, Dec. 5.

Whether it was the kickoff of the long-awaited Chinese-Korean Red offensive by vanguards of 1,000,000 men or more, could not be immediately determined. However, there was ominous warning in the roar of the Communist cannonade. Shells started falling behind U.N. lines after dark Sunday at the rate of one every 10 minutes.

Shortly before midnight, Chinese charged forward in "powerful probing attacks," Macbeth reported.

New Snow Falls

The front he referred to was the southward-angled western sector, following the Imjin River on its crooked course to the sea. It flows anywhere from 22 to 30 miles north of the semi-deserted South Korean capital of Seoul.

Two enemy long-range guns signalled the opening barrage about 35 miles north of Seoul. A gentle snowfall, the first in weeks, muffled the front.

The commanding general of the U. N. division (censorship forbids further identification) said he was "not worried" about the situation on his sector.

"If they come through us," he said, "They are going to lose one hell of a lot of people. I believe we can stop them."

GIs Watch And Wait

Up the line, parka-clad soldiers tried to keep warm as they watched and waited in the black night. In the rear, men played cards, talked, and also waited. Initial reports of the enemy action were sketchy. Macbeth said a spokesman estimated an attack at more than company size at one point. A Chinese company numbers about 150 men.

The main Red drive—aimed to push U. N. forces into the sea—had been expected in that western sector of the front.

Two Chinese Red army corps—numbering about 60,000 men—have been sighted north of the Imjin River, poised for a push on Seoul.

Nearly two-thirds of the civilians have fled Seoul, recently a city of 1,500,000.

Gen. MacArthur, in a late Sunday war summary, said that "sizable concentrations" of Red artillery and Russian-made T-34 tanks have been appearing in the past few days north of the Imjin, on the Eighth Army's west flank.

Also—during the past 72 hours—the General said, Red troops, supplies and artillery moved into forward areas "on all roads and trails leading south" in the central and eastern sectors.

Acheson Says U. S. Has Power To "Retaliate"

Nation's Need Now Is To Produce More

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson said today "we have power to retaliate against any aggressor who attacks us and our friends and that power cannot be overlooked."

"We expect to make ourselves respected and to deter aggression," Acheson declared in a broadcast interview.

The nation's great need now is to produce more, Acheson said, adding:

Churchill's Prescription

"The prescription which we need today is the prescription which Mr. Churchil gave to England in 1940—blood and toil, sweat and tears—and may I add, faith—faith in our country, faith that the great task before us can be done and that it will be done."

He was asked what he thought of remarks that the present is "America's darkest hour."

Acheson said that any nation's darkest hour comes "when its citizens lose their will and their courage."

"Americans have never done that," he said. "During the winter of Valey Force many people thought that was our country's darkest hour, but Gen. Washington and his army and the people who supported him in the country never lost their courage and never lost their will.

Faster Arms Buildup Necessary

"Other people thought that, nine years ago now, the night of Pearl Harbor was our darkest hour, but again Americans never lost their will and they never lost their courage. And they faced up to the challenge which that event brought before them."

Acheson said the threat of aggression in the world today "calls for action on our part to build our strength." He declared the United States has to build tanks, guns, planes and other weapons and build them faster than it is doing so far.

Is Europe Ready To Defend Self? Senators Ask

Republicans Demand Truman Give Facts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Three Republican senators demanded today that President Truman tell the country how determined Europe is to fight if aggression comes.

Sen. Wherry, the GOP floor leader, posed in a radio interview the question: "Is Western Europe prepared today to defend itself?" He added:

"If they are, why are they now asking that we furnish the foot soldiers to give them the defense they are asking?"

(The Atlantic pact nations have set out to build a force of 1,000,000 men by the end of 1953 to defend a line across Europe from Communist aggression. The United States will send additional troops to Europe as a part of this international army under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The number has not been stated. American arms aid also is pledged in the undertaking.)

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), who voted against the North Atlantic defense treaty, wrote Mr. Truman asserting that Americans generally "desperately need to know what the European nations are determined to do for themselves."

Sen. Kem (R-Mo) told a reporter he thinks the whole question of whether this country is going to continue to give military and economic help to Western Europe is going to be aired thoroughly in the new Congress which takes over Wednesday. He said:

"I think Congress and the American people have got to be shown clearly that the other nations are willing to fight to defend themselves.

"The people don't want another Korea where we furnish 90 per cent of the men and suffer 90 per cent of the casualties."

Mild Weather Is Expected To Cut Holiday Deaths

(By International News Service)

The toll of holiday deaths, hours before the New Year's Eve celebration, has reached 124 but indications are that fatalities for the three-day weekend will be fewer than expected.

The National Safety Council, which was shocked by last week's Christmas holiday when a record number of accidental deaths were recorded across the nation, predicted 330 persons will die this weeked in traffic accidents alone.

So far, traffic has claimed 85 lives. Another 39 died in miscellaneous mishaps.

Mild weather for most of nation is expected to cut the number of traffic fatalities.

Unprecedented House Session On Tap Today

Rushes To Complete Emergency Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — A jammed docket of war emergency legislation, led off by an excess profits tax, brings the House into an unprecedented New Year's Day session tomorrow.

The Senate waits until Tuesday. Then both branches will wind up the business of the "lame duck" session of the 81st Congress and make way for the 82nd to convene Wednesday.

Here is the list of major business that keeps the lawmakers' noses to the grindstone right up to the last minute of the term:

1. A compromise measure, already approved by the Senate, to levy a 77 per cent tax on "excess profits" of corporations, retroactive to July 1.

2. An emergency defense appropriation of about $20,000,000,000 still needing conference committee agreement on differences between Senate and House versions, as well as approval by the two houses.

3. A $3,100,000,000 three-year program for protection of the people against atomic and germ warfare, to be directed by a new independent Civil Defense Administration. Neither house has acted finally.

4. A proposal for expansion of President Truman's war powers, permitting him to revise, consolidate and expand executive agencies, and to renegotiate defense contracts. Prospects are none too bright for the executive reorganization section, and when the House and Senate get through there may be nothing left but the provision for a second look at the deals the government makes for hurry-up delivery of fighting tools.

Altogether the list amounts to one of the heaviest session-end loads in recent years and accounts for the House's decision to meet on the holiday. Records in the clerk's office show no previous meeting by either branch of Congress on New Year's.

Whatever happens to the pending legislation, the two remaining days will give many of the congressmen their last votes on such issues. In the House 71 members are "lame ducks," defeated either in the November election, or retiring voluntarily.

Gary, W. Va., Fire Claims 5 Lives

GARY, W. Va., Dec. 31 (AP)—Five persons were burned to death early today when they were caught in their beds on the second floor of a flaming house, Assistant Fire Chief Andrew Sironko, Jr., said.

He identified the victims as Mrs. Mildred Bratton, 32; her three daughters, Louise, 11, Juanita, 9, and Lilly, 8; and Mrs. Mattie Cox, 87-year-old grandmother of Mrs. Bratton. Mrs. Cox was a resident of nearby Coalwood.

Uninjured were Roy Bratton, husband of Mrs. Bratton, and two other sons, Roy, Jr., age 12, and Clayton, age 6.

Sironko said that the charred bodies of two of the children and Mrs. Bratton were found on one upstairs bed, and those of Mrs. Cox, who was visiting the family, and another child on a second bed.

Nazi Foes Plan War Repealers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — The United States and most of the other World War II foes of the Nazis are preparing to join soon in concerted action to terminate formally their state of war with Germany.

Administration officials forecast today that President Truman or the State Department will ask the new Congress probably in the next two weeks to declare that this country no longer is in conflict with Germany.

Britain, France and other nations which helped crush the Nazis are expected to take action about the same time as a gesture to welcome Western Germany back into the community of nations. It is short of a treaty of peace.

Of 47 countries considered to be still technically at war with Germany more than five years after V-E Day, 25 or 30 have indicated informally that they are prepared to take repealer steps now.

Immigration Law Revision Urged

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) said today the nation's immigration laws are a mess and he is going to ask the new Congress to unsnarl and tighten them.

McCarran, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, disclosed he will introduce early in the session starting Wednesday a bulky bill completely revising the laws that govern the entrance of aliens into this country.

He told reporters the present immigration law "by reason of the multiplicity of amendments put in at various times is today a conglomerate with no direct body to it."

McCarran introduced a revision bill last summer, primarily to give the Judiciary Committee something to work on. He said it will be reintroduced when the job is finished.

Hope Signs Contracts

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 31 (AP) — Bob Hope has signed long-term contract renewals with Paramount Pictures and the National Broadcasting Company, it was announced today.

Ecuador Delegate Is New President Of Security Council

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 31 (AP) — Ecuador's Antonio Quevedo succeeds Dr. T. F. Tsiang of Nationalist China tomorrow as president of the United Nations Security Council. The council presidency rotates alphabetically every month.

Three new members, elected last fall by the General Assembly, will also take their seats. They are Brazil, which succeeds Cuba; the Netherlands, taking over from Norway; and Turkey, which won the seat formerly held by Egypt.

Ecuador, India and Yugoslavia hold the other elective seats in the 11-nation body while China, France, Britain, the United States and Russia are permanent members.

235 New Casualties

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 235 persons in Korean war casualty list No. 189, including 184 wounded, 39 killed, six missing in action, six injured in accidents.

Curbs On Metals, Rubber In Effect

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (INS)—Government curbs on civilian use of seven critical materials take effect Monday as the probable forerunners of more sweeping cutbacks that will be felt by every housewife and businessman.

New federal restrictions become operative on copper, zinc, tin, natural rubber, nickel, aluminum and cobalt with industry predicting substantially smaller output in 1951 of automobiles, radio and television sets, and a wide range of other consumer items.

The National Production Administration's orders automatically go into effect amid signs that officials are preparing to take a still larger share of scarce and critical items to keep the defense program rolling full steam.

In fact, high-placed authorities frankly state that the government has no choice but to tighten and extend allocation and consumption orders to speed the outpouring of war weapons and equipment.

Other effects will be the use of a higher percentage of synthetic rubber in automobile tires and other rubber goods and changes in the composition of many other widely-used consumer items.

U. S. Population Now Set At 152,340,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Census Bureau today estimated the population residing in continental United States at 152,340,000.

For the year as a whole, Census Director Frank R. Wilson estimated in a statement that the net increase was 2,233,000. This was based on 3,704,000 births, 1,461,900 deaths and a net emigration of 10,000.

Tense World Welcomes 1951 With Hope It May Point Way To Peace

[By The Associated Press]

A tense world today bade farewell to the old year and welcomed in the new with the fervent hope that, somehow, it might point the way to peace.

Millions said farewell to the fading year with traditional revelry. But their shouts of "Happy New Year" were tinged with foreboding for the future and what it might bring.

Other millions disdained merry-making. They stayed quietly at home or knelt in churches and prayed for peace and the safety of loved ones already fighting on distant battlefields.

Hundreds of American churches set aside yesterday as a day of prayer, beseeching divine aid in the search for permanent peace. From their pulpits ministers counseled that strife and threats of war could only be silenced by greater spiritual strength and morality.

Although the day's customary celebrations were dampened by the international crisis, merrymakers crowded nightspots around the world to greet 1951.

The scene was similar in other cities throughout the nation.

In Europe, too, there was merriment and more to drink than usual. Many threw restraint to the wind and celebrated "while there's still time."

Berlin night clubs were jammed. In Paris, Frenchmen downed record quantities of champagne.

For the first time, West Germans heard their new anthem, "Hymn To Germany," broadcast by a choir over a national radio hookup. It is supposed to replace the old nationalist anthem, "Deutschland Ueber Allies."

Marshall Cautions U. S. On Mobilization

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall cautioned the nation today that "a too rapid attempt at mobilization is very apt to delay the ultimate speed" of rearmament.

In a year's end message carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System, Marshall said that there is "a tendency to feel that the more rapidly we appropriate billions and the more rapidly men are called into service, the safer we will be."

"I do not think the solution is so simple," he continued. "x x x We must not become involved by impatience or ignorance in an ill-considered overnight expansion which would smother well-considered methods and leave us in a dilemma of confused results, half-baked and fatally unbalanced."

New York Gov. Dewey Takes Oath Of Office

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 31 (INS)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey took the oath of office today for the third term he said last June he didn't want.

Before a small group of relatives and aides in the executive mansion, the Governor was administered the oath this afternoon by Chief Judge John T. Loughran of the Court of Appeals.

He will repeat it publicly tomorrow in the executive chamber at inaugural ceremonies made austere because of the troubled international situation.

House Members To Relax In New $190 Chairs Today

The new seating, of natural leather and foam-rubber construction, is part of the swank new decor applied to the House chamber at a cost of $2,667,000.

The Senate has had its quarters done over, too, at a cost of $2,467,000 but the senators won't move in until Wednesday.

The senators turned down new seating in favor of the old chairs and desks which have adorned the Senate floor for almost 100 years.

Tomorrow is the official unveiling of the first Senate-House redecoration since the chambers were completed in 1859.

Gone are the structural steel trusses put up a few years ago to prevent the roofs from falling in.

While most members approve, there are some who are pained. Probably the most vocal of the latter are Rep. Hinshaw (R-Calif) and Rep. Bolton (R-Ohio).

Girl Mental Patient's Book Heads For Best-Seller List

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — A schoolgirl mental patient here has turned her illness into material for a book of verse which is moving towards the ranks of best sellers.

Her publishers predict national fame by next spring and Dr. Winfred Overholser, psychiatrist and superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, says the work and its public acceptance have done his patient great good.

The writer is Eithne Tabor, now 19 and a patient at the federal mental hospital for two years. Her book is "The Cliff's Edge, Songs of a Psychotic."

Dr. Overholser described the work to a reporter today as autobiographical, a poetic account and interpretation of the author's experiences in the course of mental upsets and of treatments for them.

"She feels she has done something the outside world approves and that alone is doing her a lot of good," Dr. Overholser said.

All the writing has been done since Miss Tabor entered the hospital, and much of it she says she cannot recall writing. Some was rescued by ward nurses after she had discarded it.

The Washington Times-Herald, reporting an interview with the girl, describes her as shy, a little tomboyish, red haired and apparently as bright and normal as the girl next door.

The front he referred to was the southward-angled western sector, following the Imjin River on its crooked course to the sea. It flows anywhere from 22 to 30 miles north of the semi-deserted South Korean capital of Seoul.

Two enemy long-range guns signalled the opening barrage about 35 miles north of Seoul. A gentle snowfall, the first in weeks, muffled the front.

The commanding general of the U. N. division (censorship forbids further identification) said he was "not worried" about the situation on his sector.

"If they come through us," he said. "They are going to lose one hell of a lot of people. I believe we can stop them."

GIs Watch And Wait

Up the line, parka-clad soldiers tried to keep warm as they watched and waited in the black night. In the rear, men played cards, talked, and also waited. Initial reports of the enemy action were sketchy. Macbeth said a spokesman estimated an attack at more than company size at one point. A Chinese company numbers about 150 men.

The main Red drive—aimed to push U. N. forces into the sea—had been expected in that western sector of the front.

Two Chinese Red army corps—numbering about 60,000 men—have been sighted north of the Imjin River, poised for a push on Seoul.

Nearly two-thirds of the civilians have fled Seoul, recently a city of 1,500,000.

Gen. MacArthur, in a late Sunday war summary, said that "sizable concentrations" of Red artillery and Russian-made T-34 tanks have been appearing in the past few days north of the Imjin, on the Eighth Army's west flank.

Also—during the past 72 hours—the General said, Red troops, supplies and artillery moved into forward areas "on all roads and trails leading south" in the central and eastern sectors.

Acheson Says U. S. Has Power To "Retaliate"

Nation's Need Now Is To Produce More

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson said today "we have power to retaliate against any aggressor who attacks us and our friends and that power cannot be overlooked."

"We expect to make ourselves respected and to deter aggression," Acheson declared in a broadcast interview.

The nation's great need now is to produce more, Acheson said, adding:

Churchill's Prescription

"The prescription which we need today is the prescription which Mr. Churchil gave to England in 1940—blood and toil, sweat and tears—and may I add, faith—faith in our country, faith that the great task before us can be done and that it will be done."

He was asked what he thought of remarks that the present is "America's darkest hour."

Acheson said that any nation's darkest hour comes "when its citizens lose their will and their courage."

"Americans have never done that," he said. "During the winter of Valey Force many people thought that was our country's darkest hour, but Gen. Washington and his army and the people who supported him in the country never lost their courage and never lost their will.

Faster Arms Buildup Necessary

"Other people thought that, nine years ago now, the night of Pearl Harbor was our darkest hour, but again Americans never lost their will and they never lost their courage. And they faced up to the challenge which that event brought before them."

Acheson said the threat of aggression in the world today "calls for action on our part to build our strength." He declared the United States has to build tanks, guns, planes and other weapons and build them faster than it is doing so far.

Is Europe Ready To Defend Self? Senators Ask

Republicans Demand Truman Give Facts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Three Republican senators demanded today that President Truman tell the country how determined Europe is to fight if aggression comes.

Sen. Wherry, the GOP floor leader, posed in a radio interview the question: "Is Western Europe prepared today to defend itself?" He added:

"If they are, why are they now asking that we furnish the foot soldiers to give them the defense they are asking?"

(The Atlantic pact nations have set out to build a force of 1,000,000 men by the end of 1953 to defend a line across Europe from Communist aggression. The United States will send additional troops to Europe as a part of this international army under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The number has not been stated. American arms aid also is pledged in the undertaking.)

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), who voted against the North Atlantic defense treaty, wrote Mr. Truman asserting that Americans generally "desperately need to know what the European nations are determined to do for themselves."

Sen. Kem (R-Mo) told a reporter he thinks the whole question of whether this country is going to continue to give military and economic help to Western Europe is going to be aired thoroughly in the new Congress which takes over Wednesday. He said:

"I think Congress and the American people have got to be shown clearly that the other nations are willing to fight to defend themselves.

"The people don't want another Korea where we furnish 90 per cent of the men and suffer 90 per cent of the casualties."

Mild Weather Is Expected To Cut Holiday Deaths

(By International News Service)

The toll of holiday deaths, hours before the New Year's Eve celebration, has reached 124 but indications are that fatalities for the three-day weekend will be fewer than expected.

The National Safety Council, which was shocked by last week's Christmas holiday when a record number of accidental deaths were recorded across the nation, predicted 330 persons will die this weeked in traffic accidents alone.

So far, traffic has claimed 85 lives. Another 39 died in miscellaneous mishaps.

Mild weather for most of nation is expected to cut the number of traffic fatalities.

Unprecedented House Session On Tap Today

Rushes To Complete Emergency Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — A jammed docket of war emergency legislation, led off by an excess profits tax, brings the House into an unprecedented New Year's Day session tomorrow.

The Senate waits until Tuesday. Then both branches will wind up the business of the "lame duck" session of the 81st Congress and make way for the 82nd to convene Wednesday.

Here is the list of major business that keeps the lawmakers' noses to the grindstone right up to the last minute of the term:

1. A compromise measure, already approved by the Senate, to levy a 77 per cent tax on "excess profits" of corporations, retroactive to July 1.

2. An emergency defense appropriation of about $20,000,000,000 still needing conference committee agreement on differences between Senate and House versions, as well as approval by the two houses.

3. A $3,100,000,000 three-year program for protection of the people against atomic and germ warfare, to be directed by a new independent Civil Defense Administration. Neither house has acted finally.

4. A proposal for expansion of President Truman's war powers, permitting him to revise, consolidate and expand executive agencies, and to renegotiate defense contracts. Prospects are none too bright for the executive reorganization section, and when the House and Senate get through there may be nothing left but the provision for a second look at the deals the government makes for hurry-up delivery of fighting tools.

Altogether the list amounts to one of the heaviest session-end loads in recent years and accounts for the House's decision to meet on the holiday. Records in the clerk's office show no previous meeting by either branch of Congress on New Year's.

Whatever happens to the pending legislation, the two remaining days will give many of the congressmen their last votes on such issues. In the House 71 members are "lame ducks," defeated either in the November election, or retiring voluntarily.

Gary, W. Va., Fire Claims 5 Lives

GARY, W. Va., Dec. 31 (AP)—Five persons were burned to death early today when they were caught in their beds on the second floor of a flaming house, Assistant Fire Chief Andrew Sironko, Jr., said.

He identified the victims as Mrs. Mildred Bratton, 32; her three daughters, Louise, 11, Juanita, 9, and Lilly, 8; and Mrs. Mattie Cox, 87-year-old grandmother of Mrs. Bratton. Mrs. Cox was a resident of nearby Coalwood.

Uninjured were Roy Bratton, husband of Mrs. Bratton, and two other sons, Roy, Jr., age 12, and Clayton, age 6.

Sironko said that the charred bodies of two of the children and Mrs. Bratton were found on one upstairs bed, and those of Mrs. Cox, who was visiting the family, and another child on a second bed.

No Paper Tomorrow

Immigration Law Revision Urged

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) said today the nation's immigration laws are a mess and he is going to ask the new Congress to unsnarl and tighten them.

McCarran, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, disclosed he will introduce early in the session starting Wednesday a bulky bill completely revising the laws that govern the entrance of aliens into this country.

He told reporters the present immigration law "by reason of the multiplicity of amendments put in at various times is today a conglomerate with no direct body to it."

McCarran introduced a revision bill last summer, primarily to give the Judiciary Committee something to work on. He said it will be reintroduced when the job is finished.

Hope Signs Contracts

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 31 (AP) — Bob Hope has signed long-term contract renewals with Paramount Pictures and the National Broadcasting Company, it was announced today.

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 31 (AP) — Ecuador's Antonio Quevedo succeeds Dr. T. F. Tsiang of Nationalist China tomorrow as president of the United Nations Security Council. The council presidency rotates alphabetically every month.

Three new members, elected last fall by the General Assembly, will also take their seats. They are Brazil, which succeeds Cuba; the Netherlands, taking over from Norway; and Turkey, which won the seat formerly held by Egypt.

Ecuador, India and Yugoslavia hold the other elective seats in the 11-nation body while China, France, Britain, the United States and Russia are permanent members.

235 New Casualties

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 235 persons in Korean war casualty list No. 189, including 184 wounded, 39 killed, six missing in action, six injured in accidents.

Curbs On Metals, Rubber In Effect

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (INS)—Government curbs on civilian use of seven critical materials take effect Monday as the probable forerunners of more sweeping cutbacks that will be felt by every housewife and businessman.

New federal restrictions become operative on copper, zinc, tin, natural rubber, nickel, aluminum and cobalt with industry predicting substantially smaller output in 1951 of automobiles, radio and television sets, and a wide range of other consumer items.

The National Production Administration's orders automatically go into effect amid signs that officials are preparing to take a still larger share of scarce and critical items to keep the defense program rolling full steam.

In fact, high-placed authorities frankly state that the government has no choice but to tighten and extend allocation and consumption orders to speed the outpouring of war weapons and equipment.

Other effects will be the use of a higher percentage of synthetic rubber in automobile tires and other rubber goods and changes in the composition of many other widely-used consumer items.

U. S. Population Now Set At 152,340,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Census Bureau today estimated the population residing in continental United States at 152,340,000.

For the year as a whole, Census Director Frank R. Wilson estimated in a statement that the net increase was 2,233,000. This was based on 3,704,000 births, 1,461,000 deaths and a net emigration of 10,000.

Tense World Welcomes 1951 With Hope It May Point Way To Peace

[By The Associated Press]

A tense world today bade farewell to the old year and welcomed in the new with the fervent hope that, somehow, it might point the way to peace.

Millions said farewell to the fading year with traditional revelry. But their shouts of "Happy New Year" were tinged with foreboding for the future and what it might bring.

Other millions disdained merry-making. They stayed quietly at home or knelt in churches and prayed for peace and the safety of loved ones already fighting on distant battlefields.

Hundreds of American churches set aside yesterday as a day of prayer, beseeching divine aid in the search for permanent peace. From their pulpits ministers counseled that strife and threats of war could only be silenced by greater spiritual strength and morality.

Although the day's customary celebrations were dampened by the international crisis, merrymakers crowded nightspots around the world to greet 1951.

The scene was similar in other cities throughout the nation.

In Europe, too, there was merriment and more to drink than usual. Many threw restraint to the wind and celebrated "while there's still time."

Berlin night clubs were jammed. In Paris, Frenchmen downed record quantities of champagne.

For the first time, West Germans heard their new anthem, "Hymn To Germany," broadcast by a choir over a national radio hookup. It is supposed to replace the old nationalist anthem, "Deutschland Ueber Allies."

Marshall Cautions U. S. On Mobilization

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall cautioned the nation today that "a too rapid attempt at mobilization is very apt to delay the ultimate speed" of rearmament.

In a year's end message carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System, Marshall said that there is "a tendency to feel that the more rapidly we appropriate billions and the more rapidly men are called into service, the safer we will be."

"I do not think the solution is so simple," he continued. "x x x We must not become involved by impatience or ignorance in an ill-considered overnight expansion which would smother well-considered methods and leave us in a dilemma of confused results, half-baked and fatally unbalanced."

Nazi Foes Plan War Repealers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — The United States and most of the other World War II foes of the Nazis are preparing to join soon in concerted action to terminate formally their state of war with Germany.

Administration officials forecast today that President Truman or the State Department will ask the new Congress probably in the next two weeks to declare that this country no longer is in conflict with Germany.

Britain, France and other nations which helped crush the Nazis are expected to take action about the same time as a gesture to welcome Western Germany back into the community of nations. It is short of a treaty of peace.

Of 47 countries considered to be still technically at war with Germany more than five years after V-E Day, 25 or 30 have indicated informally that they are prepared to take repealer steps now.

New York Gov. Dewey Takes Oath Of Office

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 31 (INS)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey took the oath of office today for the third term he said last June he didn't want.

Before a small group of relatives and aides in the executive mansion, the Governor was administered the oath this afternoon by Chief Judge John T. Loughran of the Court of Appeals.

He will repeat it publicly tomorrow in the executive chamber at inaugural ceremonies made austere because of the troubled international situation.

House Members To Relax In New $190 Chairs Today

The new seating, of natural leather and foam-rubber construction, is part of the swank new decor applied to the House chamber at a cost of $2,667,000.

The Senate has had its quarters done over, too, at a cost of $2,467,000 but the senators won't move in until Wednesday.

The senators turned down new seating in favor of the old chairs and desks which have adorned the Senate floor for almost 100 years.

Tomorrow is the official unveiling of the first Senate-House redecoration since the chambers were completed in 1859.

Gone are the structural steel trusses put up a few years ago to prevent the roofs from falling in.

While most members approve, there are some who are pained. Probably the most vocal of the latter are Rep. Hinshaw (R-Calif) and Rep. Bolton (R-Ohio).

Girl Mental Patient's Book Heads For Best-Seller List

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — A schoolgirl mental patient here has turned her illness into material for a book of verse which is moving towards the ranks of best sellers.

Her publishers predict national fame by next spring and Dr. Winfred Overholser, psychiatrist and superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, says the work and its public acceptance have done his patient great good.

The writer is Eithne Tabor, now 19 and a patient at the federal mental hospital for two years. Her book is "The Cliff's Edge, Songs of a Psychotic."

Dr. Overholser described the work to a reporter today as autobiographical, a poetic account and interpretation of the author's experiences in the course of mental upsets and of treatments for them.

"She feels she has done something the outside world approves and that alone is doing her a lot of good," Dr. Overholser said.

All the writing has been done since Miss Tabor entered the hospital, and much of it she says she cannot recall writing. Some was rescued by ward nurses after she had discarded it.

The Washington Times-Herald, reporting an interview with the girl, describes her as shy, a little tomboyish, red haired and apparently as bright and normal as the girl next door.

NEW YORK, (INS)—A NEWSPAPERMAN'S prayer for '51 (revised):

Dear God, may I be fair. Circumstances and luck have placed in my thumby paws a degree of authority which I may not fully comprehend. Let me not profane it.

Give me that drive that will make me check and counter-check the facts. Guide me when lost for want of a rudder or a lead, I stumble through the jungle of speculation. Grant me, as the poet said:

The courage to change
The things I can change;
The serenity to accept
Those I cannat change, and
The wisdom to know the difference.

The 26 sharp-edged tools we call our alphabet can do what other tools do: Build or destroy. Let me build. Let me know clearly what should be destroyed, what darkness, what bigotry, what evil, what curse, what ignorance.

Never let me slip into writing down, in fatuous fear that readers will not understand. Let me write from the shoulder and always with the assumption that those who read know more than I.

Such news as comes my way, let me tell it quickly and accurately and simply, with an eye to my responsibilities. For news is precious. Few could live without it. When it is stopped or thwarted or twisted, something goes out of the hearts of men it might have nourished.

Comfort a starving man with the choice of a succulent hamburger or the promise to reveal instantly news of great importance, and he will first take the news. Think pieces, as we say in the trade to identify articles and columns contrived out of airy nothingness, or from a sitting position, can never replace the meat and potatoes of news.

Let me champion just causes, avoid expediency, never lose the stimulation engendered by printer's ink. Let me remember to be kind to copy boys, for I'll meet them on the way back down, when they are editors. Protect the innocent from me when, with deadlines pressing, my aim grows fuzzy.

Make me use my legs and eyes, the better to track down and see the truth. Deafen me to the Lorelei song of rootless hearsay, rumor and the gossip of town loafers. If word that could cause great harm comes to me, even from sources far above reproach, let me have at least the dexterity and decency to pick up a phone and ask the subject about it.

When the customers write in to accuse me of being a bum, let me consider carefully the possibility or probability that I am . . . and try to do better. Let me work harder, try harder and remember with proper humility that history produced quite a few abler reporters . . . beginning, for starters, with Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

Let my stomach rebel at plucking meat from a publicity handout and be not miffed when a friend, trying for a compliment, which you believe will have something to do with a recent piece on Gen. Wu and the U. N., says, "I never miss your sports column in 'The Christian Science Monitor', It's great stuff, John."

As long as our men fight and freeze and die in Korea, a sacrifice which should make our food stick in our throats and our luxuries a torment, let me never use the words "courage" or "guts" to describe the means by which a pitcher wins a baseball game, a gridman bucks a line, a golfer sinks a putt, a guy writes a column or makes a speech.

And above all, let me recall now and then what the great teachers of the past . . . Moses and Socrates and Christ . . . would have done if some power had given them the break I've received—a syndicated column.

Resolutions

Comes now the time of year that traditionally was devoted to making New Year's resolutions in an earlier day. This was a merry custom that was good for many a quip or laugh and provided a prime conversational subject for many weeks.

It is a pity, in a way, that the custom of making New Year's resolutions has gradually died out. Little is heard of this once popular pastime these days. In fact, the current generations, both young and old, regard such proclivities as strictly on the corny side.

But 'twas not always thus. In grandpa's day making resolutions—or "turning over a new leaf," as it was sometimes dubbed—was an activity that was entered into wholeheartedly and in complete seriousness. What did it matter that the old reprobate always backslid the next day, the next week or the next month, and went back to smoking cheroots or to engage in some similar vice?

Yep, the making of resolutions was quite a pastime in its own right 40 or 50 years ago. It added hilarity to an otherwise somber scene, and nothing has appeared to take its place. Ah, well—such is progress. Happy New Year.

Dictator Vargas of Brazil isaccused of having four relatives on the government payroll. Fair deal politicians here will regard that as a new low in effort.

Hogtied Science

Russia has the world's best chess players, partly because they are subsidized by the government, partly because chess is almost the only realm of thought that still remains free under Stalin. Literature, history, science and music must all be checked against the party line.

Those who fail to keep up with its twists and turns must abjectly recant or face loss of their jobs, their privileges, their liberty, and even of their lives.

Science becomes sterile without skepticism—the right to challenge even an axiom, the right to think freely. So do the arts. Applied science may do better, but application eventually falters unless it can draw upon a continuously renewed body of pure science.

Boasts that Russians invented everything from the telephone to television can hardly offset scientific backwardness when scientists are hogtied by imposed dogma. But in chess a Russian grand master can make any legal move without being accused of Trotskyvism or bourgeois deviationism. That is why Russian chess flourishes while science and art lag.

The Russians themselves seem to be becoming aware of this. The Soviet magazine Culture and Life recently carried an article by a scientist named Yuri Zhdanov attacking dogmatism in science as an enemy of progress. A year ago he would have been sent to Siberia for publishing such an article.

Now he also gets away with attacking the hitherto sacred theories of Michurin, on which the "Marxist biology" of Lysenko is based. Some of Russia's best biologists have died for opposing Lysenko's theories.

It is absurd to say that Russia's policies never change. They are always changing, but some of their worst aspects are never abandoned for a long period. Zhdanov's article undoubtedly heralds a shift in the official bolshevik attitude toward science, but it will not usher in a new area in which scientists will be as free as chess players. Stalinism is committed to a system in which all theory must be imposed from above. It could not escape if it tried.

A psychologist asks, "Are women as good auto drivers as men?" and then admits no one knows. Married, eh?

Trade With Reds

If the United States does ask—belatedly—for the imposition of economic sanctions against Communist China, the United Nations ought to approve it with the same alacrity that it approved the sending of United States forces to Korea.

Great Britain, which has recognized the Chinese Communist government and is doing a land office business with the Chinese Reds through Hong Kong, will oppose such a move. But it is time that Washington stopped letting the British Socialist government call the signals.

General MacArthur's headquarters announces that Red China has more than a million men under arms in and about Korea, and by the end of next year will be able to put 12,000,000 men in the field. None of the other members of the United Nations is sending any aid. To win this war, therefore, the United States must rely on the continued superiority of American equipment, including planes, and on a boycott to keep materiel from reaching the enemy.

The Communists do not need manpower. Nor do they care what happens to it in battle. But they cannot fight without tanks, planes, guns and ammunition. Washington will be criminally negligent if it continues to fail to do what it can to deprive them of the means of getting the sinews of war.

Things may change, but it is pointed out that a year ago it was winter, too.

Guide To Slick Driving

Ice and snow on the roads make winter the most hazardous season for motorists in the northern two-thirds of the nation. If they drive as fast on such surfaces as they would on dry concrete or asphalt, they will not be as safe.

There is no way of beating this rule. Chains will hold down skidding and make for quicker stopping, but a driver will not be as safe on ice or snow with chains as he would be on dry pavements without them.

Various types of ice and snow tires, which avoid the nuisances of putting chains on, are also helpful. But the best of them, the National Safety Council reports, are less effective than chains on road surfaces that call for either.

A danger is that chains or snow tires will tend to make a driver ocer-confident. The National Safety Council offers a set of tested and approved rules for safe driving on snow and ice. Here they are:

Get the "feel" of the road.

Adjust speed to road and weather conditions.

Keep the windshield and windows clear.

Use tire chains for severe snow and ice conditions.

"Pump" the brakes to stop.

Follow other vehicles at a safe distance.

In fact, all of these rules, with the exception of putting on chains—apply to dry roads as well as wet or icy road surfaces.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

The Health Picture Is Rosy

WE START the second half of the 20th century with a bang—not only from noisemakers but from the health aspect. When all the statistics for 1950 are in we will find that many health records have been broken. The death rate probably will hit a new low. Furthermore, our life expectancy, which is unbelievable now, will go up a notch or two.

In the last five decades we have made more progress than in the preceding thousands of years. In prehistoric times the life expectancy was 18 years, as estimated from the remains of fossils. Today the average man and woman has an expectancy of nearly three score and ten. This does not mean that no one in ancient times lived to be 60, 70, or 80. Unquestionably some did, but so many died in infancy that life expectancy figures never reached the 20 year mark. Moreover, any one who was strong enough to buck the dinosaurs and the unsheltered environment of the primeval era probably could reach a ripe old age.

As centuries passed there was a gradual increase in the life span. In the heyday of Rome it reached 22 years and by the middle ages, 35 years. One hundred years ago, in England and Wales, it was 40.9 and in this country, by the turn of the century, the figure almost hit 50. Nowadays most of our babies live, but this is only one of the reasons why our life expectancy is so high. We have made progress in preventing and treating disease and eliminating certain occupational hazards. Our rapid strides in sanitation have done wonders; for example, typhoid fever practically has been eliminated in this way. Our standard of living is so high that most of us are able to follow the rules of health.

It is comforting to realize that many of us can expect to live a long time; but it is even more encouraging to know that we and our children can expect to remain healthy thru our lifetime. The contagious diseases are at an all-time low and each year the fall in our death rate breaks another record. There has been a 98 per cent reduction in mortality from measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough and diphtheria combined. In 1911 the rate was 171.8 per 100,000 of population; in 1949 it had fallen to 2.6. There also is less penumonia and influenza; in 1930 these two disorders were second only to heart disease and cancer as causes of death. For this we can thank vaccines and the wonder drugs.

New records appear in other fields. The mortality from syphilis is one-half that of 1911 and there are four-fifths fewer deaths from appendicitis and two-thirds less mothers succumb to the complications of childbirth. Conversely, there is more polio. Cancer remains the same, but this actually represents a decline considering the increase in population and the greater number of men and women who reach the cancer age. There even is a bright spot in evaluating the No. 1 killer—cardiovascular disease. More cases develop because we are living longer.

Studies of prehistoric man reveal that the majority died a violent death, usually from a bashed-in skull. We wonder if history is repeating itself when we consider that accidents are now third on the list of killers. We hope that the new year will bring individual resolutions to be more careful at home, at work, and while at the wheel.

BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

Mrs. E. C. writes: Every winter our son develops a cold which is followed by asthma. Should we move to a warm climate?

REPLY

This venture frequently helps unless the victim encounters the same type of irritant as in his home town. There usually is more to the treatment of bronchial asthma than a change of climate. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this condition.

•—•—•

CHUBBY FEET

Mrs. Y. writes: I have fat feet and they look terrible. Is there any way I can reduce them?

REPLY

On you, they might look good. Nothing can be done unless you are obese all over and in need of a general reducing diet. Are you sure this is fat? Now and then such puffiness represents fluid stemming from a glandular or circulatory disorder or milkleg. On the other hand, if it is "just you" why not forget it?

BABY'S HEART SOUNDS

Mrs. L. writes: When a woman is pregnant, when can the baby's heart beat be heard by the doctor?

REPLY

Fetal heart tones usually are heard by the 18th week of gestation but occasionally they can be detected as early as the 14th week.

In ancient Egypt, the bull was considered so sacred that its birthday was celebrated, and after its death it was mummified and buried in a rock-tomb.

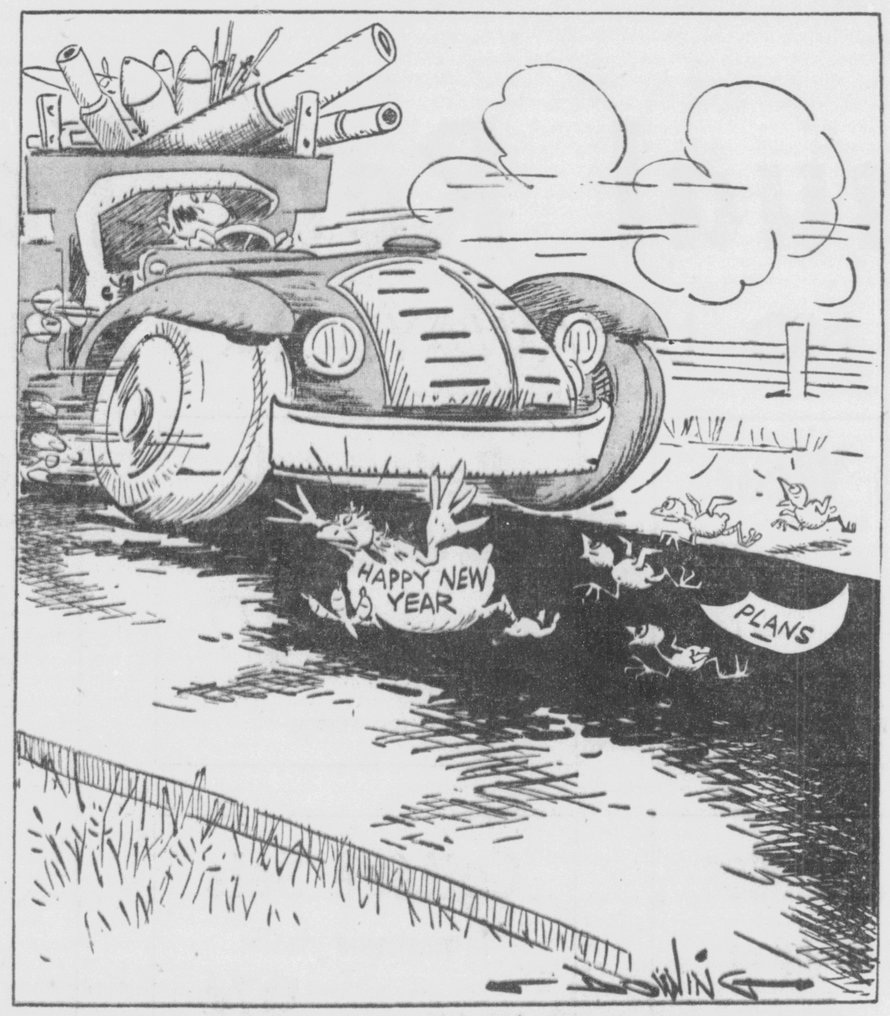
WELL, HERE GOES



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Manufacturers Want Government Contracts — On Their Own Terms; Larson Has Trouble With Reynolds And Kaiser; Eisenhower's Biggest Job.

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Putting big business to work on important government projects has not been as easy as the public might suppose. Manufacturers are delighted to have government contracts all right, but a lot of them want to operate on their own terms.

Take, for instance, the problem of stepping up vitally needed aluminum. The public already has had aluminum for civilian uses cut back 35 per cent, but on top of this, more than two months were wasted while aluminum companies haggled over increasing production.

Paradoxically two of the companies which General Services Administrator Jess Larson had the most trouble with were two that Uncle Sam helped put in business—Reynolds metals and Henry Kaiser.

Reynolds was urged by Secretary of the Interior Ickes to manufacture aluminum in competition with the giant Aluminum Corporation of America during the war, and was given all kinds of government loans, orders and backing. Kaiser was sold surplus aluminum plants at bargain rates after the war. However, both wanted to produce pretty much on their own terms in the new emergency.

Early last fall, when the government first contemplated expanding aluminum production, genial, hard-working Henry Kaiser, genius of the far-flung Kaiser Industries, welcomed the idea with enthusiasm.

No Risk—All Profits

However, when it came to signing a contract, both Kaiser and Reynolds had their own ideas. And their ideas were that Uncle Sam take all the risks, they take all the profits. Both companies are heartily against government interference with business, but apparently not against government guarantees of dividends.

For here is what Kaiser and Reynolds wanted from the government in return for expanding the aluminum plants which they originally purchased from Uncle Sam at bargain-counter rates:

1. A government guarantee of their loan.

2. The right to amortize their investment in five years, whereas ordinarily tax depreciation would be spread over 20 years.

3. The government to buy all aluminum except a margin allocated to small manufacturers.

4. If the market dropped or if government purchases decreased, the companies could turn the plants back to Uncle Sam in two and a half years.

In brief, the two aluminum companies wanted the government to put up the money, give them tax relief, buy most of the product, and then take the plants off their hands in case business went bad.

All this the government agreed to do. However, the aluminum executives wanted even more. They proposed that if price controls should be imposed on the nation, they would be exempt.

This was too much. And in a confidential backstage conference with Larson, the attorney for Reynolds metals, Judge Robert Patterson, refused to support his own client. Patterson, who served as Secretary of War, quietly remarked:

"Gentlemen, we have asked for enough."

NOTE—The aluminum contracts have now been signed. They provide for a total of 320,000 tons expanded production divided among Kaiser, Reynolds and Alcoa.

Tide Of Toys

Toughest problem facing General Eisenhower in rearming Europe will be to mobilize the spirit, the espirit de corps, the enthusiasm of the man in the street.

This points the finger at our biggest failure in postwar building. For, while we have repaired European factories, rebuilt railroads, filled men's stomachs, we have not worked nearly as hard on people-to-people friendship.

We have dealt chiefly on a government-to-government basis, and unfortunately when a cabinet falls or a government changes hands, we are left with no deep roots among the people.

This is one reason why the American Legion's Tide of Toys is so important at this time.

These toys, collected for the children of U. S. soldiers in Korea and for the poorer children of Europe, are not so valuable measured in dollars. But they will be priceless in terms of goodwill.

For it's the thing that touches a person's heartstrings that counts. And a toy sent by a child in the U.S.A. to a family in Europe can make a more lasting impression than rebuilding a dozen factories or munitions plants that can easily be taken over by the enemy if the people of Western Europe lack the will for defense.

War Notes

About 50 of the Army's revolutionary lightweight tanks will be ready for combat in the next few weeks. An Ungentle Reminder

WASHINGTON

ONE of the more sinister tactics adopted by the new isolationists is to disseminate the rumor that the Soviet Union does not, after all, have an atomic bomb. Not long ago Sen. Owen Brewster, of Maine, whose irresponsibility can always be relied on, told the Senate so in plain terms.

For the sake of the record, it is fortunate that much more can now be told about how the Soviet bomb explosion was detected. And the facts, if they are studied at all, prove conclusively what was exploded in the Soviet Union in September, 1949, was indeed an atomic bomb.

To begin at the beginning, the net for detecting a Soviet bomb explosion was established shortly after the war, by the combined efforts of the three armed service staffs, the Joint Research and Development Board, the Atomic Energy Commission and the Central Intelligence Agency. It consisted of four main parts.

First, since a bomb explosion is sufficiently violent to create earth tremors, a chain of seismological stations was organized, to detect any such tremors anywhere in the world.

Second, an atomic explosion releases a cloud of radioactive particles, which ascend to the stratosphere, and there are blown around the earth by the prevailing winds. The presence of this radioactive cloud in the stratosphere is detectable by Geiger counters. Therefore a second chain of stations with Geiger counters operators was set up.

Collect Air Samples

Third, and this is vital, air samples from the radioactive cloud can be taken by high-flying aircraft and/or balloons equipped with special apparatus. The radioactive particles thus caught can be subjected to mineralogical analysis; and the results tell much about the nature of the atomic explosion that has occurred. Arrangements to collect such air samples were also made.

Finally, all the data thus obtained can be precisely interpreted by properly trained scientists. This task, of interpreting and forming conclusions from the data collected, was intrusted to the Scientific Advisory Commission of the Atomic Energy Commission. This body, including such men as Professor Robert Oppenheimer, Dr. Enrico Fermi, Oliver Buckley of the Bell laboratories, and James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard, is as powerful and well balanced an assemblage of scientific minds as this country can muster.

When the Soviet bomb exploded in central Siberia in September, 1949, all this elaborate organization, already trial-tested by our own Eniwetok bomb, went smoothly to work. The seismologists physically located the place of the explosion. The Geiger counter chain detected the radioactive cloud a little later. Air samples were immediately taken. The scientific analysts went to work.

The air samples provided the decisive evidence. In the Pentagon the hope was briefly entertained that instead of exploding an atomic bomb intentionally, the Soviets had accidentally touched off one of their radioactive piles. But the metallic components of a pile and a bomb are entirely different. A plutonium bomb particularly, of the improved

1951 Outlook

Withdrawal From Korea, Record Income Predicted

By ROGER W. BABSON

SPECIAL—The United Nations will withdraw from Korea in 1951.

1. Excluding defense orders, the total business volume in 1951 will be less than that for 1950. However, national income in 1951 will be the highest ever recorded, as war orders take the place of peace production and high prices prevail.

More Government Controls

2. The outstanding feature of 1951 will be the ever-increasing interference of the government in the lives of businessmen and consumers.

3. The Administration and its economic advisors are firmly convinced that radical inflation is about to break out next year. But the "brain trusters" are overlooking the fact that the boom is already old and that it was creaking badly when the Korean War broke out. War postponed the downturn which would have taken place much sooner. The date of the slide has only moved ahead.

4. Rushing to catch up on its neglected defense program, the Administration is anxious to shrink business volume to an unnecessary degree. Efforts at first will be along the line of tighter credit curbs, such as restrictions on mortgage and installment loans and increased bank reserve requirements.

5. As 1951 wears on, the effect of credit controls will cause a decline in legitimate business. Civilian production will decline more than armament production will increase. The public may then cry, "This is a government-made slump; let's get rid of the controls!"

6. If in 1951 it becomes evident that business is declining too fast as a result of government curbs, the planners at Washington may rush their patient into an oxygen tent.

Labor Outlook Will Be Tight

7. Most labor groups will not be successful in getting a sixth round of wage increases in 1951. Although there may be more strikes in the first part of 1951, there will be fewer for the whole year as compared with 1950.

8. Tightness in the labor supply will be continued as the year wears on, particularly of highly-skilled workers.

9. The Taft-Hartley Law will not be repealed during 1951 but may be amended. The Administrators of the law will continue to wink at some of its clauses.

Commodity Prices Remain Firm

10. Wholesale prices of many commodities will be marked by a mild decline in 1951 when compared with the price level for December 31, 1950. In some lines the drop may be quite steep from the high levels of late 1950. Retail prices for 1951, I do not now forecast.

11. The year 1951 should prove an excellent time to keep a tight grip on inventories. Commodity speculation for the rise will not pay in 1951. Furthermore our expanding stockpiles of strategic materials present a real price threat in the event of a peace scare. Such stockpiles could then act strongly as a depressant on prices.

12. The cost of living will remain high during 1951. This prediction recognizes that living costs next year may be above the lower levels that existed during the first half of the year now closing.

Farm Outlook Good

13. Farmers' income for 1951 should average no less than that for 1950. Since the trend in the first half of 1950 was down, this forecast is not so optimistic as it might otherwise seem, for there is likely to be a weakening of the farmers' income position during the latter part of 1951.

14. Barring crop failures, the total supply of food available should be larger in 1951 than for 1950, since the government will raise planting quotas as part of its attack on inflation. If the weather is extremely favorable, the government will be blamed for farm-price weakness during the latter part of 1951.

15. With prospects good for a rising supply of feed grains, meat should be more plentiful next year than in 1950. Prices for meat however, will be held up by continued high national income and by military needs.

Taxes Will Be Higher

16. The burden of federal taxes, both corporate and personal, will be increased again in 1951. State and municipal taxes will remain high.

17. There will be an excess profits tax in 1951. These excess profits taxes will be milder than those in force during World War II; but they will be inflationary and retard efficiency, economy and incentive.

18. There will be heavy pressure for increased federal "sales taxes" to discourage purchasing of luxury and certain nonessential goods. Congress will see the value of some such sales taxes as an inflation road block.

19. States and municipalities will again be under pressure to find adequate sources of revenue. Further increases in such taxes can be looked for next year with additional cities and/or states adopting sales taxes.

20. Despite renewed efforts to increase the long-term capital gains tax above the present 25 percent figures, rates will remain unchanged.

Domestic Trade Will Be Less

21. Credit curbs will cut into the demand for automobiles and household equipment. Completions of fewer dwellings will also act as a damper on furniture sales.

22. Falling demand for hard goods should mean a stabilization of the public's spending for food and lower-priced soft goods.

23. The trend forecast in No. 22 will mean a decline in department store volume, but I predict a rise in the sales of variety chains and of drug chains.

Foreign Trade Outlook Fair

24. Barring new war developments, I look for continued shrink-

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE government of the United States differs from most so-called democracies in our congressional system. We have a separation of powers between the executive and legislature which contrasts with the unity of powers under the parliamentary system. The prime minister of the United Kingdom is a member of Parliament and that is the only office to which he is elected.

Our president is elected as such and is not a member of Congress. He is neither the leader of his party in Congress nor is he expected after election, to be president of the party.

In this year of crisis, while the Democrats still hold the majority in both houses of Congress, it is an uncomfortable one. The ratios stand:

The Senate

Democrats ..... 51 per cent
Republicans .... 49 per cent

House of Representatives

Democrats ..... 54.5 per cent
Republicans ... 45.5 per cent

In actual seats, the Republicans will have 47 in the Senate as compared with 49 Democrats. In the House, the margin will be slightly wider.

After the Democrats have organized both the Senate and the House, placing Democrats into the chairmanships of the various committees, they will split into two basic groups: 1. The Truman Democrats, who will be led by Senator Harry Byrd. The latter group, representing the South, will hold the balance of power, the principal chairmanships of committees by seniority, and will prevail in legislation because they will be in a position to shift from the Democratic to the Republican side with freedom.

Among the Republicans there will also be a cleavage but it will be narrower. The leadership of Robert A. Taft in the Senate will be unquestioned. His vote in his industrial state of Ohio was so enormous that it added authority to his incontestable intellectual powers.

The small group of New Deal Republicans, not more than four or five, cannot offset the strength of the independent Democrats nor is there a man among them who possesses either the political position or the intellectual force to lead his party away from Taft. The most outstanding of them is Wayne Morris, of Oregon.

Thus, in this year of crisis, Harry Truman with a divided party faces Robert A. Taft and a Republican-Dixiecrat coalition, as it is called. The word, Dixiecrat, is politically unsound, as being associated with a specific group in the South rather than a general anti-New Deal group of Democrats.

The Taft-Byrd leadership is constructive. It is neither narrow nor partisan. Taft has shown a breadth of outlook, which is one reason why so many labor union members in his state rebelled against their unions to vote for him.

One issue this Congress will not have to face: that is the repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. The election settled that. Senator Taft undoubtedly will introduce some amendments and revisions and they will be passed.

In the matter of foreign policy, the elements of agreement and disagreement will cross party lines. Governor Thomas E. Dewey while he holds no seat in Congress, has taken a position in foreign affairs which is akin to the modifications of policy current in the State Department. His good friend and associate, John Foster Dulles, is playing an increasing role in the State Department and seeks to influence Republican senators, particularly Robert A. Taft, Styles Bridges and Cabot Lodge.

On the other hand, the opposition of Republicans to the continuance in office of Dean Acheson has such rank-and-file support that it will overwhelm all the activities of Dulles. No Republican who will have to stand for election in 1952 can risk support of Acheson, no matter what part of the country he comes from.

Furthermore, the Republicans, in foreign relations, will have to face the reality of a rising antagonism to and disappointment over Great Britain. The fact that the British insist on "ordinary business" when our sons and theirs are being killed, just does not go down. As long as in the public mind, Dewey, Dulles or any other Republican is regarded as wedded to British policy, his influence may be discounted.

The 82nd Congress will be a difficult one for the President. He cannot lead it; yet his temperament is such that what he cannot lead, he is impelled to combat.

Resolutions

Comes now the time of year that traditionally was devoted to making New Year's resolutions in an earlier day. This was a merry custom that was good for many a quip or laugh and provided a prime conversational subject for many weeks.

It is a pity, in a way, that the custom of making New Year's resolutions has gradually died out. Little is heard of this once popular pastime these days. In fact, the current generations, both young and old, regard such proclivities as strictly on the corny side.

But 'twas not always thus. In grandpa's day making resolutions—or "turning over a new leaf," as it was sometimes dubbed—was an activity that was entered into wholeheartedly and in complete seriousness. What did it matter that the old reprobate always backslid the next day, the next week or the next month, and went back to smoking cheroots or to engage in some similar vice?

Yep, the making of resolutions was quite a pastime in its own right 40 or 50 years ago. It added hilarity to an otherwise somber scene, and nothing has appeared to take its place. Ah, well—such is progress. Happy New Year.

Dictator Vargas of Brazil isaccused of having four relatives on the government payroll. Fair deal politicians here will regard that as a new low in effort.

Hogtied Science

Russia has the world's best chess players, partly because they are subsidized by the government, partly because chess is almost the only realm of thought that still remains free under Stalin. Literature, history, science and music must all be checked against the party line.

Those who fail to keep up with its twists and turns must abjectly recant or face loss of their jobs, their privileges, their liberty, and even of their lives.

Science becomes sterile without skepticism—the right to challenge even an axiom, the right to think freely. So do the arts. Applied science may do better, but application eventually falters unless it can draw upon a continuously renewed body of pure science.

Boasts that Russians invented everything from the telephone to television can hardly offset scientific backwardness when scientists are hogtied by imposed dogma. But in chess a Russian grand master can make any legal move without being accused of Trotskyism or bourgeois deviationism. That is why Russian chess flourishes while science and art lag.

The Russians themselves seem to be becoming aware of this. The Soviet magazine Culture and Life recently carried an article by a scientist named Yuri Zhdanov attacking dogmatism in science as an enemy of progress. A year ago he would have been sent to Siberia for publishing such an article.

Now he also gets away with attacking the hitherto sacred theories of Michurin, on which the "Marxist biology" of Lysenko is based. Some of Russia's best biologists have died for opposing Lysenko's theories.

It is absurd to say that Russia's policies never change. They are always changing, but some of their worst aspects are never abandoned for a long period. Zhdanov's article undoubtedly heralds a shift in the official bolshevik attitude toward science, but it will not usher in a new area in which scientists will be as free as chess players. Stalinism is committed to a system in which all theory must be imposed from above. It could not escape if it tried.

A psychologist asks, "Are women as good auto drivers as men?" and then admits no one knows. Married, eh?

Trade With Reds

If the United States does ask—belatedly—for the imposition of economic sanctions against Communist China, the United Nations ought to approve it with the same alacrity that it approved the sending of United States forces to Korea.

Great Britain, which has recognized the Chinese Communist government and is doing a land office business with the Chinese Reds through Hong Kong, will oppose such a move. But it is time that Washington stopped letting the British Socialist government call the signals.

General MacArthur's headquarters announces that Red China has more than a million men under arms in and about Korea, and by the end of next year will be able to put 12,000,000 men in the field. None of the other members of the United Nations is sending any aid. To win this war, therefore, the United States must rely on the continued superiority of American equipment, including planes, and on a boycott to keep materiel from reaching the enemy.

The Communists do not need manpower. Nor do they care what happens to it in battle. But they cannot fight without tanks, planes, guns and ammunition. Washington will be criminally negligent if it continues to fail to do what it can to deprive them of the means of getting the sinews of war.

Things may change, but it is pointed out that a year ago it was winter, too.

Guide To Slick Driving

Ice and snow on the roads make winter the most hazardous season for motorists in the northern two-thirds of the nation. If they drive as fast on such surfaces as they would on dry concrete or asphalt, they will not be as safe.

There is no way of beating this rule. Chains will hold down skidding and make for quicker stopping, but a driver will not be as safe on ice or snow with chains as he would be on dry pavements without them.

Various types of ice and snow tires, which avoid the nuisances of putting chains on, are also helpful. But the best of them, the National Safety Council reports, are less effective than chains on road surfaces that call for either.

A danger is that chains or snow tires will tend to make a driver ocer-confident. The National Safety Council offers a set of tested and approved rules for safe driving on snow and ice. Here they are:

Get the "feel" of the road.

Adjust speed to road and weather conditions.

Keep the windshield and windows clear.

Use tire chains for severe snow and ice conditions.

"Pump" the brakes to stop.

Follow other vehicles at a safe distance.

In fact, all of these rules, with the exception of putting on chains—apply to dry roads as well as wet or icy road surfaces.

The Health Picture Is Rosy

WE START the second half of the 20th century with a bang—not only from noisemakers but from the health aspect. When all the statistics for 1950 are in we will find that many health records have been broken. The death rate probably will hit a new low. Furthermore, our life expectancy, which is unbelievable now, will go up a notch or two.

In the last five decades we have made more progress than in the preceding thousands of years. In prehistoric times the life expectancy was 18 years, as estimated from the remains of fossils. Today the average man and woman has an expectancy of nearly three score and ten. This does not mean that no one in ancient times lived to be 60, 70, or 80. Unquestionably some did, but so many died in infancy that life expectancy figures never reached the 20 year mark. Moreover, any one who was strong enough to buck the dinosaurs and the unsheltered environment of the primeval era probably could reach a ripe old age.

As centuries passed there was a gradual increase in the life span. In the heyday of Rome it reached 22 years and by the middle ages, 35 years. One hundred years ago, in England and Wales, it was 40.9 and in this country, by the turn of the century, the figure almost hit 50. Nowadays most of our babies live, but this is only one of the reasons why our life expectancy is so high. We have made progress in preventing and treating disease and eliminating certain occupational hazards. Our rapid strides in sanitation have done wonders; for example, typhoid fever practically has been eliminated in this way. Our standard of living is so high that most of us are able to follow the rules of health.

It is comforting to realize that many of us can expect to live a long time; but it is even more encouraging to know that we and our children can expect to remain healthy thru our lifetime. The contagious diseases are at an all-time low and each year the fall in our death rate breaks another record. There has been a 98 per cent reduction in mortality from measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough and diphtheria combined. In 1911 the rate was 171.8 per 100,000 of population; in 1949 it had fallen to 2.6. There also is less penumonia and influenza; in 1930 these two disorders were second only to heart disease and cancer as causes of death. For this we can thank vaccines and the wonder drugs.

New records appear in other fields. The mortality from syphilis is one-half that of 1911 and there are four-fifths fewer deaths from appendicitis and two-thirds less mothers succumb to the complications of childbirth. Conversely, there is more polio. Cancer remains the same, but this actually represents a decline considering the increase in population and the greater number of men and women who reach the cancer age. There even is a bright spot in evaluating the No. 1 killer—cardiovascular disease. More cases develop because we are living longer.

Studies of prehistoric man reveal that the majority died a violent death, usually from a bashed-in skull. We wonder if history is repeating itself when we consider that accidents are now third on the list of killers. We hope that the new year will bring individual resolutions to be more careful at home, at work, and while at the wheel.

BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

Mrs. E. C. writes: Every winter our son develops a cold which is followed by asthma. Should we move to a warm climate?

This venture frequently helps unless the victim encounters the same type of irritant as in his home town. There usually is more to the treatment of bronchial asthma than a change of climate. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this condition.

CHUBBY FEET

Mrs. Y. writes: I have fat feet and they look terrible. Is there any way I can reduce them?

REPLY

On you, they might look good. Nothing can be done unless you are obese all over and in need of a general reducing diet. Are you sure this is fat? Now and then such puffiness represents fluid stemming from a glandular or circulatory disorder or milkleg. On the other hand, if it is "just you" why not forget it?

Fetal heart tones usually are heard by the 18th week of gestation but occasionally they can be detected as early as the 14th week.

WELL, HERE GOES

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Putting big business to work on important government projects has not been as easy as the public might suppose. Manufacturers are delighted to have government contracts all right, but a lot of them want to operate on their own terms.

Take, for instance, the problem of stepping up vitally needed aluminum. The public already has had aluminum for civilian uses cut back 35 per cent, but on top of this, more than two months were wasted while aluminum companies haggled over increasing production.

Paradoxically two of the companies which General Services Administrator Jess Larson had the most trouble with were two that Uncle Sam helped put in business—Reynolds metals and Henry Kaiser.

Reynolds was urged by Secretary of the Interior Ickes to manufacture aluminum in competition with the giant Aluminum Corporation of America during the war, and was given all kinds of government loans, orders and backing. Kaiser was sold surplus aluminum plants at bargain rates after the war. However, both wanted to produce pretty much on their own terms in the new emergency.

Early last fall, when the government first contemplated expanding aluminum production, genial, hard-working Henry Kaiser, genius of the far-flung Kaiser Industries, welcomed the idea with enthusiasm.

No Risk—All Profits

However, when it came to signing a contract, both Kaiser and Reynolds had their own ideas. And their ideas were that Uncle Sam take all the risks, they take all the profits. Both companies are heartily against government interference with business, but apparently not against government guarantees of dividends.

For here is what Kaiser and Reynolds wanted from the government in return for expanding the aluminum plants which they originally purchased from Uncle Sam at bargain-counter rates:

1. A government guarantee of their loan.

2. The right to amortize their investment in five years, whereas ordinarily tax depreciation would be spread over 20 years.

3. The government to buy all aluminum except a margin allocated to small manufacturers.

4. If the market dropped or if government purchases decreased, the companies could turn the plants back to Uncle Sam in two and a half years.

In brief, the two aluminum companies wanted the government to put up the money, give them tax relief, buy most of the product, and then take the plants off their hands in case business went bad.

All this the government agreed to do. However, the aluminum executives wanted even more. They proposed that if price controls should be imposed on the nation, they would be exempt.

This was too much. And in a confidential backstage conference with Larson, the attorney for Reynolds metals, Judge Robert Patterson, refused to support his own client. Patterson, who served as Secretary of War, quietly remarked:

"Gentlemen, we have asked for enough."

NOTE—The aluminum contracts have now been signed. They provide for a total of 320,000 tons expanded production divided among Kaiser, Reynolds and Alcoa.

Tide Of Toys

Toughest problem facing General Eisenhower in rearming Europe will be to mobilize the spirit, the esprit de corps, the enthusiasm of the man in the street.

This points the finger at our biggest failure in postwar building. For, while we have repaired European factories, rebuilt railroads, filled men's stomachs, we have not worked nearly as hard on people-to-people friendship.

We have dealt chiefly on a government-to-government basis, and unfortunately when a cabinet falls or a government changes hands, we are left with no deep roots among the people.

This is one reason why the American Legion's Tide of Toys is so important at this time.

These toys, collected for the children of U. S. soldiers in Korea and for the poorer children of Europe, are not so valuable measured in dollars. But they will be priceless in terms of goodwill.

For it's the thing that touches a person's heartstrings that counts. And a toy sent by a child in the U.S.A. to a family in Europe can make a more lasting impression than rebuilding a dozen factories or munitions plants that can easily be taken over by the enemy if the people of Western Europe lack the will for defense.

2. The outstanding feature of 1951 will be the ever-increasing interference of the government in the lives of businessmen and consumers.

3. The Administration and its economic advisors are firmly convinced that radical inflation is about to break out next year. But the "brain trusters" are overlooking the fact that the boom is already old and that it was creaking badly when the Korean War broke out. War postponed the downturn which would have taken place much sooner. The date of the slide has only moved ahead.

4. Rushing to catch up on its neglected defense program, the Administration is anxious to shrink business volume to an unnecessary degree. Efforts at first will be along the line of tighter credit curbs, such as restrictions on mortgage and installment loans and increased bank reserve requirements.

5. As 1951 wears on, the effect of credit controls will cause a decline in legitimate business. Civilian production will decline more than armament production will increase. The public may then cry, "This is a government-made slump; let's get rid of the controls!"

6. If in 1951 it becomes evident that business is declining too fast as a result of government curbs, the planners at Washington may rush their patient into an oxygen tent.

Labor Outlook Will Be Tight

7. Most labor groups will not be successful in getting a sixth round of wage increases in 1951. Although there may be more strikes in the first part of 1951, there will be fewer for the whole year as compared with 1950.

8. Tightness in the labor supply will be continued as the year wears on, particularly of highly-skilled workers.

9. The Taft-Hartley Law will not be repealed during 1951 but may be amended. The Administrators of the law will continue to wink at some of its clauses.

Commodity Prices Remain Firm

10. Wholesale prices of many commodities will be marked by a mild decline in 1951 when compared with the price level for December 31, 1950. In some lines the drop may be quite steep from the high levels of late 1950. Retail prices for 1951, I do not now forecast.

11. The year 1951 should prove an excellent time to keep a tight grip on inventories. Commodity speculation for the rise will not pay in 1951. Furthermore our expanding stockpiles of strategic materials present a real price threat in the event of a peace scare. Such stockpiles could then act strongly as a depressant on prices.

12. The cost of living will remain high during 1951. This prediction recognizes that living costs next year may be above the lower levels that existed during the first half of the year now closing.

Farm Outlook Good

13. Farmers' income for 1951 should average no less than that for 1950. Since the trend in the first half of 1950 was down, this forecast is not so optimistic as it might otherwise seem, for there is likely to be a weakening of the farmers' income position during the latter part of 1951.

14. Barring crop failures, the total supply of food available should be larger in 1951 than for 1950, since the government will raise planting quotas as part of its attack on inflation. If the weather is extremely favorable, the government will be blamed for farm-price weakness during the latter part of 1951.

15. With prospects good for a rising supply of feed grains, meat should be more plentiful next year than in 1950. Prices for meat however, will be held up by continued high national income and by military needs.

Taxes Will Be Higher

16. The burden of federal taxes, both corporate and personal, will be increased again in 1951. State and municipal taxes will remain high.

17. There will be an excess profits tax in 1951. These excess profits taxes will be milder than those in force during World War II; but they will be inflationary and retard efficiency, economy and incentive.

18. There will be heavy pressure for increased federal "sales taxes" to discourage purchasing of luxury and certain nonessential goods. Congress will see the value of some such sales taxes as an inflation road block.

19. States and municipalities will again be under pressure to find adequate sources of revenue. Further increases in such taxes can be looked for next year with additional cities and/or states adopting sales taxes.

20. Despite renewed efforts to increase the long-term capital gains tax above the present 25 percent figures, rates will remain unchanged.

Domestic Trade Will Be Less

21. Credit curbs will cut into the demand for automobiles and household equipment. Completions of fewer dwellings will also act as a damper on furniture sales.

22. Falling demand for hard goods should mean a stabilization of the public's spending for food and lower-priced soft goods.

23. The trend forecast in No. 22 will mean a decline in department store volume, but I predict a rise in the sales of variety chains and of drug chains.

Foreign Trade Outlook Fair

24. Barring new war developments, I look for continued shrink-

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE government of the United States differs from most so-called democracies in our congressional system. We have a separation of powers between the executive and legislature which contrasts with the unity of powers under the parliamentary system. The prime minister of the United Kingdom is a member of Parliament and that is the only office to which he is elected.

Our president is elected as such and is not a member of Congress. He is neither the leader of his party in Congress nor is he expected after election, to be president of the party.

In this year of crisis, while the Democrats still hold the majority in both houses of Congress, it is an uncomfortable one. The ratios stand:

The Senate

Democrats ..... 51 per cent
Republicans .... 49 per cent

House of Representatives

Democrats ..... 54.5 per cent
Republicans ... 45.5 per cent

In actual seats, the Republicans will have 47 in the Senate as compared with 49 Democrats. In the House, the margin will be slightly wider.

After the Democrats have organized both the Senate and the House, placing Democrats into the chairmanships of the various committees, they will split into two basic groups: 1. The Truman Democrats, who will be led by Senator Harry Byrd. The latter group, representing the South, will hold the balance of power, the principal chairmanships of committees by seniority, and will prevail in legislation because they will be in a position to shift from the Democratic to the Republican side with freedom.

Among the Republicans there will also be a cleavage but it will be narrower. The leadership of Robert A. Taft in the Senate will be unquestioned. His vote in his industrial state of Ohio was so enormous that it added authority to his incontestable intellectual powers.

The small group of New Deal Republicans, not more than four or five, cannot offset the strength of the independent Democrats nor is there a man among them who possesses either the political position or the intellectual force to lead his party away from Taft. The most outstanding of them is Wayne Morris, of Oregon.

Thus, in this year of crisis, Harry Truman with a divided party faces Robert A. Taft and a Republican-Dixiecrat coalition, as it is called. The word, Dixiecrat, is politically unsound, as being associated with a specific group in the South rather than a general anti-New Deal group of Democrats.

The Taft-Byrd leadership is constructive. It is neither narrow nor partisan. Taft has shown a breadth of outlook, which is one reason why so many labor union members in his state rebelled against their unions to vote for him.

One issue this Congress will not have to face: that is the repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. The election settled that. Senator Taft undoubtedly will introduce some amendments and revisions and they will be passed.

In the matter of foreign policy, the elements of agreement and disagreement will cross party lines. Governor Thomas E. Dewey while he holds no seat in Congress, has taken a position in foreign affairs which is akin to the modifications of policy current in the State Department. His good friend and associate, John Foster Dulles, is playing an increasing role in the State Department and seeks to influence Republican senators, particularly Robert A. Taft, Styles Bridges and Cabot Lodge.

On the other hand, the opposition of Republicans to the continuance in office of Dean Acheson has such rank-and-file support that it will overwhelm all the activities of Dulles. No Republican who will have to stand for election in 1952 can risk support of Acheson, no matter what part of the country he comes from.

Furthermore, the Republicans, in foreign relations, will have to face the reality of a rising antagonism to and disappointment over Great Britain. The fact that the British insist on "ordinary business" when our sons and theirs are being killed, just does not go down. As long as in the public mind, Dewey, Dulles or any other Republican is regarded as wedded to British policy, his influence may be discounted.

The 82nd Congress will be a difficult one for the President. He cannot lead it; yet his temperament is such that what he cannot lead, he is impelled to combat.

State Game Commission Plans To Trap Rabbits

A trapping program which will cover the entire state has been mapped by the State Game and Inland Fish Commission in an effort to trap 5,000 wild rabbits.

Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke attended a meeting in Frederick last Wednesday at which Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the state commission, outlined the program. Vaughn said that the trapping would be done in suburban areas and at the outskirts of cities.

Young boys, especially 4-H Club members and Boy Scouts, could do the trapping. Such organizations interested in the plan should contact Minke or the nearest game warden for particulars.

Traps will be furnished by the State Game Commission and 75 cents will be paid for each rabbit trapped.

Last week game wardens in this district began checking over the game to determine how they are faring in the current cold weather. Bob white quail are wintering very well, Minke reports.

Strange 'Rivers' Of Stars May Be Clue To Creation

CLEVELAND, (AP) — Discovery of vast rivers of glowing gas and stars formed by cosmic collisions has been reported by Dr. Edwin F. Carpenter of the University of Arizona.

Long and thin, they stretch like a faint filament or link between two galaxies, the great star cities of the universe, he told the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He proposed they were formed by a great side-swiping collision of two galaxies that lasted for a million years. Hot gases were sucked out as a long streamer of wreckage as the galaxies tore through each other, and then rushed on apart.

The swirling river of gas apparently condenses into stars as it cools, and thus keeps glowing all the time.

The rivers give a clue as to how some stars are created, and indicate that more stars are continually being born.

Dr. Carpenter said he found 15 cases in which pairs of galaxies are engaged in a collision, or emerging from one. Galaxies are great collections of stars, containing up to 100 billion. Our milky way is one of the largest.

Some are spiral shaped, some globular, and they may be 100,000 light years wide, a light year being the distance light travels in one year. There are millions or billions of galaxies in the universe.

Stars in a galaxy are so widely separated that one galaxy can go right through another "without either group being aware of the other," Dr. Carpenter said. But gas clouds in the galaxies collide and grow hot, and the glowing filament of gas is pulled and trailed out as the star cities race on away. In four to six million years, the streamer becomes as long as a galaxy is wide.

Dr. Carpenter found the rivers in studying pairs of galaxies, or even larger groups, far out in space.

Three other astronomers announced the finding of what seems to be a brand new type of star, a blue dwarf. It is one of the bluest stars in the heavens, and very hot. But it is relatively small. All other very hot blue stars are extremely large.

The blue dwarf lies in the Northern Cross constellation, but is well outside the milky way. That is, in a place where hot stars rarely are found, they explained.

It may represent a new family of dwarf, high-temperature stars, said the three—Dr. Donald A. Macrae of Case Institute of Technology, Dr. Robert Fleischer of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, and Dr. Edwin B. Weston of the University of Michigan.

sort exploded by us at Nagasaki, contains highly special metals. And the air samples brought in radioactive metallic particles plainly indicating the explosion of a plutonium bomb at least of the Nagasaki type, if not better. Members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff sat with the Scientific Advisory Board in the last phase of preparation of their report to President Truman. All agreed on the conclusion, which was informally summed up by one of the authors of the report in a single, bleak sentence:

Military Significant

"The chances are 999 to 1 that it was a bomb that went off, and if it was not a bomb, neither I nor any of my colleagues can think of what it might have been."

Subsequently, secret intelligence confirmed the findings made in September, 1949. The highest intelligence sources now agree, moreover, that current Soviet bomb output is at the rate of about two a month, and by the end of the coming year will rise to five or more a month. Thus, as of now, the officially estimated Soviet stockpile is about 24 bombs; it will be nearly 50 bombs in another 12 months; and in two years, it will be well over a hundred bombs. The military significance of this timetable does not need to be underlined.

Such, for the information of Sen. Brewster, are the undisputed facts. It is well to remember, because this new isolationist denial of the Soviet bomb's existence recalls the tactics of the men who simultaneously told the British people in the late '30's that the enemy was too weak to attack, and that Britain was too weak to resist. These men also were attempting to organize their country's abject surrender.

Mother Reads Son's Letter To President By Telephone

A Cumberland mother, irate over the fact that her soldier-son had fought 167 consecutive days on the Korean front, "went to the top man" and telephoned President Truman over the weekend.

Mrs. Robert E. Colomy, 232 Bedford Street, talked to the President Friday afternoon, just before he departed from Blair House for a cruise down the Potomac on the Williamsburg.

Mrs. Colomy, a Republican, said the President "treated me with the greatest respect" and was in agreement with her feeling that arrangements should be made to relieve frontline troops for a rest. Mrs. Colomy described him as "very courteous, very courageous and very pleasant."

Mrs. Colomy said she placed the telephone call in order to read President Truman a paragraph from a letter received Friday from her son, Sgt. David A. Colomy, 30, also a veteran of World War II. It follows:

"I prefer not to bitch as I have been very lucky. But I am still hoping all nations will come to an agreement. This is like a fire—if not put out it will spread. It seems all that the U. N. delegates can accomplish is to throw more wood on the fire. I would suggest they all meet here in the swamp and field of snow we are on right now, out of their warm offices, and have their discussion. It would be a safe bet that they would come to an agreement."

Mrs. Colomy, who said she was "not at all surprised" in reaching and talking to President Truman, stated he took down the quotation and repeated the paragraph "word for word."

Her son, she said, has never complained in letters home but "she could read between the lines." A tank commander in Korea, he had served four years in Europe during World War II, fighting from North Africa to Germany. After the war he re-enlisted and went to Japan last April to serve with occupational forces.

Minister Sends Holiday Letter To His Friends

Celebrating his 83rd Christmas, the Rev. Chauncey R. Botsford, retired Lutheran minister, 611 Piedmont Avenue, sent out his usual letter of greeting to friends, with the observation that "this time last year I little thought I would be able to send out another letter with the motto calendar it has been my pleasure to send for many years." Mr. Botsford was once pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church here.

S. T. Little Jewelry Co. To Mark 100th Anniversary

A variety of special events are being planned for the year, according to Mrs. Cara Little Ebert, president, who is the granddaughter of the firm's founder, Samuel Trawin Little.

The month of January has been designated "Little Folks Month" in the celebration plans, and a collection of sterling silver and 10 karat gold baby gifts valued at $50 will be awarded to the first baby born in Cumberland in 1951. Birth records at Allegany and Memorial hospitals will be used to determine the time of the first birth. Among the baby sterling gifts are a cup, fork and spoon, porringer, rattle, feeding spoon, comb and brush, and picture frame. The 10 karat gold gifts will include a ring, beauty pins and identification bracelet.

During January every baby born in the local hospitals will receive a 10 karat gold baby ring as a special feature of "Little Folks Month." Rings will be delivered direct to the maternity wards of both hospitals twice weekly.

Throughout their 100 years the S. T. Little establishment has occupied a Baltimore Street location. The first store was near the Western Maryland crossing, about where Harbaugh's book store is now located. Approximately ten years later the store moved to the other end of Baltimore street, next door to the famous Barnum House (present site of the Windsor Hotel). Shortly after 1900 the present building at 113 Baltimore Street was purchased and has been the Little Jewelry headquarters during the second half century of the firm's existence.

Not luck, but how you adjust to events and changes will determine your happiness in the year ahead!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

At this early hour of 1951, the big question is how much happiness are you going to enjoy in the year ahead?

It is not a matter of your luck, or how well you fare in the realm of material success. It depends far more on your orientation to the world in which you find yourself.

It depends on how well you adjust to the problems and situations that come your way, especially regarding the people with whom you associate and come in contact; your surroundings, both in business and private life; and your circumstances, which mean everything from today's headlines to the amount of change you have in your purse. Your relationship with these factors of your life largely determines your happiness.

Formula for Happiness

There is a one-two formula that will help you adjust to any changes in these factors more quickly and easily, and in the best way possible. When any situation or problem arises, here's what you do: One—do your utmost to understand it as it really is. Two — frankly face and accept the truth about it.

After taking those two steps, you will know and be able to do what you can either to make the most of the situation or to solve the problem.

By using this formula, you avoid wasting time and energy in fighting conditions which you can't change. You eliminate any chance of throwing yourself against the proverbial stone wall. You will be cooperating with life as it is, instead of running away from it or pretending that conditions are other than as they are.

"Try to fool yourself, and you won't be fooling anybody," runs an old saying. Make sure that you are not fooling yourself, and you'll escape many of the causes of unhappiness, such as martyrdom, defeatism, self-pity, self-censure, perfectionism, suspicion and resentment.

Satisfaction Guaranteed

When you accept fact, and waste no thought or effort on trying to change people or situations beyond your control, you can devote your time to accomplishments which are within the realm of possibility. When you do, you are sure to attain the satisfaction of a productive life, and the out-turning, forward-looking thoughts that are always the passport to happiness.

The capacity to make this a happy new year lies within yourself.

S. T. Little Jewelry Co. To Mark 100th Anniversary

A variety of special events are being planned for the year, according to Mrs. Cara Little Ebert, president, who is the granddaughter of the firm's founder, Samuel Trawin Little.

The month of January has been designated "Little Folks Month" in the celebration plans, and a collection of sterling silver and 10 karat gold baby gifts valued at $50 will be awarded to the first baby born in Cumberland in 1951. Birth records at Allegany and Memorial hospitals will be used to determine the time of the first birth. Among the baby sterling gifts are a cup, fork and spoon, porringer, rattle, feeding spoon, comb and brush, and picture frame. The 10 karat gold gifts will include a ring, beauty pins and identification bracelet.

During January every baby born in the local hospitals will receive a 10 karat gold baby ring as a special feature of "Little Folks Month." Rings will be delivered direct to the maternity wards of both hospitals twice weekly.

Throughout their 100 years the S. T. Little establishment has occupied a Baltimore Street location. The first store was near the Western Maryland crossing, about where Harbaugh's book store is now located. Approximately ten years later the store moved to the other end of Baltimore street, next door to the famous Barnum House (present site of the Windsor Hotel). Shortly after 1900 the present building at 113 Baltimore Street was purchased and has been the Little Jewelry headquarters during the second half century of the firm's existence.

By JOHN L. SPRINGER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

This bloody outbreak, which started June 25 when North Koreans invaded South Korea, was voted the year's major story by editors of Associated Press newspapers.

Virtually every editor gave pre-eminent position to the war. Viewed from the American military angle alone, it ranks first: For the United States it began as a "police action" with the dispatch of troops to halt the invasion, but it quickly became the fifth greatest war in the nation's history. What made it overwhelmingly significant was that in far off Korea Communist troops clashed openly with United Nations forces. It raised higher the barrier between Communist and anti-Communist countries. It threatened to involve much of the world.

Worsening U. S.-Russian relations were reflected throughout the list of the ten top stories selected by the editors.

The ten stories:

1. — THE KOREAN WAR. First reports indicated it might be merely another border skirmish. But the Communists sliced through the southern republic's defenses and threatened to take over the entire country. However, the U. N. Security Council charged aggression and urged its members to help put down the uprising. While the North Koreans continued to gain ground, U. N. forces under Gen. MacArthur built up strength. In September, MacArthur's men swept northward and U. N. prestige climbed to its highest point. But then occurred the development which editors termed the second greatest of the year:

2. — CHINA ENTERS THE WAR. U. S. intelligence agents knew the Chinese Communists were massing troops along their Korean frontier but did not know they planned to intervene. In November, however, they struck in force. Badly-outnumbered U. N. troops managed to extricate themselves.

3. — ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF TRUMAN. The President napped on the afternoon of Nov. 1 in the upstairs bedroom of Blair House. Suddenly guns barked. The President looked out on a scene of confusion: Two gunmen of the small Puerto Rican nationalist movement, had come to try to assassinate him. In his defense, one guard was shot and two injured. One gunman died by the Blair House steps; the other was wounded and captured.

4. — REPUBLICAN GAINS AND RE-ELECTION OF TAFT. In November, the United States elected a new House of Representatives. Charges of leftist sympathy became the major issue in scores of contests. When the smoke cleared, the Democrats had only a precarious control of the new 82nd Congress. The most spectacular victory was that of Robert A. Taft, Ohio's senior senator, a top Republican leader and outstanding administration critic. As co-author of the Taft-Hartley law, he was attacked by organized labor. But he won out over the Democratic candidate, Joseph T. Ferguson, by more than 400,000 votes — 20 times his margin of victory when he was last elected in 1944.

5. — THE UNITED STATES REARMS. The growing strain in our relations with Russia was reflected in rapid increases in defense expenditures, calling up of reserves, expanding of draft calls, reactivation of "moth-balled" warships. New controls were placed on non-defense industries. The word "rationing" came back into the vocabulary. As the year ended, it seemed obvious that even stricter clamps to meet the emergency were on the way.

6. — SENATOR McCARTHY'S CHARGES. One of the most controversial figures of 1950 was the young senator from Wisconsin Joseph R. McCarthy. He stepped into the spotlight in March with charges that the State Department had become a haven for Reds and fellow-travelers. He demanded that Secretary of State Dean Acheson be fired. Soon everybody, it seemed, was in the act: The President refused to permit FBI files to be examined. Owen Lattimore denied McCarthy's statement that he was the top "Soviet espionage agent" in the U. S. Former Communist Louis Budenz supported some of McCarthy's charges. Former Secretaries of State Marshall and Byrnes denied some. McCarthy's campaign was given added significance by what editors regarded as the year's next most important story:

7. — THE ALGER HISS CASE AND OTHER SPY TRIALS. In a second drawn-out trial, Hiss denied that he had ever turned over secret State Department documents to Whittaker Chambers, then a Communist, in 1938. Chambers introduced evidence that Hiss had given him such documents for transmittal to Russia. Who was lying? Hiss, President Roosevelt's adviser at Yalta, or Chambers, who had denounced Communism and become a top editor of Time Magazine for a time? A jury decided Hiss was lying. It shocked the nation to learn that men in such high places could be the agents of Red Russia. Other trials of alleged Soviet-helpers featured the news of 1950, especially that of Judith Coplon, the Brooklyn girl sentenced to 15 years as a spy. A court later found, however, that the methods the F. B. I. used to trap Miss Coplon were illegal and a new trial loomed.

8. — TRUMAN ORDERS CONSTRUCTION OF THE H-BOMB. It was a fateful decision to make, but Russia dictated it. Insisting that the U. S. must maintain its atomic lead over the Soviets, the President on January 31 ordered work to proceed on the hydrogen bomb, theoretically 1,000 times more devastating than the A-bomb which razed Hiroshima.

9. — THE "MERCY KILLING" TRIAL OF DR. SANDER. When Dr. Hermann Sander went on trial in a Manchester N. H. court in February for the slaying of Mrs. Abbe Borrotto, in death-bed agony from cancer, many persons thought that the question of whether it is ever legal for an individual to take another's life might be decided. But Dr. Sander did not base his defense on those grounds; he said that the woman died a natural death, his mind snapped, he injected air into her veins. The jury acquitted him.

10. — BRINKS HOLDUP IN BOSTON. Supposedly the place was impregnable, as any place where the receipts of armored bank trucks were counted ought to be. But on January 17 well-briefed robbers found ways to open doors and escaped with $1,500,000.

Other stories of the year in their order of importance, as voted by the editors:

The Long Island Rail Road wreck at Richmond Hill, N. Y., on Nov. 22, in which 78 were killed.

Ouster of Louis A. Johnson as secretary of defense, and his replacement by former Army Chief of Staff, former Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

The South Amboy, N. J., munitions barge explosion May 19 when nearly a million pounds of anti-tank and anti-personnel mines blasted the city and killed 31.

Gradual evolvement of plans by the 12 foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Council to provide joint defense against aggression.

MacArthur Voted Year's No. 1 News Maker

AP Newsfeatures

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR was the outstanding newsmaker of 1950.

The man who was confronted with two "impossible" military tasks within six months, one of the great military leaders of the times and one of its most controversial political figures, was given his news designation by editors of Associated Press newspapers in a poll on the year's outstanding events and personalities.

The poll was conducted when MacArthur's "win the war" offensive in Korea already had bogged down before the Chinese Reds, and United Nations forces had begun their flight down the peninsula.

Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, who overcame strong labor union opposition to win re-election by a thumping majority and achieve nationwide recognition as "Mr. Republican," was voted the year's outstanding personality in politics.

Leaders in Other Fields

Others voted as key newsmakers were:

FOREIGN AFFAIRS — Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

LABOR — Walter Reuther, head of the CIO's powerful Auto Workers Union.

LITERATURE — Novelist William Faulkner.

ENTERTAINMENT — Al Jolson.

WOMAN OF THE YEAR — Perle Mesta.

Nomination of MacArthur as outstanding news maker jibed with editors' selection of the Korean war as the year's main news event. MacArthur, commander of the Allied occupation forces in Japan, also became the leader of the United Nations troops put together to stem the invasion of South Korea by the Communists.

MacArthur's First Task

He got his first "impossible" assignment soon after the North Koreans burst through the 38th Parallel in a blitzkrieg maneuver. There was no doubt that the South Koreans, unaided, soon would fall. MacArthur's job was to try to get enough outside troops onto the rocky peninsula to hold at least a beachhead.

GEN. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR

He succeeded. The Reds came within 40 miles of the key port of Pusan, upon which U. N. forces converged, but soon the flow of battle was reversed. In September, a surprise landing at Inchon, masterminded by MacArthur, sent the Communists on the run. It appeared that the war might be won by Christmas.

Then came "impossible" assignment Number Two. Out of their sanctuary in Manchuria — which MacArthur was not authorized to bomb — the Chinese Communists poured hundreds of thousands of fresh troops against the Allies. This unforeseen development created a "new war," MacArthur said, as he retreated.

In nominating Secretary of State Acheson as outstanding personality in foreign affairs, many editors noted the controversy which has enveloped the Cabinet member all year. In January, he was under fire for adopting a policy (later reversed) of keeping hands off Formosa. His department was attacked by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy for allegedly harboring Communists. When Alger Hiss was found guilty of perjury, Secretary Acheson expressed sympathy for the former State Department associate — a statement which evoked widespread criticism. In fact, the "Battle of Acheson" was one of the hottest stories in Washington in 1950.

Labor's Peace Formula

In voting Reuther as outstanding in labor and Wilson in industry, the editors had in mind the precedent-making labor-management agreement reached May 23, when a five-year contract was adopted. This pact, covering nearly 250,000 employees, gave auto workers at General Motors a raise, pensions, and a cost-of-living formula by which future wages would be measured.

The medical miracles worked by the hormones ACTH and cortisone were reflected in the selection of Dr. Kendall and Hench in science. These hormones have spectacularly treated a wide assortment of chronic ailments including arthritis, asthmas and rheumatic fever. A dramatic new use — for persons with burns which previously have always been fatal — was announced just as the two doctors were arriving at Stockholm, Sweden, to receive the Nobel Prize in medicine and physiology for their work.

Faulkner, Jolson and Mesta

Another Nobel Prize winner, William Faulkner, won the editors' recognition in the field of literature. The 53-year-old native of Oxford, Miss., has given the world a sharp insight into his South in such memorable novels as "Sanctuary," "The Sound and the Fury," "Sartoris" and "Intruder in the Dust."

After completing a strenuous tour of Korea, entertaining troops up front, the veteran singer and comedian, Al Jolson, collapsed in a San Francisco hotel room and died at age 64. Noting his outstanding sacrifices for the GIs in the last war as well as this, the editors named him top figure in the entertainment world.

When Perle Mesta was appointed U. S. minister to Luxembourg last year, much of her reputation was based on parties she had sponsored in Washington. She has won the admiration of Luxembourg, however, and is credited with having built that small country into a tourist spot for American troops abroad. Key character in the hit Broadway musical, "Call Me Madam," is said to be patterned after Mrs. Mesta.

By JOHN L. SPRINGER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

This bloody outbreak, which started June 25 when North Koreans invaded South Korea, was voted the year's major story by editors of Associated Press newspapers.

Virtually every editor gave pre-eminent position to the war. Viewed from the American military angle alone, it ranks first: For the United States it began as a "police action" with the dispatch of troops to halt the invasion, but it quickly became the fifth greatest war in the nation's history. What made it overwhelmingly significant was that in far off Korea Communist troops clashed openly with United Nations forces. It raised higher the barrier between Communist and anti-Communist countries. It threatened to involve much of the world.

Worsening U. S.-Russian relations were reflected throughout the list of the ten top stories selected by the editors.

The ten stories:

1. — THE KOREAN WAR. First reports indicated it might be merely another border skirmish. But the Communists sliced through the southern republic's defenses and threatened to take over the entire country. However, the U. N. Security Council charged aggression and urged its members to help put down the uprising. While the North Koreans continued to gain ground, U. N. forces under Gen. MacArthur built up strength. In September, MacArthur's men swept northward and U. N. prestige climbed to its highest point. But then occurred the development which editors termed the second greatest of the year:

2. — CHINA ENTERS THE WAR. U. S. intelligence agents knew the Chinese Communists were massing troops along their Korean frontier but did not know they planned to intervene. In November, however, they struck in force. Badly-outnumbered U. N. troops managed to extricate themselves.

3. — ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF TRUMAN. The President napped on the afternoon of Nov. 1 in the upstairs bedroom of Blair House. Suddenly guns barked. The President looked out on a scene of confusion: Two gunmen of the small Puerto Rican nationalist movement, had come to try to assassinate him. In his defense, one guard was shot and two injured. One gunman died by the Blair House steps; the other was wounded and captured.

4. — REPUBLICAN GAINS AND RE-ELECTION OF TAFT. In November, the United States elected a new House of Representatives. Charges of leftist sympathy became the major issue in scores of contests. When the smoke cleared, the Democrats had only a precarious control of the new 82nd Congress. The most spectacular victory was that of Robert A. Taft, Ohio's senior senator, a top Republican leader and outstanding administration critic. As co-author of the Taft-Hartley law, he was attacked by organized labor. But he won out over the Democratic candidate, Joseph T. Ferguson, by more than 400,000 votes — 20 times his margin of victory when he was last elected in 1944.

5. — THE UNITED STATES REARMS. The growing strain in our relations with Russia was reflected in rapid increases in defense expenditures, calling up of reserves, expanding of draft calls, reactivation of "moth-balled" warships. New controls were placed on non-defense industries. The word "rationing" came back into the vocabulary. As the year ended, it seemed obvious that even stricter clamps to meet the emergency were on the way.

6. — SENATOR McCARTHY'S CHARGES. One of the most controversial figures of 1950 was the young senator from Wisconsin Joseph R. McCarthy. He stepped into the spotlight in March with charges that the State Department had become a haven for Reds and fellow-travelers. He demanded that Secretary of State Dean Acheson be fired. Soon everybody, it seemed, was in the act: The President refused to permit FBI files to be examined. Owen Lattimore denied McCarthy's statement that he was the top "Soviet espionage agent" in the U. S. Former Communist Louis Budenz supported some of McCarthy's charges. Former Secretaries of State Marshall and Byrnes denied some. McCarthy's campaign was given added significance by what editors regarded as the year's next most important story:

7. — THE ALGER HISS CASE AND OTHER SPY TRIALS. In a second drawn-out trial, Hiss denied that he had ever turned over secret State Department documents to Whittaker Chambers, then a Communist, in 1938. Chambers introduced evidence that Hiss had given him such documents for transmittal to Russia. Who was lying? Hiss, President Roosevelt's adviser at Yalta, or Chambers, who had denounced Communism and become a top editor of Time Magazine for a time? A jury decided Hiss was lying. It shocked the nation to learn that men in such high places could be the agents of Red Russia. Other trials of alleged Soviet-helpers featured the news of 1950, especially that of Judith Coplon, the Brooklyn girl sentenced to 15 years as a spy. A court later found, however, that the methods the F. B. I. used to trap Miss Coplon were illegal and a new trial loomed.

8. — TRUMAN ORDERS CONSTRUCTION OF THE H-BOMB. It was a fateful decision to make, but Russia dictated it. Insisting that the U. S. must maintain its atomic lead over the Soviets, the President on January 31 ordered work to proceed on the hydrogen bomb, theoretically 1,000 times more devastating than the A-bomb which razed Hiroshima.

9. — THE "MERCY KILLING" TRIAL OF DR. SANDER. When Dr. Hermann Sander went on trial in a Manchester N. H. court in February for the slaying of Mrs. Abbe Borrotto, in death-bed agony from cancer, many persons thought that the question of whether it is ever legal for an individual to take another's life might be decided. But Dr. Sander did not base his defense on those grounds; he said that the woman died a natural death, his mind snapped, he injected air into her veins. The jury acquitted him.

10. — BRINKS HOLDUP IN BOSTON. Supposedly the place was impregnable, as any place where the receipts of armored bank trucks were counted ought to be. But on January 17 well-briefed robbers found ways to open doors and escaped with $1,500,000.

Other stories of the year in their order of importance, as voted by the editors:

The Long Island Rail Road wreck at Richmond Hill, N. Y., on Nov. 22, in which 78 were killed.

The South Amboy, N. J., munitions barge explosion May 19 when nearly a million pounds of anti-tank and anti-personnel mines blasted the city and killed 31.

Gradual evolvement of plans by the 12 foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Council to provide joint defense against aggression.

MacArthur Voted Year's No. 1 News Maker

AP Newsfeatures

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR was the outstanding newsmaker of 1950.

The man who was confronted with two "impossible" military tasks within six months, one of the great military leaders of the times and one of its most controversial political figures, was given his news designation by editors of Associated Press newspapers in a poll on the year's outstanding events and personalities.

The poll was conducted when MacArthur's "win the war" offensive in Korea already had bogged down before the Chinese Reds, and United Nations forces had begun their flight down the peninsula.

Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, who overcame strong labor union opposition to win re-election by a thumping majority and achieve nationwide recognition as "Mr. Republican," was voted the year's outstanding personality in politics.

Leaders in Other Fields

Others voted as key newsmakers were:

FOREIGN AFFAIRS — Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

LABOR — Walter Reuther, head of the CIO's powerful Auto Workers Union.

LITERATURE — Novelist William Faulkner.

ENTERTAINMENT — Al Jolson.

WOMAN OF THE YEAR — Perle Mesta.

Nomination of MacArthur as outstanding news maker jibed with editors' selection of the Korean war as the year's main news event. MacArthur, commander of the Allied occupation forces in Japan, also became the leader of the United Nations troops put together to stem the invasion of South Korea by the Communists.

MacArthur's First Task

He got his first "impossible" assignment soon after the North Koreans burst through the 38th Parallel in a blitzkrieg maneuver. There was no doubt that the South Koreans, unaided, soon would fall. Divorces Decline In Allegany Co.

The 1950 total shows that for the third straight year in Allegany County the number of divorces decreased.

However, marriage licenses issued at the Court House showed a comeback from 1949 when a drop was noted.

This year, according to figures in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court, 206 couples severed the marital knot while 3,693 were given marriage licenses.

The year 1947 topped the past four in the number of divorces granted in Circuit Court when 410 decrees were awarded.

In 1948, 340 decrees were granted; 240 in 1949 compared to the 206 this year.

In 1948 marriage licenses totaled 4,101 and last year, 3,391.

The top months for divorces this year were November and April with 24 decrees awarded in each. High for marriage licenses was July instead of the traditional nuptial month of June. A total of 454 were issued in July.

Plan New Insurance Dividend For Veterans

The Veterans Administration is considering issuing another cash dividend on their GI insurance policies early next year. Thousands of local veterans would benefit.

VA officials in Washington said tentative plans are being made to distribute insurance dividends that may total as high as one billion dollars.

An official of the VA said approximately 6,000,000 veterans would be eligible. He added that estimates of the amount of money available for the disbursement vary from $500,000,000 to slightly more than $1,000,000,000.

Under plans being considered, the proposed dividend payment will represent policy earnings for the years 1948-51. Policies which lapsed prior to 1948 would be excluded.

age in our exports during 1951. Imports, however, should rise further. Total foreign trade should not be much changed, but the exporters will be on the short end of this business with the importers gaining.

25. It will become more difficult to convince Congress that additional heavy credits should be granted abroad except for war supplies.

26. As was the case this year, many domestic manufacturers will feel increasing competition from foreign merchandise. The cry for increased tariff protection will be heard again in the land.

27. Business and financial forecasts for next year are not based on the thought that World War III will start in 1951. Russia is certainly heading for war, but we do not believe she now wants it in Europe. She will be satisfied to have her satellites continue taking unexpected jabs at us, while the Politburo boys hand out the soothing syrup. But we may see another episode like "Korea" in 1951.

More Deficit Financing

28. The first half of 1951 may actually see a budget surplus as a result of high national income and increased taxation. Later, if Congress goes along with the Administration's plans for huge rearmament, a federal deficit will arise during the last half of the year.

29. As a result of the preceding prediction, money supplies should not begin to rise until after business has turned down. Increases at such a time are not likely to have much effect on prices.

30. Government bonds will be held tightly between the floor of Federal Reserve support purchases and the ceiling of Federal Reserve anti-inflation sales. Under such conditions, price changes should be negligible.

31. A great deal will be heard in 1951 about giving the Federal Reserve Board powerful controls over member bank loaning policies. Congress is not likely to pass such controls, however, unless commodity prices go a lot higher, or World War III comes.

Stock Market, Bond Outlook

32. I see nothing now to indicate that we are entering a period of improved international relations. The danger of war remains. Until it disappears, wise people will move out of large bomb-vulnerable cities and avoid having investments in such areas.

33. The stock averages may work somewhat higher during the first half of next year, but sometime during 1951 they will sell lower than current quotations.

34. Stocks now in the best position for 1951 should be those that have not been popular as inflation hedges in the past months. I like good chain store stocks.

35. Investment Trust funds, pension funds, and insurance companies will provide an excellent backlog of demand for sound income stocks where good values can be demonstrated.

36. The successful investor next year will be the one who follows a carefully planned investment program. Such a program will emphasize diversification — not only by company and industry, but also by quality. Overconcentration will not pay in 1951.

37. Highest-grade taxable corporate bonds should hold in a narrow price range during 1951, but I see no reason for individual investors buying them. For my forecast for long-term government bonds, see No. 30 above. The only corporation bonds which interest me are convertibles.

38. With income taxes slated to increase in 1951, tax-exempt bonds should continue in good demand. There has been some speculation in these, however, and any downward change in the tax outlook might cause a sudden turnabout in prices for municipals. Investors should see to it that their bond maturities are carefully diversified, with some part of their bond funds maturing each year.

Real Estate Activity

39. The real estate outlook for 1951 will be strongly affected by curbs on mortgage credit. Much of the recent boom was the result of easy credit—almost nothing down and small easy payments for years hence.

40. New home construction will suffer a greater decline than other lines. Nonessential commercial building will also be hit.

41. The coming decline in new building will throw a wet blanket over speculation in vacant suburban lots.

42 The scare caused by the Korean-China War and fears of an early outbreak in other sections will adversely affect the demand for big city real estate. Lower business volumes and the draft next year will also curtail such demand.

43. Small sustenance farms should hold up well in prices as demand will be spurred by those seeking refuge outside the big cities. Demand for large commercial farms, however, should weaken as the year progresses.

44. The swing back toward rent control will act as a further damper on new building. There is no incentive to build homes for rental income.

45. Tighter credit controls will make it more difficult to purchase older residential properties, and the prices for these should weaken.

46. As building volume slackens in 1951, the quality of available materials and workmanship should improve. This will help those who have saved their month and can pay for at least half the cost of a new home.

Defense Orders And Politics

47. Those who can do so should attempt to get defense orders as a means of holding up production volumes and reducing overhead. Not too much profit from such war business should be expected, however, as these contracts will be subject to tightfisted renegotiations.

48. The political outlook for 1951 will be completely dominated by jockeying for position in the Presidential race for 1952. Most of Congress' time will be spend on international problems; but either war or peace could come early in 1951, which could make many of the above forecasts useless.

49. In domestic matters, despite recent election changes in party alignment, Congress will still be dominated by a conservative coalition of Northern Republicans and "unregenerated" Southern Democrats. When the heat is on in a tough fight, the North-South coalition will still be able to curb onslaughts by New Dealers.

50. We are gradually headed for a one-party system and finally a dictatorship. The Republicans will sometimes win with the slogan "Had Enough?"; but their reign will be short-lived. Too many persons are following the pernicious doctrine of asking for higher wages and shorter hours, speculating in stocks and goods, growing rich on paper, voting Democratic for selfish reasons and letting the country go to the dogs, war or no war!

32. I see nothing now to indicate that we are entering a period of improved international relations. The danger of war remains. Until it disappears, wise people will move out of large bomb-vulnerable cities and avoid having investments in such areas.

33. The stock averages may work somewhat higher during the first half of next year, but sometime during 1951 they will sell lower than current quotations.

34. Stocks now in the best position for 1951 should be those that have not been popular as inflation hedges in the past months. I like good chain store stocks.

35. Investment Trust funds, pension funds, and insurance companies will provide an excellent backlog of demand for sound income stocks where good values can be demonstrated.

36. The successful investor next year will be the one who follows a carefully planned investment program. Such a program will emphasize diversification — not only by company and industry, but also by quality. Overconcentration will not pay in 1951.

37. Highest-grade taxable corporate bonds should hold in a narrow price range during 1951, but I see no reason for individual investors buying them. For my forecast for long-term government bonds, see No. 30 above. The only corporation bonds which interest me are convertibles.

38. With income taxes slated to increase in 1951, tax-exempt bonds should continue in good demand. There has been some speculation in these, however, and any downward change in the tax outlook might cause a sudden turnabout in prices for municipals. Investors should see to it that their bond maturities are carefully diversified, with some part of their bond funds maturing each year.

Real Estate Activity

39. The real estate outlook for 1951 will be strongly affected by curbs on mortgage credit. Much of the recent boom was the result of easy credit—almost nothing down and small easy payments for years hence.

40. New home construction will suffer a greater decline than other lines. Nonessential commercial building will also be hit.

41. The coming decline in new building will throw a wet blanket over speculation in vacant suburban lots.

42. The scare caused by the Korean-China War and fears of an early outbreak in other sections will adversely affect the demand for big city real estate. Lower business volumes and the draft next year will also curtail such demand.

43. Small sustenance farms should hold up well in prices as demand will be spurred by those seeking refuge outside the big cities. Demand for large commercial farms, however, should weaken as the year progresses.

44. The swing back toward rent control will act as a further damper on new building. There is no incentive to build homes for rental income.

45. Tighter credit controls will make it more difficult to purchase older residential properties, and the prices for these should weaken.

46. As building volume slackens in 1951, the quality of available materials and workmanship should improve. This will help those who have saved their month and can pay for at least half the cost of a new home.

Defense Orders And Politics

47. Those who can do so should attempt to get defense orders as a means of holding up production volumes and reducing overhead. Not too much profit from such war business should be expected, however, as these contracts will be subject to tightfisted renegotiations.

48. The political outlook for 1951 will be completely dominated by jockeying for position in the Presidential race for 1952. Most of Congress' time will be spend on international problems; but either war or peace could come early in 1951, which could make many of the above forecasts useless.

49. In domestic matters, despite recent election changes in party alignment, Congress will still be dominated by a conservative coalition of Northern Republicans and "unregenerated" Southern Democrats. When the heat is on in a tough fight, the North-South coalition will still be able to curb onslaughts by New Dealers.

50. We are gradually headed for a one-party system and finally a dictatorship. The Republicans will sometimes win with the slogan "Had Enough?"; but their reign will be short-lived. Too many persons are following the pernicious doctrine of asking for higher wages and shorter hours, speculating in stocks and goods, growing rich on paper, voting Democratic for selfish reasons and letting the country go to the dogs, war or no war!

California, Oklahoma, Texas Favored To Win Bowl Games

Bradley Defeats St. Louis Five In Sugar Bowl Final

N. C. State, Oklahoma Aggies Win Tourneys

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (AP)—Two Missouri Valley unbeatens—Bradley and Oklahoma A&M—today were set to move up the basketball ladder following the unexpected fall of Kentucky.

Bradley, ranked second behind Kentucky in last week's Associated Press poll, captured the coveted Sugar Bowl title Saturday night in New Orleans by nipping St. Louis, 64-59.

Oklahoma A&M, rated No. 3, wrapped up the all-college tourney at Oklahoma City Friday with a 54-41 victory over Arkansas.

Kentucky, which had won six straight, fell before an inspired St. Louis team in the semi-finals of the Sugar classic Friday evening, 43-42. The Wildcats, however, rebounded Saturday to whip Syracuse, 69-59, and take third-place honors.

Three Win 12 Straight

So, with West Virginia, Michigan State and Siena losing Saturday, the thinning list of major or near-major unbeaten teams dwindled to 17. Oklahoma A&M, Bradley and Wyoming top this select group, each having won 12 straight games.

Two other unbeatens — Murray State of Kentucky (10-0) and Evansville (9-0)—will tangle Wednesday in an Ohio Valley Conference tilt. Hence, the list will diminish even further.

North Carolina State, Kansas State and Wyoming also added tournament conquests to their list of victories.

NC State (10-1), outlasted a surprising Colgate quintet, 85-76, to retain its Dixie classic title. Kansas State (9-2) became the first team to win two Big Seven tourneys by tripping Minnesota 70-62. And Wyoming defeated Utah, 55-42, to take the Skyline Conference Tourney.

West Virginia Halted

Arizona (8-1) dealt West Virginia its first setback in seven starts, edging the Mountaineers, 68-67, at Morgantown, W. Va. A desperation shot by Jack Howell in the final 20 seconds was ruled good because of interference by Joe Ryan, who touched the ball as it entered the basket.

Princeton (6-0) ended Michigan State's four-game run with a 52-46 verdict over the Spartans at East Lansing. Little Lemoyne of New York stopped Siena after nine in a row, 53-47.

Now the unbeaten list includes: (only those with four or more victories)

TWELVE GAMES
Bradley, Oklahoma A. & M. and Wyoming.

TEN GAMES
Murray (Ky.) State.

NINE GAMES
Evansville.

EIGHT GAMES
Hamline, Villanova, Cornell and Duquesne.

SEVEN GAMES

SIX GAMES

FOUR GAMES
Providence.

There also was plenty of non-tournament action Saturday.

In the east, St. John's of Brooklyn ran roughshod over San Francisco, 67-47, in the feature of a Madison Square Garden intersectional twin-bill. The opener saw Manhattan drub San Jose State, 70-54.

Bonnies Bag Sixth

Cornell's Big Red rang up No. 8 against a sound Canisius club, 58-49, in Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium. St. Bonaventure also remained undefeated with a 62-57 victory over Western Kentucky in the first game.

A well-balanced Notre Dame attack overcame Northwestern, 76-73, in a midwestern thriller. Other midwest action saw Penn State upend Ohio State, 67-57, and Iowa whip Pittsburgh, 73-66.

Dick Ridgway, UCLA's sophomore star, scored 20 points to lead his team to a 95-66 romp over Louisiana State. In another western contest, California ripped Georgia for the second straight time 78-45.

Tropical Park Strike Is Off

Purses Are Hiked $40,000 By Track

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 31 (AP) — The Florida Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association today unanimously accepted an offer of a $40,000 increase in purse distribution at Tropical Park race course and called off its proposed strike that would have become effective Tuesday.

The HBPA's 10-man executive committee and Nathan E. Herzfeld, president of Tropical Park, conferred after a two-hour meeting of some 200 members of the association. Herzfeld offered to increase purses $200 a race retroactive to Dec. 23.

He first offered a $28,000 increase, which would have raised purses to a minimum of $2,000 effective Jan. 1 for the last 14 days of the meeting.

The horsemen originally demanded a $300-per race minimum purse increase for all races of less than $5,000. The increase would have amounted to $54,000 with a $2,100 minimum.

Herzfeld told the membership called back after it had adjourned its first meeting, that he wanted to stay in business "a long, long time."

"I was sorry this controversy has come up and in the interest of the horsemen and my track I am willing to take this step in offering an olive branch."

Bucs' Advance Sale Runs Ahead Of 1950

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 31 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club today reported advance sales for 1951 tickets are running ahead of 1950 on the same date.

The National League Bucs finished in last place in 1950 but a club spokesman said the big advance sale showed the fans still are loyal. Ticket sales now total $580,529, compared to $522,961 on the same date last year. A club spokesman predicted sales will approach $700,000 by Jan. 6.

Louis And Beshore To Meet Wednesday

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (AP) — Joe Louis, aiming to show the fans more punching than they saw the last time he fought, meets Freddie Beshore of Harrisburg, Pa., in a ten-rounder in Detroit's Olympia Stadium Wednesday night.

This is the second step on the comeback trail for the old Brown Bomber since he was conquered by champion Ezzard Charles. In his first outing against Argentina's Cecar Brion Nov. 29, the former heavyweight king won but his victory was disappointing.

Colts' Grid Player Is Severely Slashed

BROCKTON, Mass., Dec. 31 (INS)—Donald Colo, 24, ex-Brown football star and now a professional player with the Baltimore Colts, was severely slashed today in a fight with another man outside a Brockton night club.

Colo's nose was nearly cut off and his lips were badly lacerated as his assailant swung a piece of jagged glass. The six foot three inch, 235-pound football player was taken to Goddard Hospital where doctors strove to save his face from permanent disfigurement.

Later, police arrested Edward J. Robillard, 23, of Brockton, in another local night club and charged him with assault.

"Mum Mum" Passes On Jack George Starring
Ball May Become Exec License Boost Sought

By C. V. BURNS

Final rites were held yesterday at Barton for Mrs. Elizabeth Schramm, 70, widow of Henry Schramm, who died at her home there on Friday.

Mrs. Schramm was the mother of Karl Schramm and the late Harrison "Base" Schramm, who starred on Barton High School's championship soccer and basketball teams a quarter of a century ago.

Mrs. Schramm seldom missed a game in which her boys played and in 1923, 1924 and 1925 when the Braves swept through everything to three state soccer championships she was on hand to witness all of the triumphs.

In recent years Mrs. Schramm conducted a grocery-confectionery business in Barton. She was widely known as "Mum Mum" — a name which appeared on the window of her store.

Mrs. Schramm was an aunt of Ernie Schramm, the ex-Barton High soccer, basketball and baseball star, who now resides in Cumberland.

Jesse Manigault, who won the South Atlantic A. A. U. title here in 1949 without throwing a punch, is still considered the best amateur heavyweight in Baltimore.

Gene Smith, Washington's classy featherweight, will fight Bobby Bell, Youngstown, Ohio, on the Sonny Boy West benefit boxing card at Uline Arena, Washington, on Thursday night.

Smith, who boxed here as an amateur flyweight in 1948 and decisioned "Sonny" Lafferty and knocked out "Socky" Lewis of Pittsburgh, has won 22 consecutive fights since turning pro—16 via the KO route.

Gene is now managed by Irving Cohen, who pilots Rocky Graziano.

Jack George, the sharpshooter who performed for St. John's High School, Washington, in several games here against LaSalle, is now the scoring ace of LaSalle College's (Philadelphia) basketball team.

When LaSalle whipped Idaho the other night, Jack racked up 21 points on seven fielders and 7-14 fouls.

A bill calling for an increase in the cost of the county resident hunting license will be placed before the General Assembly soon to meet in Annapolis.

The present fee of $1.25 has long been in force since the Maryland Game and Fish Department was organized and the cost of labor and material has skyrocketed since then.

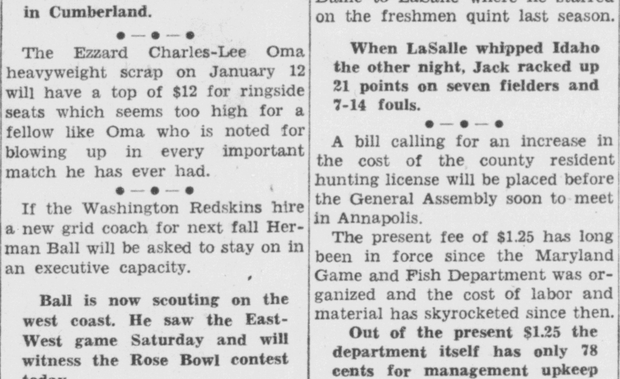
Out of the present $1.25 the department itself has only 78 cents for management upkeep after the clerk's fee and the actual cost of the license itself are deducted.

This is less than the actual cost of placing one rabbit or a single quail into the field.

The department will ask for an increase of 50 cents, making the cost of the proposed license $1.75.

RAMS HIT THE ROAD

NEW YORK—(AP)—Fordham University's football team will play six games on the road next season. The Rams big trip will be in their opening game when they go to Columbia, Mo., to tackle Missouri. The rivals last met in 1942. Other away games are with Dartmouth, Holy Cross, Boston College, Syracuse and Temple. San Francisco, Georgetown and NYU will be met here in the Polo Grounds.



EARNS ALL-STAR BERTH — Joe Geri, above, workhorse of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League, was honored by being selected as a back on the 1950 Associated Press All Pro Football team, Geri, 5-foot-10, 185-pounder, played college football at Georgia. Joe ranked third among the N. F. L. ground gainers this season. Johnny Lujack, of Chicago Bears; Doak Walker, Detroit Lions, and Marion Motley, Cleveland Browns, were the other backs named on the All Pro eleven.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (INS) — A happy and prosperous new year to you all. And with that off our chest let's take a look at what the biggest "if" year in sports has to offer.

The "if," of course, depends on Uncle Sam, Joe Stalin and a few other unpredictable quantities.

If there is no total mobilization and if there is no World War III, we may expect to see:

Two more hot pennant races with the Giants, Dodgers and Phils battling it out right down to the wire in the National League and with the Red Sox, Yanks, Tigers and Indians again disputing ownership of the American League flag.

Draft or no draft, we confidently predict that Ewell Blackwell of the Reds will be the pitcher of the year. The long string bean has fully recovered from the loss of a kidney and the hitters will welcome him about the same way they would a bad case of the mumps.

We also feel confident that the Cardinals' Stan Musial will lead the parade of hitters in the National and that Ted Williams, with elbow mended, will take charge in the American.

Racing is due for a tremendous year and at this early date we are climbing right out on a long limb to predict that Battlefield will win the triple crown—Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont. (Bill Corum, please note, and save yourself some dough.)

Early in the year Toronto's Maple Leafs will win the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world's best in hockey. Hockey, like other sports, has been playing boys instead of men, but even so these boys are tops.

About the same time Kentucky should prove it is the best that college basketball has to offer.

Australia will continue to hold the Davis cup. Our boys, providing no wide-spread war intervenes, will go down yonder to get knocked off in the finals.

Some of our older tennis stars—we are treading on dangerous ground mentioning age in this connection—will decide to put their short skirts in hock for duration, thus giving some of the younger element a chance to show their stuff to better advantage.

Sam Snead will continue to be top hand in the professional golfing ranks. And Frank Stranahan, the simon pure strong boy, who plays more golf than any pro, will take charge of the amateurs.

The fight racket promises to be more putrid than ever and that's really saying something.

Ray Robinson will win the middleweight title provided Jake LaMotta doesn't think up another excuse for not meeting him. Ezzard Charles will continue to rule the heavyweights and should fate and the International Boxing Club decree, will belt Joe Louis out if Charles gets another crack at him.

Willie Pep and Sandy Saddler again will battle for the featherweight crown and we don't know yet whose turn it is to win. We are inclined to think Willie may grab another big pay day and hang up the gloves.

But remember, we said this will be strictly an if year.

11 Football Contests Today Expected To Attract 450,000

100,000 To Witness Bears And Michigan In Rose Bowl Battle

Some 450,000 people are slated to pay around $2,000,000 to witness this star-spangled encore in the form of 11 bowl games stretching from California to Florida.

Millions of others will hear the details from the comforts of their living rooms through radio broadcasts. There will be no network telecasts.

In California, scene of the Rose Bowl, it will be fair with temperatures in the 60's. Even higher temperatures are forecast for the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans and the Orange Bowl in Miami. Dallas' Cotton Bowl can expect cold and cloudy.

These are the four bowls matching top-ranking elevens. The Rose, Sugar and Cotton combatants are all paid up members of football's "First Ten." The Orange bowl at Miami matches the tenth team, Clemson, against No. 15, Miami (Fla.).

Sooners Are Favored

The recognized national champion, Oklahoma, is playing its third straight engagement at New Orleans, a 6½ point favorite over once-beaten but quick-hitting Kentucky, seventh nationally.

The Cotton Bowl at Dallas boasts two of the highest standing powers in Texas, No. 3, beaten only by Oklahoma, and Tennessee, No. 4, upset early in the campaign by Mississippi state. The Texans, who will outweigh the Vols by nearly 20 pounds, are seven-point favorites.

The tradition-loaded Rose Bowl at Pasadena sends California's unbeaten but once tied Golden Bears against Michigan's Big Ten champions. The Bears, fifth ranked, are favored by three points over a ninth-placed Wolverine team that lost three games and tied one.

Should California prevail, it would mark the Pacific Coast's first triumph in the five-year series with the Big Ten. The Coast dropped the first four meetings.

100,000 To Attend

The largest crowd, 100,000, is expected to attend the Pasadena game where the big question seems to be whether the rugged Bears can halt Michigan's Chuck Ortmann, one of the most gifted backs of the year.

The veteran California Coach, Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf, is counting on doing just that and then beating the Wolverines' ears back with such racehorse operatives as Jim Monachino, Pete Schabarum and Johnny Olszewski.

At New Orleans, where 82,500 are expected to turn out, Oklahoma will defend modern football's longest winning streak — a skein of 31 games.

Despite some close calls, the Sooners came through a nine-game schedule without mishap and appeared to be growing stronger at the season's end. Fullback Leon Heath is the big gun in the Oklahoma arsenal.

Kentucky, which swept through 10 games before losing to Tennessee, hopes to crack the Sooners' success streak through the passing of Babe Parilli, who threw 23 touchdown passes during the season, and Bill Leskovar, a fullback who averaged six yards a whack.

Clemson Is Choice

At Miami, Clemson rules a thin one-point favorite over the hometown heroes from the University of Miami. Each team played nine games, won eight and tied one.

In the four big bowls, only Oklahoma has a perfect record. Wyoming's Cowboys, who are finding it hard to accustom themselves to Florida's weather, carry a perfect 8-0 mark into the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville against Washington & Lee, beaten twice in ten games. Wyoming is a touchdown favorite.

Culmone Equals Miller's Mark

Closes Out Year With 388 Winners

HAVANA, Dec. 31 (AP)—Joe Culmone today equalled but failed to break the all-time jockey record of riding 388 winners in a season, set by Walter Miller in 1906. Culmone had three winners on Oriental Park's eight-race card.

Culmone, who began the day in a tie with Willie Shoemaker for the 1950 riding title at 385 victories each, won the second race on Misle and got credit for another triumph when his mount in the fourth race, Airsis, figured in a dead heat for first with Chestwick.

The 19-year-old Sicilian then clicked for the third time on Shurleys Pride in the fifth contest.

Willie Shoemaker, riding at Agua Caliente, Mexico, today was just one away from the Culmone-Miller record after victories in two of the first three races. He failed in the next three, however, but had five more races to go.

Wards Have Boy

LANDOVER, Md., Dec. 31 (AP) — Bob Ward, Maryland's All-America guard, is a proud papa. His wife, the former Mary Ellen Zalezak of Union, N. J., gave birth to a seven-pound 11-ounce boy last Friday.

Ward, from Elizabeth, N. J., is the first Maryland player ever to be chosen on the All-America squad.

TEN TIGHT ONES

NEW YORK—(AP)—The American League had ten 1-0 games during the 1950 season and Vic Raschi, ace of the world champion Yankee staff, pitched two of them.

He blanked the St. Louis Browns with three hits and pitched a three-hitter against the Indians.

Randy Gumpert of the White Sox figured in three 1-0 games. He beat Hank Wyse and the Athletics 1-0 on four hits and lost 1-0 duels to Sam Zoldak of the Indians and Hal Newhouser of the Tigers.

California, Oklahoma, Texas Favored To Win Bowl Games

Bradley Defeats St. Louis Five In Sugar Bowl Final

N. C. State, Oklahoma Aggies Win Tourneys

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (AP)—Two Missouri Valley unbeatens—Bradley and Oklahoma A&M—today were set to move up the basketball ladder following the unexpected fall of Kentucky.

Bradley, ranked second behind Kentucky in last week's Associated Press poll, captured the coveted Sugar Bowl title Saturday night in New Orleans by nipping St. Louis, 64-59.

Oklahoma A&M, rated No. 3, wrapped up the all-college tourney at Oklahoma City Friday with a 54-41 victory over Arkansas.

Kentucky, which had won six straight, fell before an inspired St. Louis team in the semi-finals of the Sugar classic Friday evening, 43-42. The Wildcats, however, rebounded Saturday to whip Syracuse, 69-59, and take third-place honors.

Three Win 12 Straight

So, with West Virginia, Michigan State and Siena losing Saturday, the thinning list of major or near-major unbeaten teams dwindled to 17. Oklahoma A&M, Bradley and Wyoming top this select group, each having won 12 straight games.

Two other unbeatens — Murray State of Kentucky (10-0) and Evansville (9-0)—will tangle Wednesday in an Ohio Valley Conference tilt. Hence, the list will diminish even further.

North Carolina State, Kansas State and Wyoming also added tournament conquests to their list of victories.

NC State (10-1), outlasted a surprising Colgate quintet, 85-76, to retain its Dixie classic title. Kansas State (9-2) became the first team to win two Big Seven tourneys by tripping Minnesota 70-62. And Wyoming defeated Utah, 55-42, to take the Skyline Conference Tourney.

West Virginia Halted

Arizona (8-1) dealt West Virginia its first setback in seven starts, edging the Mountaineers, 68-67, at Morgantown, W. Va. A desperation shot by Jack Howell in the final 20 seconds was ruled good because of interference by Joe Ryan, who touched the ball as it entered the basket.

Princeton (6-0) ended Michigan State's four-game run with a 52-46 verdict over the Spartans at East Lansing. Little Lemoyne of New York stopped Siena after nine in a row, 53-47.

Now the unbeaten list includes: (only those with four or more victories)

TWELVE GAMES
Bradley, Oklahoma A. & M. and Wyoming.

TEN GAMES

NINE GAMES
Evansville.

EIGHT GAMES
Hamline, Villanova, Cornell and Duquesne.

SEVEN GAMES

FOUR GAMES

There also was plenty of non-tournament action Saturday.

In the east, St. John's of Brooklyn ran roughshod over San Francisco, 67-47, in the feature of a Madison Square Garden intersectional twin-bill. The opener saw Manhattan drub San Jose State, 70-54.

Bonnies Bag Sixth

Cornell's Big Red rang up No. 8 against a sound Canisius club, 58-49, in Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium. St. Bonaventure also remained undefeated with a 62-57 victory over Western Kentucky in the first game.

A well-balanced Notre Dame attack overcame Northwestern, 76-73, in a midwestern thriller. Other midwest action saw Penn State upend Ohio State, 67-57, and Iowa whip Pittsburgh, 73-66.

Dick Ridgway, UCLA's sophomore star, scored 20 points to lead his team to a 95-66 romp over Louisiana State. In another western contest, California ripped Georgia for the second straight time 78-45.

Tropical Park Strike Is Off

Purses Are Hiked $40,000 By Track

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 31 (AP) — The Florida Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association today unanimously accepted an offer of a $40,000 increase in purse distribution at Tropical Park race course and called off its proposed strike that would have become effective Tuesday.

The HBPA's 10-man executive committee and Nathan E. Herzfeld, president of Tropical Park, conferred after a two-hour meeting of some 200 members of the association. Herzfeld offered to increase purses $200 a race retroactive to Dec. 23.

He first offered a $28,000 increase, which would have raised purses to a minimum of $2,000 effective Jan. 1 for the last 14 days of the meeting.

The horsemen originally demanded a $300-per race minimum purse increase for all races of less than $5,000. The increase would have amounted to $54,000 with a $2,100 minimum.

Herzfeld told the membership called back after it had adjourned its first meeting, that he wanted to stay in business "a long, long time."

"I was sorry this controversy has come up and in the interest of the horsemen and my track I am willing to take this step in offering an olive branch."

Bucs' Advance Sale Runs Ahead Of 1950

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 31 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club today reported advance sales for 1951 tickets are running ahead of 1950 on the same date.

The National League Bucs finished in last place in 1950 but a club spokesman said the big advance sale showed the fans still are loyal. Ticket sales now total $580,529, compared to $522,961 on the same date last year. A club spokesman predicted sales will approach $700,000 by Jan. 6.

Louis And Beshore To Meet Wednesday

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (AP) — Joe Louis, aiming to show the fans more punching than they saw the last time he fought, meets Freddie Beshore of Harrisburg, Pa., in a ten-rounder in Detroit's Olympia Stadium Wednesday night.

This is the second step on the comeback trail for the old Brown Bomber since he was conquered by champion Ezzard Charles. In his first outing against Argentina's Cecar Brion Nov. 29, the former heavyweight king won but his victory was disappointing.

Colts' Grid Player Is Severely Slashed

BROCKTON, Mass., Dec. 31 (INS)—Donald Colo, 24, ex-Brown football star and now a professional player with the Baltimore Colts, was severely slashed today in a fight with another man outside a Brockton night club.

Colo's nose was nearly cut off and his lips were badly lacerated as his assailant swung a piece of jagged glass. The six foot three inch, 235-pound football player was taken to Goddard Hospital where doctors strove to save his face from permanent disfigurement.

Later, police arrested Edward J. Robillard, 23, of Brockton, in another local night club and charged him with assault.

By C. V. BURNS

Final rites were held yesterday at Barton for Mrs. Elizabeth Schramm, 70, widow of Henry Schramm, who died at her home there on Friday.

Mrs. Schramm was the mother of Karl Schramm and the late Harrison "Base" Schramm, who starred on Barton High School's championship soccer and basketball teams a quarter of a century ago.

Mrs. Schramm seldom missed a game in which her boys played and in 1923, 1924 and 1925 when the Braves swept through everything to three state soccer championships she was on hand to witness all of the triumphs.

In recent years Mrs. Schramm conducted a grocery-confectionery business in Barton. She was widely known as "Mum Mum" — a name which appeared on the window of her store.

Mrs. Schramm was an aunt of Ernie Schramm, the ex-Barton High soccer, basketball and baseball star, who now resides in Cumberland.

Gene Smith, Washington's classy featherweight, will fight Bobby Bell, Youngstown, Ohio, on the Sonny Boy West benefit boxing card at Uline Arena, Washington, on Thursday night.

Smith, who boxed here as an amateur flyweight in 1948 and decisioned "Sonny" Lafferty and knocked out "Socky" Lewis of Pittsburgh, has won 22 consecutive fights since turning pro—16 via the KO route.

Gene is now managed by Irving Cohen, who pilots Rocky Graziano.

Jack George, the sharpshooter who performed for St. John's High School, Washington, in several games here against LaSalle, is now the scoring ace of LaSalle College's (Philadelphia) basketball team.

When LaSalle whipped Idaho the other night, Jack racked up 21 points on seven fielders and 7-14 fouls.

A bill calling for an increase in the cost of the county resident hunting license will be placed before the General Assembly soon to meet in Annapolis.

The present fee of $1.25 has long been in force since the Maryland Game and Fish Department was organized and the cost of labor and material has skyrocketed since then.

Out of the present $1.25 the department itself has only 78 cents for management upkeep after the clerk's fee and the actual cost of the license itself are deducted.

This is less than the actual cost of placing one rabbit or a single quail into the field.

The department will ask for an increase of 50 cents, making the cost of the proposed license $1.75.

RAMS HIT THE ROAD

NEW YORK—(AP)—Fordham University's football team will play six games on the road next season. The Rams big trip will be in their opening game when they go to Columbia, Mo., to tackle Missouri. SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (INS) — A happy and prosperous new year to you all. And with that off our chest let's take a look at what the biggest "if" year in sports has to offer.

The "if," of course, depends on Uncle Sam, Joe Stalin and a few other unpredictable quantities.

If there is no total mobilization and if there is no World War III, we may expect to see:

Two more hot pennant races with the Giants, Dodgers and Phils battling it out right down to the wire in the National League and with the Red Sox, Yanks, Tigers and Indians again disputing ownership of the American League flag.

Draft or no draft, we confidently predict that Ewell Blackwell of the Reds will be the pitcher of the year. The long string bean has fully recovered from the loss of a kidney and the hitters will welcome him about the same way they would a bad case of the mumps.

We also feel confident that the Cardinals' Stan Musial will lead the parade of hitters in the National and that Ted Williams, with elbow mended, will take charge in the American.

Racing is due for a tremendous year and at this early date we are climbing right out on a long limb to predict that Battlefield will win the triple crown—Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont. (Bill Corum, please note, and save yourself some dough.)

Early in the year Toronto's Maple Leafs will win the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world's best in hockey. Hockey, like other sports, has been playing boys instead of men, but even so these boys are tops.

About the same time Kentucky should prove it is the best that college basketball has to offer.

Australia will continue to hold the Davis cup. Our boys, providing no wide-spread war intervenes, will go down yonder to get knocked off in the finals.

Some of our older tennis stars—we are treading on dangerous ground mentioning age in this connection—will decide to put their short skirts in hock for duration, thus giving some of the younger element a chance to show their stuff to better advantage.

Sam Snead will continue to be top hand in the professional golfing ranks. And Frank Stranahan, the simon pure strong boy, who plays more golf than any pro, will take charge of the amateurs.

The fight racket promises to be more putrid than ever and that's really saying something.

Ray Robinson will win the middleweight title provided Jake LaMotta doesn't think up another excuse for not meeting him. Ezzard Charles will continue to rule the heavyweights and should fate and the International Boxing Club decree, will belt Joe Louis out if Charles gets another crack at him.

Willie Pep and Sandy Saddler again will battle for the featherweight crown and we don't know yet whose turn it is to win. We are inclined to think Willie may grab another big pay day and hang up the gloves.

But remember, we said this will be strictly an if year.

11 Football Contests Today Expected To Attract 450,000

100,000 To Witness Bears And Michigan In Rose Bowl Battle

Some 450,000 people are slated to pay around $2,000,000 to witness this star-spangled encore in the form of 11 bowl games stretching from California to Florida.

Millions of others will hear the details from the comforts of their living rooms through radio broadcasts. There will be no network telecasts.

In California, scene of the Rose Bowl, it will be fair with temperatures in the 60's. Even higher temperatures are forecast for the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans and the Orange Bowl in Miami. Dallas' Cotton Bowl can expect cold and cloudy.

These are the four bowls matching top-ranking elevens. The Rose, Sugar and Cotton combatants are all paid up members of football's "First Ten." The Orange bowl at Miami matches the tenth team, Clemson, against No. 15, Miami (Fla.).

Sooners Are Favored

The recognized national champion, Oklahoma, is playing its third straight engagement at New Orleans, a 6½ point favorite over once-beaten but quick-hitting Kentucky, seventh nationally.

The Cotton Bowl at Dallas boasts two of the highest standing powers in Texas, No. 3, beaten only by Oklahoma, and Tennessee, No. 4, upset early in the campaign by Mississippi state. The Texans, who will outweigh the Vols by nearly 20 pounds, are seven-point favorites.

The tradition-loaded Rose Bowl at Pasadena sends California's unbeaten but once tied Golden Bears against Michigan's Big Ten champions. The Bears, fifth ranked, are favored by three points over a ninth-placed Wolverine team that lost three games and tied one.

Should California prevail, it would mark the Pacific Coast's first triumph in the five-year series with the Big Ten. The Coast dropped the first four meetings.

100,000 To Attend

The largest crowd, 100,000, is expected to attend the Pasadena game where the big question seems to be whether the rugged Bears can halt Michigan's Chuck Ortmann, one of the most gifted backs of the year.

The veteran California Coach, Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf, is counting on doing just that and then beating the Wolverines' ears back with such racehorse operatives as Jim Monachino, Pete Schabarum and Johnny Olszewski.

At New Orleans, where 82,500 are expected to turn out, Oklahoma will defend modern football's longest winning streak — a skein of 31 games.

Despite some close calls, the Sooners came through a nine-game schedule without mishap and appeared to be growing stronger at the season's end. Fullback Leon Heath is the big gun in the Oklahoma arsenal.

Kentucky, which swept through 10 games before losing to Tennessee, hopes to crack the Sooners' success streak through the passing of Babe Parilli, who threw 23 touchdown passes during the season, and Bill Leskovar, a fullback who averaged six yards a whack.

Clemson Is Choice

At Miami, Clemson rules a thin one-point favorite over the home-town heroes from the University of Miami. Each team played nine games, won eight and tied one.

In the four big bowls, only Oklahoma has a perfect record. Wyoming's Cowboys, who are, finding it hard to accustom themselves to Florida's weather, carry a perfect 8-0 mark into the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville against Washington & Lee, beaten twice in ten games. Wyoming is a touchdown favorite.

Culmone Equals Miller's Mark

Closes Out Year With 388 Winners

HAVANA, Dec. 31 (AP)—Joe Culmone today equalled but failed to break the all-time jockey record of riding 388 winners in a season, set by Walter Miller in 1906. Culmone had three winners on Oriental Park's eight-race card.

Culmone, who began the day in a tie with Willie Shoemaker for the 1950 riding title at 385 victories each, won the second race on Misle and got credit for another triumph when his mount in the fourth race, Airsis, figured in a dead heat for first with Chestwick.

The 19-year-old Sicilian then clicked for the third time on Shurleys Pride in the fifth contest.

Willie Shoemaker, riding at Agua Caliente, Mexico, today was just one away from the Culmone-Miller record after victories in two of the first three races. He failed in the next three, however, but had five more races to go.

Wards Have Boy

LANDOVER, Md., Dec. 31 (AP) — Bob Ward, Maryland's All-America guard, is a proud papa. His wife, the former Mary Ellen Zalezak of Union, N. J., gave birth to a seven-pound 11-ounce boy last Friday.

Ward, from Elizabeth, N. J., is the first Maryland player ever to be chosen on the All-America squad.

TEN TIGHT ONES

NEW YORK—(AP)—The American League had ten 1-0 games during the 1950 season and Vic Raschi, ace of the world champion Yankee staff, pitched two of them.

He blanked the St. Louis Browns with three hits and pitched a three-hitter against the Indians.

Randy Gumpert of the White Sox figured in three 1-0 games. He beat Hank Wyse and the Athletics 1-0 on four hits and lost 1-0 duels to Sam Zoldak of the Indians and Hal Newhouser of the Tigers.

RIVALS AND TEAMMATES

AURORA, Colo. — (AP) — Sammy Padfield and Bill Lewis are basketball opponents as well as teammates this season. Padfield coaches Arvada high and Lewis tutors Golden high in the Central Suburban league. Both play on an AAU quintet in Aurora, eastern Denver suburb.

West Virginia Cage Team Is Built Around Workman

By CHARLES R. LEWIS
AP Newsfeatures

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. —Coach Robert N. (Red) Brown is systematically putting together a West Virginia basketball machine which well might shoot the Mountaineers back into national prominence.

His first objective is a serious bid for the Southern Conference title in West Virginia's first campaign within the loop. The Mountaineers play 12 league games.

The 43-year-old Brown, whose Davis and Elkins teams won 70 of 91 tussles in the past three years, is minus three lettermen from last season's mediocre West Virginia squad which won 13 and lost 11.

But seven lettermen, including two seniors and five juniors, are back. Five sophomores are contending for starting jobs, and Godfrey Wright, a 6-3 transfer, is another bright prospect.

West Virginia's quintet naturally is built around junior Mark Workman, who — at six feet, nine inches — is expected to become an all-time-Mountaineer great. Workman recently scored 44 points against George Washington and averaged 28.8 points in the first six games.

Despite a late start, Workman led WVU last season with 271 points in 24 games. He drew rave notices the past summer with his play in New York state's Catskill resort league.

Four other juniors on the team are 6-5 Jim Coalter, Harry (Moo) Moore, 6-2, Jack Shockey, 6-1, and Dave Steindler, 5-11.

The 5-7 Alessi once dumped in 31 field goals in a single game for his Yorkville, O., high school five.

The West Virginia post, left vacant by the death of Lee Patton as a result of an automobile accident last winter, is not entirely strange to Brown. He was an assistant to Patton in 1947, when West Virginia posted a 19-3 mark.

Brown's D. and E. five of last season rolled up a 29-5 record, won both regular-season and tournament crowns in the 14-school West Virginia conference, and was a quarterfinalist in NAIB tournament at Kansas City.

Now he hopes to lead West Virginia back to the National Invitation competition which the Mountaineers won in 1942 in Madison Square Garden.

COACHED BY THE LAW

DENVER — (AP) — Mullen school, winner of the Denver Parochial League 1950 grid title, was coached by a city detective, Dick Brown, who played only sandlot football.

Brown coached the team while off duty. He had 13 assistants—fellow officers who would fill in at practice sessions when Brown was busy maintaining law and order.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

Today, in honor of the Rose Bowl game between California and Michigan, I am reviving an old custom of mine. For 11 years, before World War II, I made up my selection of movie players worthy of being on a mythical "All American" acting team.

This year I'm changing it slightly to my "Oscar Team"—or those actors who, in my opinion, will be in the game when Academy Award time rolls around. Here goes:

And for mascot—Who else but "Francis," the talking mule?

That's all, unless we mention such cheer leaders as Bob Hope, Red Skelton and Jack Benny.

Chit-chat: Gary Cooper is still in Palm Beach with Rocky and little Maria. Rocky and Maria went there from New York, and Gary joined them, going directly from Hollywood to the fashionable Florida resort.

Gary is playing tennis like mad and since Rocky is a very good player they have spent much of their time on the tennis court. I, personally, think everything is okay now, and that they will iron out their differences.

"Of course we have arguments now and then," she told me, "like all married people. But I have been married three years and I have no intention of separating from him, nor he from me.

"I go back to the studio next Wednesday for retakes on 'Mr. Imperium.' You know toward the last of the picture I wasn't very well and we want to have it just right. Then Bob and I are going up in the snow country."

Lana says she's getting a little fed up with rumors about her marriage which are not true.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Lloyd Bacon has made Margaret Truman a fabulous offer to star in a movie for him, but Margaret has rejected this as she has all other movie offers.

Gig Young and Sophie Rosenstein pulled a last minute switch in plans and are going to be married tomorrow, New Year's. Gig's wedding present to his bride is a diamond and ruby pin to match her engagement ring.

From Paris comes word that Munitions King Fritz Mandl is giving Princess Ghika a beeg rush. He is Hedy Lamarr's ex-husband, and Ghika is Errol Flynn's ex-fiancee.

Jesse Lasky's daughter, Betty Biblac, and Singer Bob Savage a Tallyho twosome. She has separated from her husband.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A Virginia newspaper published a brand new gripe from an indignant reader recently. A Mr. J. W. Wiseman, local tailoring expert, wrote, "Please stop printing maps showing the Korean war lines of battle super-imposed over this and nearby states for comparison. My best presser left without notice for three days to get his two sisters away from their home in Enfield, North Carolina, since the map showed the Communists were only a few miles away."

An interesting town to fly over is Palestine, Texas, whose citizens do not encourage witticisms about its name. "Get a load of this," said the pilot of one passenger plane, as he picked up his earphone. "Ahoy, Palestine," he bellowed cheerfully. "How's the Ay-rab situation down there?" The reply wafted aloft from the gent in the Palestine control tower was a unique and explicit bit of Texan eloquence which I will not attempt to quote here.

By CHARLES R. LEWIS
AP Newsfeatures

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. —Coach Robert N. (Red) Brown is systematically putting together a West Virginia basketball machine which well might shoot the Mountaineers back into national prominence.

His first objective is a serious bid for the Southern Conference title in West Virginia's first campaign within the loop. The Mountaineers play 12 league games.

The 43-year-old Brown, whose Davis and Elkins teams won 70 of 91 tussles in the past three years, is minus three lettermen from last season's mediocre West Virginia squad which won 13 and lost 11.

But seven lettermen, including two seniors and five juniors, are back. Five sophomores are contending for starting jobs, and Godfrey Wright, a 6-3 transfer, is another bright prospect.

West Virginia's quintet naturally is built around junior Mark Workman, who — at six feet, nine inches — is expected to become an all-time-Mountaineer great. Workman recently scored 44 points against George Washington and averaged 28.8 points in the first six games.

Despite a late start, Workman led WVU last season with 271 points in 24 games. He drew rave notices the past summer with his play in New York state's Catskill resort league.

Four other juniors on the team are 6-5 Jim Coalter, Harry (Moo) Moore, 6-2, Jack Shockey, 6-1, and Dave Steindler, 5-11.

The 5-7 Alessi once dumped in 31 field goals in a single game for his Yorkville, O., high school five.

The West Virginia post, left vacant by the death of Lee Patton as a result of an automobile accident last winter, is not entirely strange to Brown. He was an assistant to Patton in 1947, when West Virginia posted a 19-3 mark.

Brown's D. and E. five of last season rolled up a 29-5 record, won both regular-season and tournament crowns in the 14-school West Virginia conference, and was a quartet-finalist in NAIB tournament at Kansas City.

Now he hopes to lead West Virginia back to the National Invitation competition which the Mountaineers won in 1942 in Madison Square Garden.

BULL HALSEY COLT

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—A War Admiral colt, now at Hialeah, has been named Bull Halsey. As a yearling he cost Lawrence Lewis $22,000. Adm. Halsey, of course, agreed to permit use of his name.

COACHED BY THE LAW

DENVER — (AP) — Mullen school, winner of the Denver Parochial League 1950 grid title, was coached by a city detective, Dick Brown, who played only sandlot football.

Brown coached the team while off duty. He had 13 assistants—fellow officers who would fill in at practice sessions when Brown was busy maintaining law and order.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

Today, in honor of the Rose Bowl game between California and Michigan, I am reviving an old custom of mine. For 11 years, before World War II, I made up my selection of movie players worthy of being on a mythical "All American" acting team.

This year I'm changing it slightly to my "Oscar Team"—or those actors who, in my opinion, will be in the game when Academy Award time rolls around. Here goes:

For coach, I nominate Joseph Mankiewicz, brilliant at calling signals from the bench for all the players he directs.

And for mascot—Who else but "Francis," the talking mule?

That's all, unless we mention such cheer leaders as Bob Hope, Red Skelton and Jack Benny.

• — • — •

Chit-chat: Gary Cooper is still in Palm Beach with Rocky and little Maria. Rocky and Maria went there from New York, and Gary joined them, going directly from Hollywood to the fashionable Florida resort.

Gary is playing tennis like mad and since Rocky is a very good player they have spent much of their time on the tennis court. I, personally, think everything is okay now, and that they will iron out their differences.

"Of course we have arguments now and then," she told me, "like all married people. But I have been married three years and I have no intention of separating from him, nor he from me.

"I go back to the studio next Wednesday for retakes on 'Mr. Imperium.' You know toward the last of the picture I wasn't very well and we want to have it just right. Then Bob and I are going up in the snow country."

Lana says she's getting a little fed up with rumors about her marriage which are not true.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Lloyd Bacon has made Margaret Truman a fabulous offer to star in a movie for him, but Margaret has rejected this as she has all other movie offers.

Gig Young and Sophie Rosenstein pulled a last minute switch in plans and are going to be married tomorrow, New Year's. Gig's wedding present to his bride is a diamond and ruby pin to match her engagement ring.

From Paris comes word that Munitions King Fritz Mandl is giving Princess Ghika a beeg rush. He is Hedy Lamarr's ex-husband, and Ghika is Errol Flynn's ex-fiancee.

Jesse Lasky's daughter, Betty Biblac, and Singer Bob Savage a Tallyho twosome. She has separated from her husband.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A Virginia newspaper published a brand new gripe from an indignant reader recently. A Mr. J. W. Wiseman, local tailoring expert, wrote, "Please stop printing maps showing the Korean war lines of battle super-imposed over this and nearby states for comparison. My best presser left without notice for three days to get his two sisters away from their home in Enfield, North Carolina, since the map showed the Communists were only a few miles away."

An interesting town to fly over is Palestine, Texas, whose citizens do not encourage witticisms about its name. "Get a load of this," said the pilot of one passenger plane, as he picked up his earphone. "Ahoy, Palestine," he bellowed cheerfully. "How's the Ay-rab situation down there?" The reply wafted aloft from the gent in the Palestine control tower was a unique and explicit bit of Texan eloquence which I will not attempt to quote here.

Senator Kilgore Discovers Letter Written By James Blaine In 1884

Long-Hand Epistle Sent To John Hay

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Sen. Harley W. Kilgore, West Virginia Democrat, made a historic find the other day between the pages of a musty, old book.

Harley M. Kilgore

He discovered a letter written in longhand by James Blaine, GOP candidate for President in 1884, to John Hay, Lincoln's private secretary and later Teddy Roosevelt's famous Secretary of State.

Lost to history until now, the letter had been tucked in an old volume of Blaine's "Twenty Years of Congress," and had gone unnoticed until the volume fell into Kilgore's hands. The West Virginia senator purchased the book from an old collection after scouring Washington for a copy.

Dated March 13, 1886, Blaine's note to Hay is published here for the first time:

"My Dear Colonel Hay: You and I have let each other alone for the last year and a half to such a scandalous extent that I am not even advised of your whereabouts. Wishing to send you my two volumes of 'Twenty Years Of Congress,' I could no nothing else than forward them according to the letter of the law (in such cases made and provided) to 'your first and usual place of abode.' They were accordingly sent to Cleveland.

"I have since learned that you are in your new house—Commorant of Washington.

"I hope the package may reach you safely. You may probably find something between the covers that may interest you—by recalling the past if not communicating the new.

"Pray write me a line about yourself and Mrs. Hay and the children. I have not of late had my share of your wisdom and your wit. Faithfully Your Friend, James G. Blaine."

Note—Blaine lost the presidency to Grover Cleveland in 1884. Previously he represented Maine in Congress and also served as James A. Garfield's Secretary of State. Later, from 1889 to 1892, Blaine served as Benjamin Harrison's Secretary of State. Hay started his career as Lincoln's private secretary, but went down in history as America's "Great Secretary of State" under William McKinley and Teddy Roosevelt.

Keyser Rotary Hears Discussion About Mexico

Judge Medina's Kin Speaks To Club Men

KEYSER, W. Va. — Alfredo Medina, Jr., whose father is known internationally as a famous engineer and more famous as the creator of a fortune out of Mexican land that none other could develop, was a guest speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Keyser Rotary Club.

Young Medina, a student at George Washington University, Washington, and an attache of the Mexican Embassy in Washington, is a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wildemann, State Street, for the holidays.

The Rotary speaker, talked to the local group on the social, economic, political and religious life of Mexico. He is a nephew of Judge Harold Medina, federal jurist who conducted the trial of 11 Communist leaders in New York, several months ago, and won fame through his masterful handling of the cases.

His father, an engineering graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., set out about 15 years ago to tame the jungles of Yucatan. Although considered wealthy when he entered the jungle, he came out broke. Eventually, however, he interested some bankers at Merida in an idea that would provide plenty of fine lumber, among which was much mahogany. The bankers doubted that he could make good but gave him a chance by granting the privilege of working the Yucatan forests and swamps on a royalty basis.

In two years Medina, the engineer, paid his royalty payments and in four years purchased the concession for a million pesos. Today the land is a prosperous business enterprise, the swamps cleared and people living there in happy homes, and business, which has become an international enterprise, is florishing.

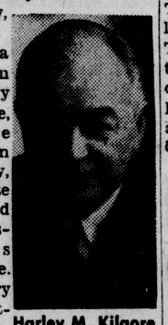
Senator Kilgore Discovers Letter Written By James Blaine In 1884

Long-Hand Epistle Sent To John Hay

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Sen. Harley W. Kilgore, West Virginia Democrat, made a historic find the other day between the pages of a musty, old book.



Harley M. Kilgore

He discovered a letter written in longhand by James Blaine, GOP candidate for President in 1884, to John Hay, Lincoln's private secretary and later Teddy Roosevelt's famous Secretary of State.

Lost to history until now, the letter had been tucked in an old volume of Blaine's "Twenty Years of Congress," and had gone unnoticed until the volume fell into Kilgore's hands. The West Virginia senator purchased the book from an old collection after scouring Washington for a copy.

Dated March 13, 1886, Blaine's note to Hay is published here for the first time:

"My Dear Colonel Hay: You and I have let each other alone for the last year and a half to such a scandalous extent that I am not even advised of your whereabouts. Wishing to send you my two volumes of 'Twenty Years Of Congress,' I could no nothing else than forward them according to the letter of the law (in such cases made and provided) to 'your first and usual place of abode.' They were accordingly sent to Cleveland.

"I have since learned that you are in your new house—Commorant of Washington.

"I hope the package may reach you safely. You may probably find something between the covers that may interest you—by recalling the past if not communicating the new.

"Pray write me a line about yourself and Mrs. Hay and the children. I have not of late had my share of your wisdom and your wit. Faithfully Your Friend, James G. Blaine."

Note—Blaine lost the presidency to Grover Cleveland in 1884. Previously he represented Maine in Congress and also served as James A. Garfield's Secretary of State. Later, from 1889 to 1892, Blaine served as Benjamin Harrison's Secretary of State. Hay started his career as Lincoln's private secretary, but went down in history as America's "Great Secretary of State" under William McKinley and Teddy Roosevelt.

Keyser Rotary Hears Discussion About Mexico

Judge Medina's Kin Speaks To Club Men

KEYSER, W. Va. — Alfredo Medina, Jr., whose father is known internationally as a famous engineer and more famous as the creator of a fortune out of Mexican land that none other could develop, was a guest speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Keyser Rotary Club.

Young Medina, a student at George Washington University, Washington, and an attache of the Mexican Embassy in Washington, is a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wildemann, State Street, for the holidays.

The Rotary speaker, talked to the local group on the social, economic, political and religious life of Mexico. He is a nephew of Judge Harold Medina, federal jurist who conducted the trial of 11 Communist leaders in New York, several months ago, and won fame through his masterful handling of the cases.

His father, an engineering graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., set out about 15 years ago to tame the jungles of Yucatan. Although considered wealthy when he entered the jungle, he came out broke. Eventually, however, he interested some bankers at Merida in an idea that would provide plenty of fine lumber, among which was much mahogany. The bankers doubted that he could make good but gave him a chance by granting the privilege of working the Yucatan forests and swamps on a royalty basis.

In two years Medina, the engineer, paid his royalty payments and in four years purchased the concession for a million pesos. Today the land is a prosperous business enterprise, the swamps cleared and people living there in happy homes, and business, which has become an international enterprise, is florishing.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Walt Disney Takes The Plunge

WALT Disney's hour-long Christmas production, "One Hour in Wonderland," the premiere showing of Disney's celebrated characters on television, must have struck despair into the hearts of most the people who earn a living in the medium. There is nothing in television even remotely comparable to Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Dopey, Goofy, Pluto and the rest of them. And there isnt likely to be, ever.

John Crosby

After all, "Snow White" took a couple of years to produce. The enchanting "Happy Song" sequence, just a few minutes long, which was shown on Christmas Day, probably was on the drawingboards longer than the elapsed time taken to stage half a dozen Milton Berle shows. If you'll cast your mind back to that wonderful film, all the dwarfs in this little song had a bit of song, a bit of patter—each hit, delicate, absurd and somehow touching. Disney is an artist with one eye on the ledger. He once told me that "Snow White" was his own favorite of all his pictures. When I asked why, he remarked simply: "Because it made the most money." This isn't entirely avarice. Disney wants as many people as possible to see his work and that is why he went on television in the first place. "This is not the beginning of a regular television series for me," he said, "but rather an experimental effort to reach millions of people who might otherwise never see our motion pictures. I've always felt a keen dissatisfaction over the fact that out of 150,000,000 people in America, only about 20,000,000 ever see the greatest of our films."

Right there, there lies a ray of hope. Television, the greatest of communication mediums, not only can (and frequently does) distribute the finest things to millions of people who should, but haven't, been exposed to them before, but it will also eventually attract the Disney's for no other reason than that it has an audience. "It isn't the money that attracts people to Hollywood," George Jean Nathan once said. "It's the publicity." For publicity, read audience.

"One Hour In Wonderland" revolves around a children's party given by Disney, who, incidentally, has great charm, and attended by Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd (chaperoned as usual by Mr. Bergen), the Disney children, Bobby Driscoll who starred in Disney's "Treasure Island," and Kathryn Beaumont, a pretty young English girl who is the voice of Alice in Disney's forthcoming "Alice in Wonderland." On the wall was a magic mirror in which resided a genii who summoned up the Disney films. He did well by us, this genii.

Besides the fragment of "Snow White," he produced two Disney shorts "Bone Trouble" and "Clock Cleaners." Both are pretty wonderful and both are excellent examples of Disney's habit of borrowing and perfecting the classis comic formulas. "Bone Trouble," starring Pluto, is little more than the chase which ended most Mack Sennett comedies and still ends a lot of movies, including such good ones as "The Third Man." "Clock Cleaners," which contains Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, and Goofy, has a liberal portion of Harold Lloyd's old habit of falling off buildings, a device which Disney and staff have extended, elaborated and—as I said earlier—finished. (Nothing is ever quite finished in television.) There were also scenes from two long Disney pictures, one of Uncle Remus's stories about Br'er Rabbit from "Song of the South" and an immensely appealing story it was, and the tea party from "Alice in Wonderland" with Ed Wynn's voice as that of the Mad Hatter and Jerry Colonna's as the March Hare. The last scene was a little disappointing, but only, I should say, because you expect so much from Disney.

The kiddies and the adult's, too, could hardly ask for more of a Christmas afternoon. Mr. Disney captured 9 per cent of the available television audience which must comprise a good many of those 150,000,000 people he was complaining about earlier and he got in a nice plug for his upcoming movie. I hope he decides to do it again. And the Coca Cola company, too, deserves a little kiss on the cheek, not only because it picked up the check (a big one) but also for the restraint and excellent taste of its brief commercials.

Walt Disney Takes The Plunge

WALT Disney's hour-long Christmas production, "One Hour in Wonderland," the premiere showing of Disney's celebrated characters on television, must have struck despair into the hearts of most the people who earn a living in the medium. There is nothing in television even remotely comparable to Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Dopey, Goofy, Pluto and the rest of them. And there isnt likely to be, ever.

John Crosby

After all, "Snow White" took a couple of years to produce. The enchanting "Happy Song" sequence, just a few minutes long, which was shown on Christmas Day, probably was on the drawingboards longer than the elapsed time taken to stage half a dozen Milton Berle shows. If you'll cast your mind back to that wonderful film, all the dwarfs in this little song had a bit of song, a bit of patter—each hit, delicate, absurd and somehow touching. From the opening note to the finish, when Sneezy blew Dopey into the rafters, this little sequence had the polish and finish of the craftsman who is also very much an artist.

Use Of A-Bomb To Create Line Of Death Across Korea Proposed

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS) THE PASSING SHOW . . .

A Miami man named Cyrus French Wicker has suggested to the Miami Herald, and to this writer, a new type of cordon sanitaire which might bear further study.

He would have the Air Force drop a long strip of A-bombs across the mountainous, unpopulated waistline of Korea, and thus create an eerie "buffer state" through which no Chinese Red replacements could move, unless they chose to die the frightening death of exposure to radiation.

Mr. Wicker would like to see Gen. Eisenhower draw the same sort of line "well east of the Rhine."

P.S.—Interesting idea. An A-bomb that fell all the way to the ground (all those which have been used to date, by the U.S. at least, have been detonated at heights ranging from 100 feet to about 1,500 feet) might contaminate the earth for a long time. Perhaps even a hundred years, but no one really knows. However, the cost of drawing such a line as Mr. Wicker suggests would be astronomical.

• — • — •

A widowed Brooklyn mother of a boy who was badly wounded in Korea, and then was sent back to the front after being patched up, writes me bitterly about the Hollywood edict prohibiting its stars from going there to entertain troops. She says that as a result she has stopped attending movies.

She wishes that the avalanche of drunken drivers who afflicted the Los Angeles area during the Christmas holidays had been sentenced to service in Korea, "where they might have brought glory to Hollywood instead of disgrace."

She also would like to know what kind of consciences our congressmen possess that enable them to race home for a leisurely holiday at a time when American troops were undergoing the worst rout in the country's military history.

P.S.—A very hard letter to answer.

• — • — •

Of all the Christmas cards the writer received, the one that was done in the best taste—it incorporated Longfellow's immortal "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day," etc.—came from Frank Costello.

• — • — •

General Motors announces that it is custom-building a two-seater sports car with a 300 horsepower motor. It has a couple of high tail-fins, new-type brakes, air-scoops like a jet fighter (it is named, appropriately, Le Sabre) and burns not only high test gasoline but also methyl alcohol. In the event of a flat the driver can jack up the car without leaving his seat.

The seats are electrically heated for winter driving. Special metals developed in recent years are used in the chassis and body.

To stop the playboy set from rushing immediately to Detroit, G. M. announces that the car won't be for sale, probably. One would cost perhaps $100,000 maybe a lot more. It will be a mobile laboratory to test on the road what has heretofore been confined t the drawing boards.

The company put out a similar super job in 1938, and from it came such standard present day equipment as electrically controlled convertible tops and door windows, curved glass door windows, push-button door latches, a low front grille, fender extensions over the doors—and that last word in ingenuity, tail lamps recessed in rear fenders.

One can easily imagine, therefore, the jalopy of 12 years hence—and picture Joe Blow and his family, out for a Sunday spin to Jones beaches at 210 M.P.H.

Better not give up your bomb shelters after this next war.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOW ONE AT THE START

POSSESSION of two biddable suits in a biddable hand is a real asset if you use it aright. In case the hand is strong enough for an opening bid, you will nearly always profit from calling one of the suits instead of No Trumps. And, if the opponents have opened, there is usually just one sound action to take over the several optional moves available. That is to bid one of those suits, ordinarily the one which will make it most convenient for you to show the other later on, thereby giving your partner an option.

	♠ 5 2 ♥ 9 8 4 ♦ K 10 9 6 5 ♣ J 10 8
♠ Q 8 6 ♥ J 7 5 3 ♦ 8 ♣ 9 7 6 3 2	N W E S	♠ 7 4 ♥ K Q 10 6 ♦ A Q J 4 2 ♣ K Q
	♠ A K J 10 9 3 ♥ A 2 ♦ 7 3 ♣ A 5 4

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	?

East had a chance to choose among four different options on his first turn. They were to pass and await developments, to double for a takeout, to bid 2-Diamonds or to bid 2-Hearts. Each of those courses was taken in a big social duplicate, and in general the outcome of the entire hand depended on what East did.

Where East passed, South bid 2-Spades, which in some cases was passed all around and South made the 2-Spades. In other cases, an East who had passed the first time did not like to see South get it at 2-Spades, so bid 3-Diamonds, which was soundly beaten, sometimes doubled and sometimes not.

A double for a takeout by East brought the same ensuing developments as the pass, a bad result for East-West at all tables.

Where East bid 2-Diamonds over the 1-No Trump, South bid 2-Spades and it was passed around to East, who then either passed or else bid 3-Diamonds and took a licking. East had shown his diamonds on the first round, but didn't dare try 3-Hearts on the next, which might force his partner to 4-Diamonds in case he preferred that suit.

Only those Easts who bid 2-Hearts on their first turns made out well. When South's 2-Spades reached them, these Easts were able to bid 3-Diamonds, thereby completing their two-suit story. West of course shifted to 3-Hearts, which was down only one in some cases, and over which South bid 3-Spades to be set in other cases.

Tomorrow's Problem

♠ K J 10 9 8 7 ♥ 5 4 3 2 ♦ None ♣ K Q J	N W E S	♠ 6 5 4 3 ♥ None ♦ 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ 5 4 3 2

How would you play for 7-Hearts on this trick deal if West leads the club K?

HANDS BECOME FAMOUS

CERTAIN bridge hands acquire fame, just as individuals do. They are so interesting that they are passed along from one player to another, not only in the vicinity of the place where they were first seen or constructed, but all over the world. In most cases they are known by the name of some person who introduced or promoted them. In others there is no clear-cut identification except the features of play involved. One of these is the deal in which the contract depends on a trump-shortening play that makes possible the unblocking of a side suit.

	♠ A Q 2 ♥ A K Q J ♦ Q J 10 9 8 7 ♣ None
♠ K J 10 9 8 7 ♥ 5 4 3 2 ♦ None ♣ K Q J	N W E S	♠ 6 5 4 3 ♥ None ♦ 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ 5 4 3 2
	♠ None ♥ 10 9 8 7 6 ♦ A K ♣ A 10 9 8 7 6

This hand was written-up first by your correspondent more than twenty years ago. No claim to originality was put forth. It was being studied by several bridge fans when first spotted. How old it is, and who constructed it is not known. It may possibly date from the days of Whist, decades before there was any form of bridge. Through the years, it has been referred to probably all bridge writers of standing, who know it well, and every decade or so it is incumbent on us to explain it.

The latest request comes from Mrs. Eugene Simpson, of Boylston, Guysboro county, Nova Scotia, a reader of the Halifax Chronicle-Herald, one of the 400-some-odd papers receiving these despatches.

South is in a contract of 7-Hearts, against which the club K is led, and she wonders if he can make it. He can.

Noting that the diamond tops in the South hand block that suit in dummy, he must plan to discard them. One can be put on the spade A. The other can be disposed of through first shortening South's trumps by ruffing spades twice, then using the fourth trump in dummy to discard the blocker.

Here's the order of tricks: Club A wins, discarding a diamond from dummy; then heart 6 to A, spade A to discard diamond A, spade 2 ruffed by heart 7, heart 8 to K, spade Q ruffed by heart 9, heart 10 to Q, heart J for discard of diamond K and wind up running the diamond Q, J, 10, 9 and 8.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

THE PASSING SHOW . . .

A Miami man named Cyrus French Wicker has suggested to the Miami Herald, and to this writer, a new type of cordon sanitaire which might bear further study.

He would have the Air Force drop a long strip of A-bombs across the mountainous, unpopulated waistline of Korea, and thus create an eerie "buffer state" through which no Chinese Red replacements could move, unless they chose to die the frightening death of exposure to radiation.

Mr. Wicker would like to see Gen. Eisenhower draw the same sort of line "well east of the Rhine."

P.S.—Interesting idea. An A-bomb that fell all the way to the ground (all those which have been used to date, by the U.S. at least, have been detonated at heights ranging from 100 feet to about 1,500 feet) might contaminate the earth for a long time. Perhaps even a hundred years, but no one really knows. However, the cost of drawing such a line as Mr. Wicker suggests would be astronomical.

• — • — •

A widowed Brooklyn mother of a boy who was badly wounded in Korea, and then was sent back to the front after being patched up, writes me bitterly about the Hollywood edict prohibiting its stars from going there to entertain troops. She says that as a result she has stopped attending movies.

She wishes that the avalanche of drunken drivers who afflicted the Los Angeles area during the Christmas holidays had been sentenced to service in Korea, "where they might have brought glory to Hollywood instead of disgrace."

She also would like to know what kind of consciences our congressmen possess that enable them to race home for a leisurely holiday at a time when American troops were undergoing the worst rout in the country's military history.

P.S.—A very hard letter to answer.

• — • — •

Of all the Christmas cards the writer received, the one that was done in the best taste—it incorporated Longfellow's immortal "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day," etc.—came from Frank Costello.

• — • — •

General Motors announces that it is custom-building a two-seater sports car with a 300 horsepower motor. It has a couple of high tail-fins, new-type brakes, air-scoops like a jet fighter (it is named, appropriately, Le Sabre) and burns not only high test gasoline but also methyl alcohol. In the event of a flat the driver can jack up the car without leaving his seat.

The seats are electrically heated for winter driving. Special metals developed in recent years are used in the chassis and body.

To stop the playboy set from rushing immediately to Detroit, G. M. announces that the car won't be for sale, probably. One would cost perhaps $100,000 maybe a lot more. It will be a mobile laboratory to test on the road what has heretofore been confined t the drawing boards.

The company put out a similar super job in 1938, and from it came such standard present day equipment as electrically controlled convertible tops and door windows, curved glass door windows, push-button door latches, a low front grille, fender extensions over the doors—and that last word in ingenuity, tail lamps recessed in rear fenders.

One can easily imagine, therefore, the jalopy of 12 years hence—and picture Joe Blow and his family, out for a Sunday spin to Jones beaches at 210 M.P.H.

Better not give up your bomb shelters after this next war.

By Shepard Barclay

SHOW ONE AT THE START

POSSESSION of two biddable suits in a biddable hand is a real asset if you use it aright. In case the hand is strong enough for an opening bid, you will nearly always profit from calling one of the suits instead of No Trumps. And, if the opponents have opened, there is usually just one sound action to take over the several optional moves available. That is to bid one of those suits, ordinarily the one which will make it most convenient for you to show the other later on, thereby giving your partner an option.

	♠ 5 2 ♥ 9 8 4 ♦ K 10 9 6 5 ♣ J 10 8
♠ Q 8 6 ♥ J 7 5 3 ♦ 8 ♣ 9 7 6 3 2	N W E S	♠ 7 4 ♥ K Q 10 6 ♦ A Q J 4 2 ♣ K Q
	♠ A K J 10 9 3 ♥ A 2 ♦ 7 3 ♣ A 5 4

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	?

East had a chance to choose among four different options on his first turn. They were to pass and await developments, to double for a takeout, to bid 2-Diamonds or to bid 2-Hearts. Each of those courses was taken in a big social duplicate, and in general the outcome of the entire hand depended on what East did.

Where East passed, South bid 2-Spades, which in some cases was passed all around and South made the 2-Spades. In other cases, an East who had passed the first time did not like to see South get it at 2-Spades, so bid 3-Diamonds, which was soundly beaten, sometimes doubled and sometimes not.

A double for a takeout by East brought the same ensuing developments as the pass, a bad result for East-West at all tables.

Where East bid 2-Diamonds over the 1-No Trump, South bid 2-Spades and it was passed around to East, who then either passed or else bid 3-Diamonds and took a licking. East had shown his diamonds on the first round, but didn't dare try 3-Hearts on the next, which might force his partner to 4-Diamonds in case he preferred that suit.

Only those Easts who bid 2-Hearts on their first turns made out well. When South's 2-Spades reached them, these Easts were able to bid 3-Diamonds, thereby completing their two-suit story. West of course shifted to 3-Hearts, which was down only one in some cases, and over which South bid 3-Spades to be set in other cases.

♠ K J 10 9 8 7 ♥ 5 4 3 2 ♦ None ♣ K Q J	N W E S	♠ 6 5 4 3 ♥ None ♦ 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ 5 4 3 2

How would you play for 7-Hearts on this trick deal if West leads the club K?

HANDS BECOME FAMOUS

CERTAIN bridge hands acquire fame, just as individuals do. They are so interesting that they are passed along from one player to another, not only in the vicinity of the place where they were first seen or constructed, but all over the world. In most cases they are known by the name of some person who introduced or promoted them. In others there is no clear-cut identification except the features of play involved. One of these is the deal in which the contract depends on a trump-shortening play that makes possible the unblocking of a side suit.

	♠ A Q 2 ♥ A K Q J ♦ Q J 10 9 8 7 ♣ None
♠ K J 10 9 8 7 ♥ 5 4 3 2 ♦ None ♣ K Q J	N W E S	♠ 6 5 4 3 ♥ None ♦ 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ 5 4 3 2
	♠ None ♥ 10 9 8 7 6 ♦ A K ♣ A 10 9 8 7 6

This hand was written-up first by your correspondent more than twenty years ago. No claim to originality was put forth. It was being studied by several bridge fans when first spotted. How old it is, and who constructed it is not known. It may possibly date from the days of Whist, decades before there was any form of bridge. Through the years, it has been referred to probably all bridge writers of standing, who know it well, and every decade or so it is incumbent on us to explain it.

The latest request comes from Mrs. Eugene Simpson, of Boylston, Guysboro county, Nova Scotia, a reader of the Halifax Chronicle-Herald, one of the 400-some-odd papers receiving these despatches.

South is in a contract of 7-Hearts, against which the club K is led, and she wonders if he can make it. He can.

Noting that the diamond tops in the South hand block that suit in dummy, he must plan to discard them. One can be put on the spade A. The other can be disposed of through first shortening South's trumps by ruffing spades twice, then using the fourth trump in dummy to discard the blocker.

Here's the order of tricks: Club A wins, discarding a diamond from dummy; then heart 6 to A, spade A to discard diamond A, spade 2 ruffed by heart 7, heart 8 to K, spade Q ruffed by heart 9, heart 10 to Q, heart J for discard of diamond K and wind up running the diamond Q, J, 10, 9 and 8.

County Board May Discontinue Surplus Foods

Only Eggs And Milk Now Being Allocated

The distribution of surplus foods in Allegany county after next month doesn't seem likely in view of information received by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from R. J. Simpson, of the State Budget and Procurement Department.

Simpson said that the federal government is not allocating butter or cheese any more and that only limited supplies of dried eggs and dried milk are available.

There is about enough butter and dried eggs on hand for allotments to about 2,500 persons while the cheese supply will take care of 6,000 persons, according to J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the Allegany County Roads Department, who has charge of the distribution for the county board.

Commissioners William H. Lemmert, James Holmes and James Orr are in agreement that if no butter or cheese can be obtained for February and/or the succeeding months there doesn't seem much use in having distributions.

Dates and places where the surplus foods will be distributed next month will be announced by the board later.

The deadline for persons seeking to be certified for the distribution in January is next Thursday. Only needy or unemployed are eligible and they should contact the Welfare Board, Red Cross Chapter or other agency in their community which is handling the certification.

The surplus food program was started here through the efforts of the Steering Committee for Economic Development, with the distribution of surplus potatoes. The other items were added later. Last month the County Commissioners assumed charge of the entire program.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

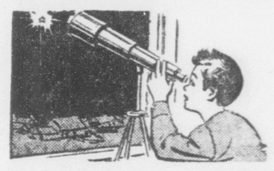
By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Can you really "make a fresh start"?

Answer: No. The "1951" on the calendar does not make you a different person from what you were yesterday, or alter the fact that you will be the same person tomorrow. Nor does the New Year wipe out the fact that it was you who last year did the things you now wish you had not done. If you want to build a future better than the past—and you can do it!—the materials you will have to work with are the same as ever. But you can find wiser, more effective ways to use them. And if you do, you will have a Happy New Year.

Will loving a person make you dream about him?

Answer: Not in itself. No matter how dearly you love someone from whom you are separated, the song-writers are mistaken in assuming that you can console yourself by being "with him in your dreams." You'll dream of a loved one only if he symbolizes for you some unconscious inner conflict such as your yearning for someone or something that you feel you "have no right to." Only the surface material of dreams comes from current experiences or emotions—basically, they are ways of gratifying secret wishes.



Do the stars really "twinkle"?

Answer: No, their light is constant and invariable. But the long-accepted theory that atmospheric changes are what make them scintillate has been challenged by two British ophthalmologists, Drs. Hartridge and Weale. They say their experiments have shown that when we watch a light of medium brightness, unless we are concentrating on some detailed pattern, our eyes do not remain stationary, so that the image of the light falls now on one part of the retina and now on another. This causes "apparent fluctuation in both brightness and color."

Does travel "broaden the mind"?

Answer: That depends on two things: the extent to which your mind is "open," and whether you travel of your own choice or because you have to. If you're willing to admit that your ideas and ways of doing things are not the only "right" ones, visiting foreign countries may be a liberal education, but if the very word "foreign" means inferior or barbarous to you, you might as well stay at home. And of course, if you are torn away from home against your will, you'll tend to see only the worst side of the country you are sent to.

Is psychotherapy a science?

Answer: Not yet, anyhow, writes Dr. I. Atkin in the American Journal of Psychotherapy. While based upon scientific research, the practice of helping people overcome emotional disturbances through an exclusive mental approach (i.e., by listening and talking to them) is still an art in which no system of fixed rules can be consistently followed, and in which the therapist's personality is as important as his training. It is this "intangible quality" that makes psychotherapy hard for "pure scientists" to accept.

Can high-pitched sounds harm your ears?

Answer: Apparently not, say a group of ear specialists in the Annals of Otology, St. Louis. The idea that sounds too high-pitched to be heard—for instance, those of the inaudible whistle sometimes used for calling dogs, whose ears are more acute than those of humans—may be dangerous to human hearing seems unfounded. As long as supersonic vibrations are airborne, with no physical contact, they have no specific effect on the sense-organs or the nervous system. It is sounds that are too loud, whatever their pitch, that do damage.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Can you really "make a fresh start"?

Answer: No. The "1951" on the calendar does not make you a different person from what you were yesterday, or alter the fact that you will be the same person tomorrow. Nor does the New Year wipe out the fact that it was you who last year did the things you now wish you had not done. If you want to build a future better than the past—and you can do it!—the materials you will have to work with are the same as ever. But you can find wiser, more effective ways to use them. And if you do, you will have a Happy New Year.

Will loving a person make you dream about him?

Answer: Not in itself. No matter how dearly you love someone from whom you are separated, the song-writers are mistaken in assuming that you can console yourself by being "with him in your dreams." You'll dream of a loved one only if he symbolizes for you some unconscious inner conflict such as your yearning for someone or something that you feel you "have no right to." Only the surface material of dreams comes from current experiences or emotions—basically, they are ways of gratifying secret wishes.

Do the stars really "twinkle"?

Answer: No, their light is constant and invariable. But the long-accepted theory that atmospheric changes are what make them scintillate has been challenged by two British ophthalmologists, Drs. Hartridge and Weale. They say their experiments have shown that when we watch a light of medium brightness, unless we are concentrating on some detailed pattern, our eyes do not remain stationary, so that the image of the light falls now on one part of the retina and now on another. This causes "apparent fluctuation in both brightness and color."

Does travel "broaden the mind"?

Answer: That depends on two things: the extent to which your mind is "open," and whether you travel of your own choice or because you have to. If you're willing to admit that your ideas and ways of doing things are not the only "right" ones, visiting foreign countries may be a liberal education, but if the very word "foreign" means inferior or barbarous to you, you might as well stay at home. And of course, if you are torn away from home against your will, you'll tend to see only the worst side of the country you are sent to.

Is psychotherapy a science?

Answer: Not yet, anyhow, writes Dr. I. Atkin in the American Journal of Psychotherapy. While based upon scientific research, the practice of helping people overcome emotional disturbances through an exclusive mental approach (i.e., by listening and talking to them) is still an art in which no system of fixed rules can be consistently followed, and in which the therapist's personality is as important as his training. It is this "intangible quality" that makes psychotherapy hard for "pure scientists" to accept.

Can high-pitched sounds harm your ears?

Answer: Apparently not, say a group of ear specialists in the Annals of Otology, St. Louis. The idea that sounds too high-pitched to be heard—for instance, those of the inaudible whistle sometimes used for calling dogs, whose ears are more acute than those of humans—may be dangerous to human hearing seems unfounded. As long as supersonic vibrations are airborne, with no physical contact, they have no specific effect on the sense-organs or the nervous system. It is sounds that are too loud, whatever their pitch, that do damage.

Winter's Record Begins Parallel Of Flood Years

Snowfall In December Totaled Nearly Foot

The stage is being set for high water and possibly floods in the area, so far as weather records show, according to Robert R. Golden, superintendent of Constitution Park and official local weather observer.

There is enough snow in the mountains of the area now, to cause serious trouble, if there should be a warm rain or sudden thaw over the water shed, Golden observed.

During December, just ended, there was a total of 10.7 inches of snowfall recorded here, with a melted precipitation of 2.29 inches. Snowfall in the area, especially the mountainous sections was much greater.

In December 1923, there was no snow but there was 3.53 inches of precipitation recorded. This was the December preceding the heavy snows of January, February and March, just before the 1924 flood.

For December 1935, preceding the 1936 deluge here, snowfall was 10.8 inches and precipitation was 2.20 inches. Almost identical with the December record.

However, cold weather, Golden comments, retards the melting of the snow. Warm days and cold nights also gives the melted snow a chance to run off gradually, so there is no real flood danger unless the snows continue heavily through the winter, or there is a sudden thaw with the grounds carrying two and three feet of snow over the water shed.

	Snowfall	Precipi.
December, 1935	10.8 in.	2.20 in.
January, 1936	16.7 in.	4.14 in.
February, 1936	8.0 in.	3.34 in.
March, 1936	3.7 in.	5.42 in.
December, 1923	none	3.53 in.
January, 1924	8.0 in.	4.14 in.
February, 1924	20.5 in.	2.69 in.
March, 1924	20.0 in.	5.18 in.

November Auto Accidents Kill Three In County

Allegany County had three fatal accidents in which three persons were killed during the month of November a report from Maryland State Police Traffic Collision Statistical Bureau shows.

Altogether state police investigated 10 automobile accidents in November when 12 persons were injured in addition to the fatalities.

Six of the accidents occurred between two or more cars, two with automobiles and fixed objects, one car overturned in the road and one hit a pedestrian. The report shows the pedestrian was killed and fatalities resulted in one of the fixed objects collisions and the overturned automobile in the road.

The police report stated two of the auto collisions happened between cars traveling more than 70 miles per hour, three when the driver of one car failed to keep to the right of the center of the road and the others for miscellaneous reasons.

Property damage resulted from two of the collisions. Forty-eight arrests were made by the state police and 51 warnings given to drivers. Three of the arrests were for excessive speeding and 16 for reckless driving. Thirty-four of the warnings were for light violations, the report read.

The statistics also revealed most of the accidents occurred between the hours of midnight and 1 a.m. and 6 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday proved to be the worst days for traveling as most of the accidents happened on these days. Monday proved to be an excellent day for Allegany County motorists as not a single collision marked the month of November on that day.

Has Anybody Seen Whizzie?

Little Miss Donna Lee Metz, McMullen Highway, near Dawson, has lost her pet and playmate "Whizzie" and the little girl is grief-stricken. "Whizzie" looks like a very intelligent cat, and Donna Lee's father believes he must be penned up somewhere or he would find his way back home.

Three-Year-Old Girl Appeals For Return Of Pet "Whizzie"

Blue Maltese Cat Was Playmate

It isn't a very Happy New Year for little Miss Donna Lee Metz, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold "Horsey" Metz, of near Dawson, because "Whizzie" didn't come home.

"Whizzie" is a two-year-old pet cat at the Metz household, who disappeared Christmas eve. Donna Lee doesn't believe "Whizzie" followed Santa Claus back to the North Pole, because if he had Santa would have sent one of his helpers back with him.

The Metz family lives along the McMullen Highway and "Whizzie" was always very careful of the traffic. It isn't likely that he was run over, but it seems more probable to the family that he may have been picked up and carried away by some passing motorist or others in the vicinity.

The family has advertised the fact that "Whizzie" is missing and a liberal award is offered for his return. He is a blue Maltese-type tom cat, according to Donna Lee, and she is appealing to anyone who might have him to bring him back, or anyone who might know where he is to tell her.

Plane Makes Safe Landing In Local Area

Police Report No One Hurt; Craft OK

State Police said yesterday they had received information from the Civil Aeronautics Administration in Washington that the plane reported missing Saturday night in the Cumberland area had landed safely somewhere west of here.

The LaVale barracks sent Trooper William F. Baker to investigate the report the plane was down west of Frostburg.

CAA authorities relayed the information to the Maryland police here that the AT-6 plane had developed trouble with the hydraulic landing gear and was seeking a spot to set down. The plane landed safely with no injuries to the occupants and no damage to the plane. Police said the definite spot picked for the landing was not reported to them and that the plane had evidently resumed its flight after making necessary repairs.

The craft reportedly was enroute from Detroit, Mich. to Rockville, and had been scheduled to land at the Congressional Airport near there.

Warren Mullenax, local airport manager, heard a radio report from the stricken craft Saturday night while preparing to make a flight from the airport. He said last night "the plane was calling the control tower in Martinsburg, W. Va., and reported trouble with its hydraulic landing gear."

Mullenax related he could get no contact with the plane and that he and several other local pilots made a search of the area at the time but could find no trace of the disabled craft.

U. S. Secret Weapons Outclass Moscow's

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (INS)—Columnist and Commentator Walter Winchell, in a New Year's Eve message tonight to the American people, said:

"Things look bad for our country, I know. . . Many experts who do not know what they are talking about are now as unreasonably gloomy as they once were absurdly cheerful.

"The truth is that in the secret of the world, our final power was never greater, and our national honor was never brighter. . . The fact is our secret weapons are so powerful—that out of common humanity we will not use them—except in extreme necessity. . .

"This nation can defeat any other nation or combination of nations in the world, if it comes to a matter of survival. We not only can defeat the Communists as a nation—we can obliterate the Russians as a people.

U. S. Could Vaporize Russians

"In our secret arsenals are enough weapons to remove every Russian city of over 100,000 population from the map. . . Within easy striking distance of our foreign bases, we culd vaporize 50 million Russians in one mass bombing. . . We KNOW what the Russians have in secret weapons—but compared to ours they don't amount to a 4th of July fire cracker — against the broadsides of the battleship Missouri.

"That is also true of Korea. . . We could burn out not only the Red Chinese army in Korea tonight, but every blade of grass—and the only reason we don't do it is that we would not think of killing the 29 million Koreans we are going to liberate. . .

No Slaughter Of Children

"We could incinerate the Kremlin faster than we could free Korea. But of the fifty million Russians we could kill at will—twenty-five million would be children. . . And it is not in the tradition of our weapons to attack babies. . . At the same time, our allies have children, too.

"Stalin knows that the very second the artillery of his field armies rolls west on Europe—something is going to roar north from the Mediterranean . . . and the black hole in the earth—which once was Moscow—will be the only evidence left of the blacknes of his crimes."

As residents of the area north of Baltimore Street and Baltimore Avenue await the regular waste paper collection, scheduled for tomorrow at 9 a.m., the importance of saving paper is being stressed.

Arthritis Chapter Drive Continues

Only $300 is lacking in the Allegany Chapter of the Maryland Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation's drive to reach a goal of $1,500 by the New Year.

Mrs. Marion T. Powers, chairman of the foundation's financial plan, announced Saturday that the organization will continue the drive until next Saturday in an effort to reach the mark set.

Mrs. Powers said she realized that the many holiday activities probably have kept subscribers from contributing and felt that the books should not be closed for another week.

The director said donations from $1 up would be accepted and all contributions may be sent to Arthritis, in care of the local Post Office.

One Year Old Today

First Local Baby In 1950 Marks Birthday Today

The event took place last year at 7:23 p.m. in Allegany Hospital and the child weighed five pounds, 10 oz. at birth. Today, she weighs 22½ pounds and stands 27½ inches in height.

Her mother explains that Denise Maire has been a perfectly normal child during the past year, has been in all ways well, and has made the normal accomplishments for a child in its first year. For example, she says "Hi" to strangers; calls her parents "Mommy" and "Daddy" and her 22-month-old brother, she calls "Aull" for Paul.

Local Scout Troops Plan Pageant Here In February

A pareant depicting Scouting will be the feature of the local observance of National Boy Scout Week February 6 to 12, Willis V. Smith, executive of Potomac Council has announced.

Smith explained that each year a Scout circus has been held at the State Armory, but last year the event "outgrew" the building.

He said the 25 troops and Cub packs that gathered to present stunts and demonstrate various phases of scouting last year was too large for the accommodations.

This year, the Boy Scouts and Cubs of Cumberland District will observe the 41st anniversary of Scouting in America with a pageant in 25 scenes to be presented in a theatre.

Each troop or pack will have charge of a scene, which will deal with some phase of Boy Scout training.

A narrator will announce each act which is designed to progressively show the training a Boy Scout receives from the time he is a Cub, through the Scout badges and finally the merit badges.

Scenes will deal with courtesy, obedience, the Flag, camping, first aid, signalling, segregation, and other "musts" of Scouting.

A local theatre or auditorium is being considered as the site of the production being rehearsed by the 25 packs and troops.

Smith said the Scouts and Cubs will be treated to a "fun night" during Scout Week. This will include movies, magic acts and stunts by outside entertainers. At this event the boys will be spectators, and not actors as they will be in the pageant.

Physicians Must Register For Draft On January 15

Doctors, dentists and veterinarians under 50 years of age and not now registered will be required to sign up for the draft sometime next month, according to P. Emmett Fahey, local draft board coordinator.

Fahey estimated that between 40 and 50 men will register in Cumberland's three boards. He said that about 15 are either in service or registered.

Tentative day for registration throughout the country is January 15, but in order for the date to become official, President Truman must issue a proclamation to that effect, Fahey pointed out.

13,000 Doctors Needed

Dr. Richard L. Meiling, director of medical service for the Defense Department, has estimated that about 13,000 doctors will be needed under the present plans to expand the military services to 3,500,000 men.

It was also announced today by Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state Selective Service director, that drafting of 19-year-old Marylanders will have to start in March if present quotas remain unchanged. However, nothing official on this phase of induction has been received by Fahey's office here.

18 to Get Physicals

"By the latter part of January we will probably be inducting 21-year-olds," Stanwood declared. At present, 22-year-olds are being called up to meet the state's draft quota. The present age limits for the draft are 19 through 25.

Colonel Stanwood said that if draft calls continue "about as they have been" Maryland will be able to meet them through April.

Meanwhile, the draft machinery continues to function, with a call for 18 men received today by Local Board 27 for armed forces physicals. The men will leave here January 8 at 5:55 a. m. for Martinsburg, W. Va., where they will be examined.

Two Vets Who Started Hauling Business After War Have Continued Success

Mortimer C. Schaidt, Jr. And Karl Bachman Buy Meders Transfer

Two local World War 11 veterans who formed a partnership in 1946 as the first GI's to enter business here following their war-time experiences, have made a marked degree of success and yesterday announced a decided expansion of their enterprise.

Schaidt

Effective today, the Maryland Motor Lines, operated by Mortimer C. Schaidt, Jr., 754 Fayette Street and Karl W. Bachman, 426 North Centre Street, will absorb and operate the Meders Transfer Company, purchased from Edward F. Meders.

When the two young men, who have been lifelong friends, started their motor lines on February 4, 1946, they did so with four pieces of equipment and six employees.

The business which consists of local and long distance hauling with a branch office in Pittsburgh, Pa., and headquarters here, has grown until the two young partners own and operate nine pieces of equipment and employ 12 men.

The Meders outfit consists of 12 pieces of equipment and 17 employes, all being absorbed by Maryland Motor Lines.

Bachman and Schaidt have also constructed a large storage warehouse and garage at 27 Laing Avenue, where the two operations will be consolidated.

Since forming the business here Bachman and Schaidt have concentrated largely on contract hauling between Cumberland and Pittsburgh and other long distance freight movement. The Meders outfit has been hauling local and long distance freight, coal and also engaged in moving household furniture anywhere in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Bachman

The acquisition of this business will now give Maryland Motor Lines freight rights throughout the Tri State Area, including Everett and Bedford, Pa., Petersburg, Romney, and Moorefield in West Virginia, Oakland, Grantsville, Accident and other communities in this section.

Schaidt said last night he plans to continue the management of the long distance business conducted by Maryland Motor Lines, while Bachman will devote his time to the management of the Meders operation.

1951 Predictions

Moderate Weather Forecast For Today

The moderate temperatures yesterday caused the traffic on most of the main arteries in the Tri State area to be heavy, but State Police are expecting an even larger number of cars by late this afternoon.

Unofficial temperatures in downtown Cumberland fluctuated slightly around 30 degrees yesterday. The highest temperature in Constitution Park was 36 degrees and the lowest reported was 28 degrees.

At Thomas, W. Va., where skies were reported cloudy, the temperature was 18 degrees at 7 o'clock last night.

A temperature of 20 degrees was reported from Deal, Pa., were skies were also cloudy.

New Safety Tags For Pedestrians Distributed Here

Lynn Walker Warns Of Weekend Danger

The Western Maryland Safety Council is cooperating with the Maryland State Police in distributing pedestrian safety tags, according to Lynn Walker, president of the council.

These tags are white and can be worn by the pedestrian as a badge when walking on the highway to make it easier for drivers of motor vehicles to see them.

On one side of the card, there are rules for pedestrian safety as follows:

Be alert to protect yourself — don't depend on luck or the operator of the car.

Look both ways before you cross — make sure the way is clear.

At night wear or carry something white so that the driver of the car can see you before it is too late.

A thousand tags have been delivered to PTA organizations in the county for distribution to members. This work, Walker said, has been handled by Walter G. Bell, safety chairman of the Allegany County Council of Parent Teacher Associations.

The Cumberland Transit Lines, through their drivers on suburban routes, have also assisted the Safety Council in placing the tags in the hands of those who walk on the highway at night.

Walker said, "We are facing a national emergency that will demand every last ounce of effort we can throw into the balance to assure the survival of our way of life. In spite of the constant reminders of this need to conserve our strength and our assets, we go on a binge and over the Christmas weekend squander 545 lives in traffic."

According to the estimate of the National Safety Council we face the dismal prospect of an additional 330 deaths through the New Year weekend from the same source.

"Impatience, thoughtlessness, or the decision to have just one more drink before I go, is a weak alibi for an automobile accident that may rob our nation of its most precious asset, the life of a free man working to maintain and strengthen freedom," Walker added.

County Farmers Advised To Check Run Off Of Soil

O'Neal Emphasizes Great Loss Of Land

Allegany county farmers were asked yesterday by Albert O'Neal, chairman of the Allegany County Production and Marketing Administration, if rain and fast-melting snow take top soil from their farms.

Chairman O'Neal raised this question to call attention to the tons and tons of top soil which have left Allegany county during 1950, with some of the county's best land going down the Potomac River with every heavy rain.

"Too many farmers unwittingly help prepare their land for these trips to the sea by keeping the top soil pulverized so that it takes very little water to carry it away," O'Neal said. "Many farmers also make it easier for the run-off to take the soil away by running furrows up and down the slope," he added.

The "business side" of the farm is the top side—the layer of top soil in which the roots of growing crops obtain moisture and essential minerals. When it is washed away, it may take years to restore the land to productivity.

To check this soil runoff, O'Neal recommends sodded fields. However, because it is not practical to have all the land in sod, the next best way of checking the soil is to run the furrows on the contours.

One of the big jobs of the agricultural conservation program is to help farmers do the things which will keep their good top soil at home and many of the conservation practices are primarily for this purpose, O'Neal emphasized.

Farmers in Allegany county are improving their soil by using lime and fertilizer provided under the 1950 PMA program. O'Neal reminds all farmers to report their lime and fertilizer usage for 1950 immediately.

Woman Hurt In Auto Crash Near Bedford

Pennsylvania State Police reported that a California woman suffered a possible fractured leg in a two-car collision on the turnpike about 40 miles east of Bedford yesterday.

Mrs. Geraldine Jacobs, wife of John Jacobs, 28, Riverside, Calif., driver of one car, was taken to Timmins Hospital in Bedford after the accident, police said.

A car driven by Norman K. Muschany, 25, St. Charles, Mo., reportedly skidded on an icy spot in the highway and crashed against the Jacobs car which was traveling in the opposite direction. The Jacobs vehicle was overturned. Neither driver was injured.

Damages to Muschany's automobile amounted to $150 and $300 to Jacobs' car, police reported.

Winter's Record Begins Parallel Of Flood Years

Snowfall In December Totaled Nearly Foot

The stage is being set for high water and possibly floods in the area, so far as weather records show, according to Robert R. Golden, superintendent of Constitution Park and official local weather observer.

There is enough snow in the mountains of the area now, to cause serious trouble, if there should be a warm rain or sudden thaw over the water shed, Golden observed.

During December, just ended, there was a total of 10.7 inches of snowfall recorded here, with a melted precipitation of 2.29 inches. Snowfall in the area, especially the mountainous sections was much greater.

In December 1923, there was no snow but there was 3.53 inches of precipitation recorded. This was the December preceding the heavy snows of January, February and March, just before the 1924 flood.

For December 1935, preceding the 1936 deluge here, snowfall was 10.3 inches and precipitation was 2.20 inches. Almost identical with the December record.

However, cold weather, Golden comments, retards the melting of the snow. Warm days and cold nights also gives the melted snow a chance to run off gradually, so there is no real flood danger unless the snows continue heavily through the winter, or there is a sudden thaw with the grounds carrying two and three feet of snow over the water shed.

	Snowfall	Precipi.
December, 1935	10.8 in.	2.20 in.
January, 1936	16.7 in.	4.14 in.
February, 1936	8.0 in.	3.34 in.
March, 1936	3.7 in.	5.42 in.
December, 1923	none	3.53 in.
January, 1924	8.0 in.	4.14 in.
February, 1924	20.5 in.	2.69 in.
March, 1924	20.0 in.	5.18 in.

November Auto Accidents Kill Three In County

Allegany County had three fatal accidents in which three persons were killed during the month of November a report from Maryland State Police Traffic Collision Statistical Bureau shows.

Altogether state police investigated 10 automobile accidents in November when 12 persons were injured in addition to the fatalities.

Six of the accidents occurred between two or more cars, two with automobiles and fixed objects, one car overturned in the road and one hit a pedestrian. The report shows the pedestrian was killed and fatalities resulted in one of the fixed objects collisions and the overturned automobile in the road.

The police report stated two of the auto collisions happened between cars traveling more than 70 miles per hour, three when the driver of one car failed to keep to the right of the center of the road and the others for miscellaneous reasons.

Property damage resulted from two of the collisions. Forty-eight arrests were made by the state police and 51 warnings given to drivers. Three of the arrests were for excessive speeding and 16 for reckless driving. Thirty-four of the warnings were for light violations, the report read.

The statistics also revealed most of the accidents occurred between the hours of midnight and 1 a.m. and 6 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday proved to be the worst days for traveling as most of the accidents happened on these days. Monday proved to be an excellent day for Allegany County motorists as not a single collision marked the month of November on that day.

Has Anybody Seen Whizzie?

Little Miss Donna Lee Metz, McMullen Highway, near Dawson, has lost her pet and playmate "Whizzie" and the little girl is grief-stricken. "Whizzie" looks like a very intelligent cat, and Donna Lee's father believes he must be penned up somewhere or he would find his way back home.

Three-Year-Old Girl Appeals For Return Of Pet "Whizzie"

Blue Maltese Cat Was Playmate

It isn't a very Happy New Year for little Miss Donna Lee Metz, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold "Horsey" Metz, of near Dawson, because "Whizzie" didn't come home.

"Whizzie" is a two-year-old pet cat at the Metz household, who disappeared Christmas eve. Donna Lee doesn't believe "Whizzie" followed Santa Claus back to the North Pole, because if he had Santa would have sent one of his helpers back with him.

The Metz family lives along the McMullen Highway and "Whizzie" was always very careful of the traffic. It isn't likely that he was run over, but it seems more probable to the family that he may have been picked up and carried away by some passing motorist or others in the vicinity.

The family has advertised the fact that "Whizzie" is missing and a liberal award is offered for his return. He is a blue Maltese-type tom cat, according to Donna Lee, and she is appealing to anyone who might have him to bring him back, or anyone who might know where he is to tell her.

Plane Makes Safe Landing In Local Area

Police Report No One Hurt; Craft OK

State Police said yesterday they had received information from the Civil Aeronautics Administration in Washington that the plane reported missing Saturday night in the Cumberland area had landed safely somewhere west of here.

The LaVale barracks sent Trooper William F. Baker to investigate the report the plane was down west of Frostburg.

CAA authorities relayed the information to the Maryland police here that the AT-6 plane had developed trouble with the hydraulic landing gear and was seeking a spot to set down. The plane landed safely with no injuries to the occupants and no damage to the plane. Police said the definite spot picked for the landing was not reported to them and that the plane had evidently resumed its flight after making necessary repairs.

The craft reportedly was enroute from Detroit, Mich. to Rockville, and had been scheduled to land at the Congressional Airport near there.

Warren Mullenax, local airport manager, heard a radio report from the stricken craft Saturday night while preparing to make a flight from the airport. He said last night "the plane was calling the control tower in Martinsburg, W. Va., and reported trouble with its hydraulic landing gear."

Mullenax related he could get no contact with the plane and that he and several other local pilots made a search of the area at the time but could find no trace of the disabled craft.

Public school children of Allegany County will have a holiday tomorrow but will be back in school at 9 a.m. Wednesday. They started their holiday at 1 p.m. December 22.

One Year Old Today

First Local Baby In 1950 Marks Birthday Today

The event took place last year at 7:23 p.m. in Allegany Hospital and the child weighed five pounds, 10 oz. at birth. Today, she weighs 22½ pounds and stands 27½ inches in height.

Her mother explains that Denise Maire has been a perfectly normal child during the past year, has been in all ways well, and has made the normal accomplishments for a child in its first year. For example, she says "Hi" to strangers; calls her parents "Mommy" and "Daddy" and her 22-month-old brother, she calls "Aull" for Paul.

Local Scout Troops Plan Pageant Here In February

A pareant depicting Scouting will be the feature of the local observance of National Boy Scout Week February 6 to 12, Willis V. Smith, executive of Potomac Council has announced.

Smith explained that each year a Scout circus has been held at the State Armory, but last year the event "outgrew" the building.

He said the 25 troops and Cub packs that gathered to present stunts and demonstrate various phases of scouting last year was too large for the accommodations.

This year, the Boy Scouts and Cubs of Cumberland District will observe the 41st anniversary of Scouting in America with a pageant in 25 scenes to be presented in a theatre.

Each troop or pack will have charge of a scene, which will deal with some phase of Boy Scout training.

A narrator will announce each act which is designed to progressively show the training a Boy Scout receives from the time he is a Cub, through the Scout badges and finally the merit badges.

Scenes will deal with courtesy, obedience, the Flag, camping, first aid, signalling, segregation, and other "musts" of Scouting.

A local theatre or auditorium is being considered as the site of the production being rehearsed by the 25 packs and troops.

Smith said the Scouts and Cubs will be treated to a "fun night" during Scout Week. This will include movies, magic acts and stunts by outside entertainers. At this event the boys will be spectators, and not actors as they will be in the pageant.

Physicians Must Register For Draft On January 15

Doctors, dentists and veterinarians under 50 years of age and not now registered will be required to sign up for the draft sometime next month, according to P. Emmett Fahey, local draft board coordinator.

Fahey estimated that between 40 and 50 men will register in Cumberland's three boards. He said that about 15 are either in service or registered.

Tentative day for registration throughout the country is January 15, but in order for the date to become official, President Truman must issue a proclamation to that effect, Fahey pointed out.

13,000 Doctors Needed

Dr. Richard L. Meiling, director of medical service for the Defense Department, has estimated that about 13,000 doctors will be needed under the present plans to expand the military services to 3,500,000 men.

It was also announced today by Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state Selective Service director, that drafting of 19-year-old Marylanders will have to start in March if present quotas remain unchanged. However, nothing official on this phase of induction has been received by Fahey's office here.

18 to Get Physicals

"By the latter part of January we will probably be inducting 21-year-olds," Stanwood declared. At present, 22-year-olds are being called up to meet the state's draft quota. The present age limits for the draft are 19 through 25.

Colonel Stanwood said that if draft calls continue "about as they have been" Maryland will be able to meet them through April.

Meanwhile, the draft machinery continues to function, with a call for 18 men received today by Local Board 27 for armed forces physicals. The men will leave here January 8 at 5:55 a. m. for Martinsburg, W. Va., where they will be examined.

Two Vets Who Started Hauling Business After War Have Continued Success

Mortimer C. Schaidt, Jr. And Karl Bachman Buy Meders Transfer

Two local World War 11 veterans who formed a partnership in 1946 as the first GI's to enter business here following their war-time experiences, have made a marked degree of success and yesterday announced a decided expansion of their enterprise.

Schaidt

Effective today, the Maryland Motor Lines, operated by Mortimer C. Schaidt, Jr., 754 Fayette Street and Karl W. Bachman, 426 North Centre Street, will absorb and operate the Meders Transfer Company, purchased from Edward F. Meders.

When the two young men, who have been lifelong friends, started their motor lines on February 4, 1946, they did so with four pieces of equipment and six employees.

The business which consists of local and long distance hauling with a branch office in Pittsburgh, Pa., and headquarters here, has grown until the two young partners own and operate nine pieces of equipment and employ 12 men.

The Meders outfit consists of 12 pieces of equipment and 17 employes, all being absorbed by Maryland Motor Lines.

Bachman and Schaidt have also constructed a large storage warehouse and garage at 27 Laing Avenue, where the two operations will be consolidated.

Since forming the business here Bachman and Schaidt have concentrated largely on contract hauling between Cumberland and Pittsburgh and other long distance freight movement. The Meders outfit has been hauling local and long distance freight, coal and also engaged in moving household furniture anywhere in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Bachman

The acquisition of this business will now give Maryland Motor Lines freight rights throughout the Tri State Area, including Everett and Bedford, Pa., Petersburg, Romney, and Moorefield in West Virginia, Oakland, Grantsville, Accident and other communities in this section.

Schaidt said last night he plans to continue the management of the long distance business conducted by Maryland Motor Lines, while Bachman will devote his time to the management of the Meders operation.

New Safety Tags For Pedestrians Distributed Here

Lynn Walker Warns Of Weekend Danger

The Western Maryland Safety Council is cooperating with the Maryland State Police in distributing pedestrian safety tags, according to Lynn Walker, president of the council.

These tags are white and can be worn by the pedestrian as a badge when walking on the highway to make it easier for drivers of motor vehicles to see them.

On one side of the card, there are rules for pedestrian safety as follows:

Be alert to protect yourself — don't depend on luck or the operator of the car.

Look both ways before you cross — make sure the way is clear.

At night wear or carry something white so that the driver of the car can see you before it is too late.

A thousand tags have been delivered to PTA organizations in the county for distribution to members. This work, Walker said, has been handled by Walter G. Bell, safety chairman of the Allegany County Council of Parent Teacher Associations.

The Cumberland Transit Lines, through their drivers on suburban routes, have also assisted the Safety Council in placing the tags in the hands of those who walk on the highway at night.

Walker said, "We are facing a national emergency that will demand every last ounce of effort we can throw into the balance to assure the survival of our way of life. In spite of the constant reminders of this need to conserve our strength and our assets, we go on a binge and over the Christmas weekend squander 545 lives in traffic."

According to the estimate of the National Safety Council we face the dismal prospect of an additional 330 deaths through the New Year weekend from the same source.

"Impatience, thoughtlessness, or the decision to have just one more drink before I go, is a weak alibi for an automobile accident that may rob our nation of its most precious asset, the life of a free man working to maintain and strengthen freedom," Walker added.

O'Neal Emphasizes Great Loss Of Land

Allegany county farmers were asked yesterday by Albert O'Neal, chairman of the Allegany County Production and Marketing Administration, if rain and fast-melting snow take top soil from their farms.

Chairman O'Neal raised this question to call attention to the tons and tons of top soil which have left Allegany county during 1950, with some of the county's best land going down the Potomac River with every heavy rain.

"Too many farmers unwittingly help prepare their land for these trips to the sea by keeping the top soil pulverized so that it takes very little water to carry it away," O'Neal said. "Many farmers also make it easier for the run-off to take the soil away by running furrows up and down the slope," he added.

The "business side" of the farm is the top side—the layer of top soil in which the roots of growing crops obtain moisture and essential minerals. When it is washed away, it may take years to restore the land to productivity.

To check this soil runoff, O'Neal recommends sodded fields. However, because it is not practical to have all the land in sod, the next best way of checking the soil is to run the furrows on the contours.

One of the big jobs of the agricultural conservation program is to help farmers do the things which will keep their good top soil at home and many of the conservation practices are primarily for this purpose, O'Neal emphasized.

Farmers in Allegany county are improving their soil by using lime and fertilizer provided under the 1950 PMA program. O'Neal reminds all farmers to report their lime and fertilizer usage for 1950 immediately.

Moderate Weather Forecast For Today

The moderate temperatures yesterday caused the traffic on most of the main arteries in the Tri State area to be heavy, but State Police are expecting an even larger number of cars by late this afternoon.

Unofficial temperatures in downtown Cumberland fluctuated slightly around 30 degrees yesterday. The highest temperature in Constitution Park was 36 degrees and the lowest reported was 28 degrees.

At Thomas, W. Va., where skies were reported cloudy, the temperature was 18 degrees at 7 o'clock last night.

A temperature of 20 degrees was reported from Deal, Pa., were skies were also cloudy.

Woman Hurt In Auto Crash Near Bedford

Pennsylvania State Police reported that a California woman suffered a possible fractured leg in a two-car collision on the turnpike about 40 miles east of Bedford yesterday.

Mrs. Geraldine Jacobs, wife of John Jacobs, 28, Riverside, Calif., driver of one car, was taken to Timmins Hospital in Bedford after the accident, police said.

A car driven by Norman K. Muschany, 25, St. Charles, Mo., reportedly skidded on an icy spot in the highway and crashed against the Jacobs car which was traveling in the opposite direction. The Jacobs vehicle was overturned. Neither driver was injured.

Damages to Muschany's automobile amounted to $150 and $300 to Jacobs' car, police reported.

Weather Forecast

CHINESE BIG GUNS POUND ALLIES

Japanese May Have To Fight, M'Arthur Says

Message Points Up Nippon Uneasiness

TOKYO, Dec. 31 (AP) — Gen. MacArthur told the Japanese people today they soon may have to shoulder arms with the United Nations to oppose Communism.

The General said in his annual New Year's message to this occupied country that if "international lawlessness" continues to threaten peace, "it will become your duty within the principles of the United Nations, in concert with others who cherish freedom, to mount force to repel force."

Some Japanese believe their islands are on the edge of open attack. The majority believe that the Allied loss of Korea would expose the archipelago to constant danger of assault.

Air Attacks Feared

The new year opened with renewed nervous talk in this country that Communist warplanes might yet hit at the American airfields in Japan mounting Allied assaults on Korea targets.

MacArthur gave no indication in his statement whether he thought Japan was menaced sufficiently now to permit the open rearmament which many apprehensive Japanese believe necessary.

In effect, however, he warned, that while the democracies will continue to protect these islands, Japan cannot expect them to do it alone.

The General went farther than ever before in agreeing with the Japanese that their no-war constitution was an inadequate dike in a tumultuous east.

Praised As An Ideal

After praising it as an ideal, he said: "If however, international lawlessness continues to threaten the peace and to exercise dominion over the lives of men, it is inherent that this ideal must give way to the overwhelming law of self preservation" and the Japanese will be duty bound to fight for themselves.

"It is my fervent hope that such an eventuality will never come to pass, but should it, Japan's security would be the deep concern of all the other free nations of the Pacific area," he said.

MacArthur, in all of his public statements, is caught in the web of official policy surrounding the postwar administration of Japan. He cannot bluntly tell the Japanese to begin building defenses, lest Communist propaganda or the concern of war-scarred Pacific neighbors create an international furor too big to stop.

Dr. Karl Renner, Aged President Of Austria, Dies

Nation Is Plunged Into Deep Mourning

VIENNA, Dec. 31 (AP)—The death of her aged president turned Austria into a nation of mourning today.

The New Year's holiday atmosphere disappeared swiftly as the country awoke to news of the death of Dr. Karl Renner, 80-year-old "savior of the fatherland."

Hundreds of New Year's Eve celebrations were cancelled. Vienna's radio stations turned from holiday music to classics written by composers who lived and wrote in Vienna. Instead of gay holiday streamers, Austrians flew thousands of black flags from the windows of their homes.

Renner died of a heart ailment in his villa in Grinzing, a wine growing suburb of Vienna, just after midnight.

Chancellor Leopold Figl went to the President's home immediately and expressed the sympathy of the nation to Renner's widow, Luise, and a daughter who had been at the bedside when Renner died.

Then Figl announced that national mourning would begin formally on New Year's Day. The body is to lie in state in the presidential palace in central Vienna, where Austrians will have the opportunity of looking on the remains of the revered founder of the First and Second Austrian Republics. The body was taken to the palace this afternoon.

Burial will take place Friday in a plot in Vienna's central cemetery.

The government announced that Chancellor Figl would act as president for 14 days. In the meantime, the nation's assembly will meet to appoint a new president.

Arms Buying Speedup Move Is Considered

May Shift Task To NPA Director

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — A shakeup in the military buying program was reported under study today. It may put William H. Harrison in charge of defense buying as well as industrial production.

The move, officials said privately, is being studied by Charles E. Wilson, newly named director of the Office of Defense Mobilization.

A number of officials have voiced dissatisfaction to Wilson over what they regard as the slow rate of acceleration in the placing of munitions orders.

Some have suggested that Harrison, the boss of priorities and civilian industry as chief of the National Production Authority, be given general control over the procurement activities of the munitions board and the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Wilson Is "Disturbed"

Harrison would operate under Wilson, who received supreme authority over all civilian mobilization activities from President Truman two weeks ago.

Whether Wilson will accept this drastic proposal or adopt some other device was uncertain. But his associates said he is "disturbed" over procurement and definitely will take action soon.

Other officials said Wilson may, at the same time or later, merge Harrison's NPA with the other emergency bureaus in the Commerce Commission and other agencies.

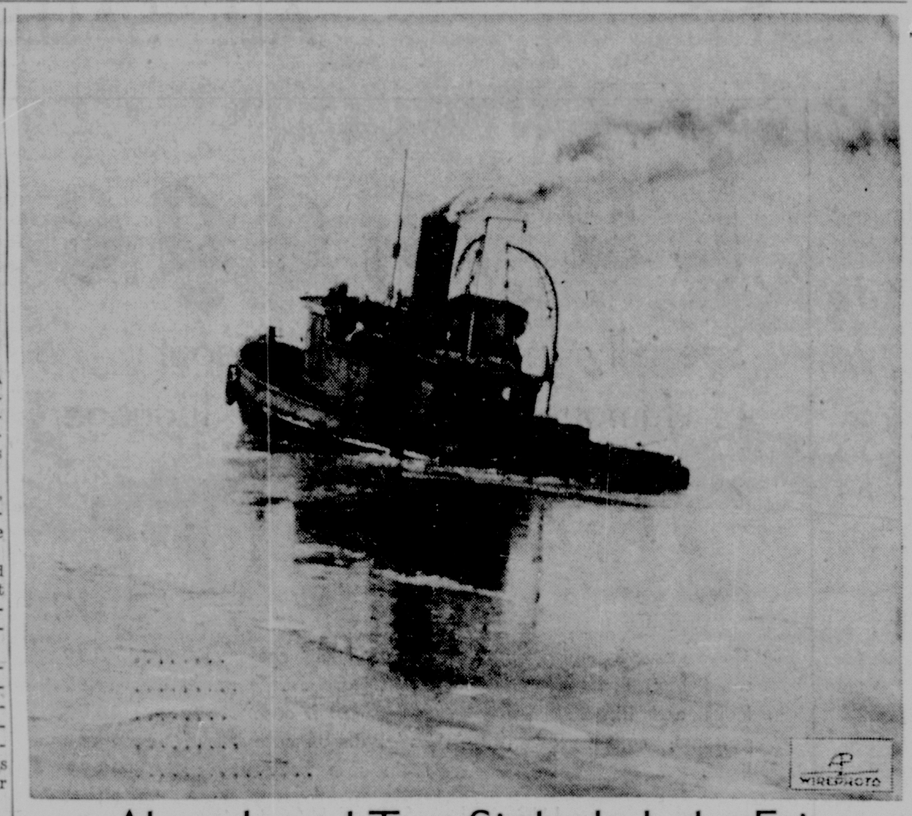
Harrison was president of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co. until brought to Washington this fall. During World War II he was vice chairman of the War Production Board in charge of production, then became a major general in charge of Signal Corps procurement.

Good But Not Good Enough

The Defense Department has reported that its major purchase commitments up to December 1 totaled $9,200,000,000. At that time, military appropriations totaled roughly $250,000,000,000. Another $19,000,000,000 is about to be approved.

The rate of military spending when fighting broke out was about $12,000,000,000 a year. Civilian experts estimate the annual rate had risen to $16,800,000,000 by October, $17,700,000,000 in November, and $18,500,000,000 in December.

Wilson and his top aides in ODM are said to consider this "pretty good" but not yet good enough. They are aware that tooling-up is a slow process and is followed by a deluge of production when the lines finally start rolling.



Abandoned Tug Sinks In Lake Erie

The tug William R. Panton is shown sinking slowly at the stern shortly after she was abandoned in Lake Erie five miles off shore. Ice fields caused her to spring a leak while preparing to send divers down in search of the tug Sachem, missing for 13 days with her crew of 12. The seven aboard the Panton were rescued by a sister tug.

"Looks Like Beginning Of Something Big," U. S. Eighth Army Officer Says

TOKYO, Monday, Jan. 1 (AP) — The year 1951 came to Korea under a barrage of Red artillery and strong probing thrusts by quilt-cloaked Chinese infantrymen at United Nations outposts along the ice-jammed Imjin River defense line, north of Seoul.

It was the first time Chinese big guns had pounded U. N. positions since the retreat from Pyongyang, Dec. 5.

Whether it was the kickoff of the long-awaited Chinese-Korean Red offensive by vanguards of 1,000,000 men or more, could not be immediately determined. However, there was ominous warning in the roar of the Communist cannonade. Shells started falling behind U.N. lines after dark Sunday at the rate of one every 10 minutes.

Shortly before midnight, Chinese charged forward in "powerful probing attacks," Macbeth reported.

New Snow Falls

The front he referred to was the southward-angled western sector, following the Imjin River on its crooked course to the sea. It flows anywhere from 22 to 30 miles north of the semi-deserted South Korean capital of Seoul.

Two enemy long-range guns signalled the opening barrage about 35 miles north of Seoul. A gentle snowfall, the first in weeks, muffled the front.

The commanding general of the U. N. division (censorship forbids further identification) said he was "not worried" about the situation on his sector.

"If they come through us," he said. "They are going to lose one hell of a lot of people. I believe we can stop them."

GIs Watch And Wait

Up the line, parka-clad soldiers tried to keep warm as they watched and waited in the black night. In the rear, men played cards, talked, and also waited. Initial reports of the enemy action were sketchy. Macbeth said a spokesman estimated an attack at more than company size at one point. A Chinese company numbers about 150 men.

The main Red drive—aimed to push U. N. forces into the sea—had been expected in that western sector of the front.

Two Chinese Red army corps—numbering about 60,000 men—have been sighted north of the Imjin River, poised for a push on Seoul.

Nearly two-thirds of the civilians have fled Seoul, recently a city of 1,500,000.

Gen. MacArthur, in a late Sunday war summary, said that "sizable concentrations" of Red artillery and Russian-made T-34 tanks have been appearing in the past few days north of the Imjin, on the Eighth Army's west flank.

Also—during the past 72 hours—the General said, Red troops, supplies and artillery moved into forward areas "on all roads and trails leading south" in the central and eastern sectors.

Acheson Says U. S. Has Power To "Retaliate"

Nation's Need Now Is To Produce More

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson said today "we have power to retaliate against any aggressor who attacks us and our friends and that power cannot be overlooked."

"We expect to make ourselves respected and to deter aggression," Acheson declared in a broadcast interview.

The nation's great need now is to produce more, Acheson said, adding:

Churchill's Prescription

"The prescription which we need today is the prescription which Mr. Churchil gave to England in 1940—blood and toil, sweat and tears—and may I add, faith—faith in our country, faith that the great task before us can be done and that it will be done."

He was asked what he thought of remarks that the present is "America's darkest hour."

Acheson said that any nation's darkest hour comes "when its citizens lose their will and their courage."

"Americans have never done that," he said. "During the winter of Valey Force many people thought that was our country's darkest hour, but Gen. Washington and his army and the people who supported him in the country never lost their courage and never lost their will.

Faster Arms Buildup Necessary

"Other people thought that, nine years ago now, the night of Pearl Harbor was our darkest hour, but again Americans never lost their will and they never lost their courage. And they faced up to the challenge which that event brought before them."

Acheson said the threat of aggression in the world today "calls for action on our part to build our strength." He declared the United States has to build tanks, guns, planes and other weapons and build them faster than it is doing so far.

Is Europe Ready To Defend Self? Senators Ask

Republicans Demand Truman Give Facts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Three Republican senators demanded today that President Truman tell the country how determined Europe is to fight if aggression comes.

Sen. Wherry, the GOP floor leader, posed in a radio interview the question: "Is Western Europe prepared today to defend itself?" He added:

"If they are, why are they now asking that we furnish the foot soldiers to give them the defense they are asking?"

(The Atlantic pact nations have set out to build a force of 1,000,000 men by the end of 1953 to defend a line across Europe from Communist aggression. The United States will send additional troops to Europe as a part of this international army under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The number has not been stated. American arms aid also is pledged in the undertaking.)

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), who voted against the North Atlantic defense treaty, wrote Mr. Truman asserting that Americans generally "desperately need to know what the European nations are determined to do for themselves."

Sen. Kem (R-Mo) told a reporter he thinks the whole question of whether this country is going to continue to give military and economic help to Western Europe is going to be aired thoroughly in the new Congress which takes over Wednesday. He said:

"I think Congress and the American people have got to be shown clearly that the other nations are willing to fight to defend themselves.

"The people don't want another Korea where we furnish 90 per cent of the men and suffer 90 per cent of the casualties."

Mild Weather Is Expected To Cut Holiday Deaths

(By International News Service)

The toll of holiday deaths, hours before the New Year's Eve celebration, has reached 124 but indications are that fatalities for the three-day weekend will be fewer than expected.

The National Safety Council, which was shocked by last week's Christmas holiday when a record number of accidental deaths were recorded across the nation, predicted 330 persons will die this weeked in traffic accidents alone.

So far, traffic has claimed 85 lives. Another 39 died in miscellaneous mishaps.

Mild weather for most of nation is expected to cut the number of traffic fatalities.

Gary, W. Va., Fire Claims 5 Lives

GARY, W. Va., Dec. 31 (AP)—Five persons were burned to death early today when they were caught in their beds on the second floor of a flaming house, Assistant Fire Chief Andrew Sironko, Jr., said.

He identified the victims as Mrs. Mildred Bratton, 32; her three daughters, Louise, 11, Juanita, 9, and Lilly, 8; and Mrs. Mattie Cox, 87-year-old grandmother of Mrs. Bratton. Mrs. Cox was a resident of nearby Coalwood.

Uninjured were Roy Bratton, husband of Mrs. Bratton, and two other sons, Roy, Jr., age 12, and Clayton, age 6.

Sironko said that the charred bodies of two of the children and Mrs. Bratton were found on one upstairs bed, and those of Mrs. Cox, who was visiting the family, and another child on a second bed.

Unprecedented House Session On Tap Today

Rushes To Complete Emergency Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — A jammed docket of war emergency legislation, led off by an excess profits tax, brings the House into an unprecedented New Year's Day session tomorrow.

The Senate waits until Tuesday. Then both branches will wind up the business of the "lame duck" session of the 81st Congress and make way for the 82nd to convene Wednesday.

Here is the list of major business that keeps the lawmakers' noses to the grindstone right up to the last minute of the term:

1. A compromise measure, already approved by the Senate, to levy a 77 per cent tax on "excess profits" of corporations, retroactive to July 1.

2. An emergency defense appropriation of about $20,000,000,000 still needing conference committee agreement on differences between Senate and House versions, as well as approval by the two houses.

3. A $3,100,000,000 three-year program for protection of the people against atomic and germ warfare, to be directed by a new independent Civil Defense Administration. Neither house has acted finally.

4. A proposal for expansion of President Truman's war powers, permitting him to revise, consolidate and expand executive agencies, and to renegotiate defense contracts. Prospects are none too bright for the executive reorganization section, and when the House and Senate get through there may be nothing left but the provision for a second look at the deals the government makes for hurry-up delivery of fighting tools.

Altogether the list amounts to one of the heaviest session-end loads in recent years and accounts for the House's decision to meet on the holiday. Records in the clerk's office show no previous meeting by either branch of Congress on New Year's.

Whatever happens to the pending legislation, the two remaining days will give many of the congressmen their last votes on such issues. In the House 71 members are "lame ducks," defeated either in the November election, or retiring voluntarily.

Nazi Foes Plan War Repealers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — The United States and most of the other World War II foes of the Nazis are preparing to join soon in concerted action to terminate formally their state of war with Germany.

Administration officials forecast today that President Truman or the State Department will ask the new Congress probably in the next two weeks to declare that this country no longer is in conflict with Germany.

Britain, France and other nations which helped crush the Nazis are expected to take action about the same time as a gesture to welcome Western Germany back into the community of nations. It is short of a treaty of peace.

Of 47 countries considered to be still technically at war with Germany more than five years after V-E Day, 25 or 30 have indicated informally that they are prepared to take repealer steps now.

New York Gov. Dewey Takes Oath Of Office

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 31 (INS)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey took the oath of office today for the third term he said last June he didn't want.

Before a small group of relatives and aides in the executive mansion, the Governor was administered the oath this afternoon by Chief Judge John T. Loughran of the Court of Appeals.

He will repeat it publicly tomorrow in the executive chamber at inaugural ceremonies made austere because of the troubled international situation.

Immigration Law Revision Urged

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) said today the nation's immigration laws are a mess and he is going to ask the new Congress to unsnarl and tighten them.

McCarran, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, disclosed he will introduce early in the session starting Wednesday a bulky bill completely revising the laws that govern the entrance of aliens into this country.

He told reporters the present immigration law "by reason of the multiplicity of amendments put in at various times is today a conglomerate with no direct body to it."

McCarran introduced a revision bill last summer, primarily to give the Judiciary Committee something to work on. He said it will be reintroduced when the job is finished.

Hope Signs Contracts

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 31 (AP) — Bob Hope has signed long-term contract renewals with Paramount Pictures and the National Broadcasting Company, it was announced today.

Ecuador Delegate Is New President Of Security Council

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 31 (AP) — Ecuador's Antonio Quevedo succeeds Dr. T. F. Tsiang of Nationalist China tomorrow as president of the United Nations Security Council. The council presidency rotates alphabetically every month.

Three new members, elected last fall by the General Assembly, will also take their seats. They are Brazil, which succeeds Cuba; the Netherlands, taking over from Norway; and Turkey, which won the seat formerly held by Egypt.

Ecuador, India and Yugoslavia hold the other elective seats in the 11-nation body while China, France, Britain, the United States and Russia are permanent members.

235 New Casualties

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 235 persons in Korean war casualty list No. 189, including 184 wounded, 39 killed, six missing in action, six injured in accidents.

Curbs On Metals, Rubber In Effect

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (INS)—Government curbs on civilian use of seven critical materials take effect Monday as the probable forerunners of more sweeping cutbacks that will be felt by every housewife and businessman.

New federal restrictions become operative on copper, zinc, tin, natural rubber, nickel, aluminum and cobalt with industry predicting substantially smaller output in 1951 of automobiles, radio and television sets, and a wide range of other consumer items.

The National Production Administration's orders automatically go into effect amid signs that officials are preparing to take a still larger share of scarce and critical items to keep the defense program rolling full steam.

In fact, high-placed authorities frankly state that the government has no choice but to tighten and extend allocation and consumption orders to speed the outpouring of war weapons and equipment.

Other effects will be the use of a higher percentage of synthetic rubber in automobile tires and other rubber goods and changes in the composition of many other widely-used consumer items.

Tense World Welcomes 1951 With Hope It May Point Way To Peace

[By The Associated Press]

A tense world today bade farewell to the old year and welcomed in the new with the fervent hope that, somehow, it might point the way to peace.

Millions said farewell to the fading year with traditional revelry. But their shouts of "Happy New Year" were tinged with foreboding for the future and what it might bring.

Other millions disdained merry-making. They stayed quietly at home or knelt in churches and prayed for peace and the safety of loved ones already fighting on distant battlefields.

Hundreds of American churches set aside yesterday as a day of prayer, beseeching divine aid in the search for permanent peace. From their pulpits ministers counseled that strife and threats of war could only be silenced by greater spiritual strength and morality.

Although the day's customary celebrations were dampened by the international crisis, merrymakers crowded nightspots around the world to greet 1951.

The scene was similar in other cities throughout the nation.

In Europe, too, there was merriment and more to drink than usual. Many threw restraint to the wind and celebrated "while there's still time."

Berlin night clubs were jammed. In Paris, Frenchmen downed record quantities of champagne.

U. S. Population Now Set At 152,340,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Census Bureau today estimated the population residing in continental United States at 152,340,000.

The 1950 census, taken as of April 1, recorded 150,697,361.

For the year as a whole, Census Director Frank R. Wilson estimated in a statement that the net increase was 2,233,000. This was based on 3,704,000 births, 1,461,000 deaths and a net emigration of 10,000.

Marshall Cautions U. S. On Mobilization

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall cautioned the nation today that "a too rapid attempt at mobilization is very apt to delay the ultimate speed" of rearmament.

In a year's end message carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System, Marshall said that there is "a tendency to feel that the more rapidly we appropriate billions and the more rapidly men are called into service, the safer we will be."

"I do not think the solution is so simple," he continued. "x x x We must not become involved by impatience or ignorance in an ill-considered overnight expansion which would smother well-considered methods and leave us in a dilemma of confused results, half-baked and fatally unbalanced."

House Members To Relax In New $190 Chairs Today

The new seating, of natural leather and foam-rubber construction, is part of the swank new decor applied to the House chamber at a cost of $2,667,000.

The Senate has had its quarters done over, too, at a cost of $2,467,000 but the senators won't move in until Wednesday.

The senators turned down new seating in favor of the old chairs and desks which have adorned the Senate floor for almost 100 years.

Tomorrow is the official unveiling of the first Senate-House redecoration since the chambers were completed in 1859.

Gone are the structural steel trusses put up a few years ago to prevent the roofs from falling in.

While most members approve, there are some who are pained. Probably the most vocal of the latter are Rep. Hinshaw (R-Calif) and Rep. Bolton (R-Ohio).

Girl Mental Patient's Book Heads For Best-Seller List

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP) — A schoolgirl mental patient here has turned her illness into material for a book of verse which is moving towards the ranks of best sellers.

Her publishers predict national fame by next spring and Dr. Winfred Overholser, psychiatrist and superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, says the work and its public acceptance have done his patient great good.

The writer is Eithne Tabor, now 19 and a patient at the federal mental hospital for two years. Her book is "The Cliff's Edge, Songs of a Psychotic."

Dr. Overholser described the work to a reporter today as autobiographical, a poetic account and interpretation of the author's experiences in the course of mental upsets and of treatments for them.

"She feels she has done something the outside world approves and that alone is doing her a lot of good," Dr. Overholser said.

All the writing has been done since Miss Tabor entered the hospital, and much of it she says she cannot recall writing. Some was rescued by ward nurses after she had discarded it.

The Washington Times-Herald, reporting an interview with the girl, describes her as shy, a little tomboyish, red haired and apparently as bright and normal as the girl next door.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, (INS) A NEWSPAPERMAN'S prayer for '51 (revised):

Dear God, may I be fair. Circumstances and luck have placed in my thumby paws a degree of authority which I may not fully comprehend. Let me not profane it.

Give me that drive that will make me check and counter-check the facts. Guide me when lost for want of a rudder or a lead, I stumble through the jungle of speculation. Grant me, as the poet said:

The courage to change
The things I can change;
The serenity to accept
Those I cannat change, and
The wisdom to know the difference.

The 26 sharp-edged tools we call our alphabet can do what other tools do: Build or destroy. Let me build. Let me know clearly what should be destroyed, what darkness, what bigotry, what evil, what curse, what ignorance.

Never let me slip into writing down, in fatuous fear that readers will not understand. Let me write from the shoulder and always with the assumption that those who read know more than I.

Such news as comes my way, let me tell it quickly and accurately and simply, with an eye to my responsibilities. For news is precious. Few could live without it. When it is stopped or thwarted or twisted, something goes out of the hearts of men it might have nourished.

Comfort a starving man with the choice of a succulent hamburger or the promise to reveal instantly news of great importance, and he will first take the news. Think pieces, as we say in the trade to identify articles and columns contrived out of airy nothingness, or from a sitting position, can never replace the meat and potatoes of news.

Let me champion just causes, avoid expediency, never lose the stimulation engendered by printer's ink. Let me remember to be kind to copy boys, for I'll meet them on the way back down, when they are editors. Protect the innocent from me when, with deadlines pressing, my aim grows fuzzy.

Make me use my legs and eyes, the better to track down and see the truth. Deafen me to the Lorelei song of rootless hearsay, rumor and the gossip of town loafers. If word that could cause great harm comes to me, even from sources far above reproach, let me have at least the dexterity and decency to pick up a phone and ask the subject about it.

When the customers write in to accuse me of being a bum, let me consider carefully the possibility or probability that I am . . . and try to do better. Let me work harder, try harder and remember with proper humility that history produced quite a few abler reporters . . . beginning, for starters, with Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

Let my stomach rebel at plucking meat from a publicity handout and be not miffed when a friend, trying for a compliment, which you believe will have something to do with a recent piece on Gen. Wu and the U. N., says, "I never miss your sports column in 'The Christian Science Monitor', It's great stuff, John."

As long as our men fight and freeze and die in Korea, a sacrifice which should make our food stick in our throats and our luxuries a torment, let me never use the words "courage" or "guts" to describe the means by which a pitcher wins a baseball game, a gridman bucks a line, a golfer sinks a putt, a guy writes a column or makes a speech.

And above all, let me recall now and then what the great teachers of the past . . . Moses and Socrates and Christ . . . would have done if some power had given them the break I've received—a syndicated column.

Resolutions

Comes now the time of year that traditionally was devoted to making New Year's resolutions in an earlier day. This was a merry custom that was good for many a quip or laugh and provided a prime conversational subject for many weeks.

It is a pity, in a way, that the custom of making New Year's resolutions has gradually died out. Little is heard of this once popular pastime these days. In fact, the current generations, both young and old, regard such proclivities as strictly on the corny side.

But 'twas not always thus. In grandpa's day making resolutions—or "turning over a new leaf," as it was sometimes dubbed—was an activity that was entered into wholeheartedly and in complete seriousness. What did it matter that the old reprobate always backslid the next day, the next week or the next month, and went back to smoking cheroots or to engage in some similar vice?

Yep, the making of resolutions was quite a pastime in its own right 40 or 50 years ago. It added hilarity to an otherwise somber scene, and nothing has appeared to take its place. Ah, well—such is progress. Happy New Year.

Dictator Vargas of Brazil isaccused of having four relatives on the government payroll. Fair deal politicians here will regard that as a new low in effort.

Hogtied Science

Russia has the world's best chess players, partly because they are subsidized by the government, partly because chess is almost the only realm of thought that still remains free under Stalin. Literature, history, science and music must all be checked against the party line.

Those who fail to keep up with its twists and turns must abjectly recant or face loss of their jobs, their privileges, their liberty, and even of their lives.

Science becomes sterile without skepticism—the right to challenge even an axiom, the right to think freely. So do the arts. Applied science may do better, but application eventually falters unless it can draw upon a continuously renewed body of pure science.

Boasts that Russians invented everything from the telephone to television can hardly offset scientific backwardness when scientists are hogtied by imposed dogma. But in chess a Russian grand master can make any legal move without being accused of Trotskyism or bourgeois deviationism. That is why Russian chess flourishes while science and art lag.

The Russians themselves seem to be becoming aware of this. The Soviet magazine Culture and Life recently carried an article by a scientist named Yuri Zhdanov attacking dogmatism in science as an enemy of progress. A year ago he would have been sent to Siberia for publishing such an article.

Now he also gets away with attacking the hitherto sacred theories of Michurin, on which the "Marxist biology" of Lysenko is based. Some of Russia's best biologists have died for opposing Lysenko's theories.

It is absurd to say that Russia's policies never change. They are always changing, but some of their worst aspects are never abandoned for a long period. Zhdanov's article undoubtedly heralds a shift in the official bolshevik attitude toward science, but it will not usher in a new area in which scientists will be as free as chess players. Stalinism is committed to a system in which all theory must be imposed from above. It could not escape if it tried.

A psychologist asks, "Are women as good auto drivers as men?" and then admits no one knows. Married, eh?

Trade With Reds

If the United States does ask—belatedly—for the imposition of economic sanctions against Communist China, the United Nations ought to approve it with the same alacrity that it approved the sending of United States forces to Korea.

Great Britain, which has recognized the Chinese Communist government and is doing a land office business with the Chinese Reds through Hong Kong, will oppose such a move. But it is time that Washington stopped letting the British Socialist government call the signals.

General MacArthur's headquarters announces that Red China has more than a million men under arms in and about Korea, and by the end of next year will be able to put 12,000,000 men in the field. None of the other members of the United Nations is sending any aid. To win this war, therefore, the United States must rely on the continued superiority of American equipment, including planes, and on a boycott to keep materiel from reaching the enemy.

The Communists do not need manpower. Nor do they care what happens to it in battle. But they cannot fight without tanks, planes, guns and ammunition. Washington will be criminally negligent if it continues to fail to do what it can to deprive them of the means of getting the sinews of war.

Things may change, but it is pointed out that a year ago it was winter, too.

Guide To Slick Driving

Ice and snow on the roads make winter the most hazardous season for motorists in the northern two-thirds of the nation. If they drive as fast on such surfaces as they would on dry concrete or asphalt, they will not be as safe.

There is no way of beating this rule. Chains will hold down skidding and make for quicker stopping, but a driver will not be as safe on ice or snow with chains as he would be on dry pavements without them.

Various types of ice and snow tires, which avoid the nuisances of putting chains on, are also helpful. But the best of them, the National Safety Council reports, are less effective than chains on road surfaces that call for either.

A danger is that chains or snow tires will tend to make a driver ocer-confident. The National Safety Council offers a set of tested and approved rules for safe driving on snow and ice. Here they are:

Adjust speed to road and weather conditions.

Keep the windshield and windows clear.

Use tire chains for severe snow and ice conditions.

"Pump" the brakes to stop.

Follow other vehicles at a safe distance.

In fact, all of these rules, with the exception of putting on chains—apply to dry roads as well as wet or icy road surfaces.

The Health Picture Is Rosy

WE START the second half of the 20th century with a bang—not only from noisemakers but from the health aspect. When all the statistics for 1950 are in we will find that many health records have been broken. The death rate probably will hit a new low. Furthermore, our life expectancy, which is unbelievable now, will go up a notch or two.

In the last five decades we have made more progress than in the preceding thousands of years. In prehistoric times the life expectancy was 18 years, as estimated from the remains of fossils. Today the average man and woman has an expectancy of nearly three score and ten. This does not mean that no one in ancient times lived to be 60, 70, or 80. Unquestionably some did, but so many died in infancy that life expectancy figures never reached the 20 year mark. Moreover, any one who was strong enough to buck the dinosaurs and the unsheltered environment of the primeval era probably could reach a ripe old age.

As centuries passed there was a gradual increase in the life span. In the heyday of Rome it reached 22 years and by the middle ages, 35 years. One hundred years ago, in England and Wales, it was 40.9 and in this country, by the turn of the century, the figure almost hit 50. Nowadays most of our babies live, but this is only one of the reasons why our life expectancy is so high. We have made progress in preventing and treating disease and eliminating certain occupational hazards. Our rapid strides in sanitation have done wonders; for example, typhoid fever practically has been eliminated in this way. Our standard of living is so high that most of us are able to follow the rules of health.

It is comforting to realize that many of us can expect to live a long time; but it is even more encouraging to know that we and our children can expect to remain healthy thru our lifetime. The contagious diseases are at an all-time low and each year the fall in our death rate breaks another record. There has been a 98 per cent reduction in mortality from measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough and diphtheria combined. In 1911 the rate was 171.8 per 100,000 of population; in 1949 it had fallen to 2.6. There also is less penumonia and influenza; in 1930 these two disorders were second only to heart disease and cancer as causes of death. For this we can thank vaccines and the wonder drugs.

New records appear in other fields. The mortality from syphilis is one-half that of 1911 and there are four-fifths fewer deaths from appendicitis and two-thirds less mothers succumb to the complications of childbirth. Conversely, there is more polio. Cancer remains the same, but this actually represents a decline considering the increase in population and the greater number of men and women who reach the cancer age. There even is a bright spot in evaluating the No. 1 killer—cardiovascular disease. More cases develop because we are living longer.

Studies of prehistoric man reveal that the majority died a violent death, usually from a bashed-in skull. We wonder if history is repeating itself when we consider that accidents are now third on the list of killers. We hope that the new year will bring individual resolutions to be more careful at home, at work, and while at the wheel.

BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

Mrs. E. C. writes: Every winter our son develops a cold which is followed by asthma. Should we move to a warm climate?

REPLY

This venture frequently helps unless the victim encounters the same type of irritant as in his home town. There usually is more to the treatment of bronchial asthma than a change of climate. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this condition.

•—•—•

CHUBBY FEET

Mrs. Y. writes: I have fat feet and they look terrible. Is there any way I can reduce them?

REPLY

On you, they might look good. Nothing can be done unless you are obese all over and in need of a general reducing diet. Are you sure this is fat? Now and then such puffiness represents fluid stemming from a glandular or circulatory disorder or milkleg. On the other hand, if it is "just you" why not forget it?

BABY'S HEART SOUNDS

Mrs. L. writes: When a woman is pregnant, when can the baby's heart beat be heard by the doctor?

REPLY

Petal heart tones usually are heard by the 18th week of gestation but occasionally they can be detected as early as the 14th week.

In ancient Egypt, the bull was considered so sacred that its birthday was celebrated, and after its death it was mummified and buried in a rock-tomb.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Putting big business to work on important government projects has not been as easy as the public might suppose. Manufacturers are delighted to have government contracts all right, but a lot of them want to operate on their own terms.

Take, for instance, the problem of stepping up vitally needed aluminum. The public already has had aluminum for civilian uses cut back 35 per cent, but on top of this, more than two months were wasted while aluminum companies haggled over increasing production.

Paradoxically two of the companies which General Services Administrator Jess Larson had the most trouble with were two that Uncle Sam helped put in business—Reynolds metals and Henry Kaiser.

Reynolds was urged by Secretary of the Interior Ickes to manufacture aluminum in competition with the giant Aluminum Corporation of America during the war, and was given all kinds of government loans, orders and backing. Kaiser was sold surplus aluminum plants at bargain rates after the war. However, both wanted to produce pretty much on their own terms in the new emergency.

Early last fall, when the government first contemplated expanding aluminum production, genial, hard-working Henry Kaiser, genius of the far-flung Kaiser Industries, welcomed the idea with enthusiasm.

No Risk—All Profits

However, when it came to signing a contract, both Kaiser and Reynolds had their own ideas. And their ideas were that Uncle Sam take all the risks, they take all the profits. Both companies are heartily against government interference with business, but apparently not against government guarantees of dividends.

For here is what Kaiser and Reynolds wanted from the government in return for expanding the aluminum plants which they originally purchased from Uncle Sam at bargain-counter rates:

1. A government guarantee of their loan.

2. The right to amortize their investment in five years, whereas ordinarily tax depreciation would be spread over 20 years.

3. The government to buy all aluminum except a margin allocated to small manufacturers.

4. If the market dropped or if government purchases decreased, the companies could turn the plants back to Uncle Sam in two and a half years.

In brief, the two aluminum companies wanted the government to put up the money, give them tax relief, buy most of the product, and then take the plants off their hands in case business went bad.

All this the government agreed to do. However, the aluminum executives wanted even more. They proposed that if price controls should be imposed on the nation, they would be exempt.

This was too much. And in a confidential backstage conference with Larson, the attorney for Reynolds metals, Judge Robert Patterson, refused to support his own client. Patterson, who served as Secretary of War, quietly remarked:

"Gentlemen, we have asked for enough."

NOTE—The aluminum contracts have now been signed. They provide for a total of 320,000 tons expanded production divided among Kaiser, Reynolds and Alcoa.

Tide Of Toys

Toughest problem facing General Eisenhower in rearming Europe will be to mobilize the spirit, the esprit de corps, the enthusiasm of the man in the street.

This points the finger at our biggest failure in postwar building. For, while we have repaired European factories, rebuilt railroads, filled men's stomachs, we have not worked nearly as hard on people-to-people friendship.

We have dealt chiefly on a government-to-government basis, and unfortunately when a cabinet falls or a government changes hands, we are left with no deep roots among the people.

This is one reason why the American Legion's Tide of Toys is so important at this time.

These toys, collected for the children of U. S. soldiers in Korea and for the poorer children of Europe, are not so valuable measured in dollars. But they will be priceless in terms of goodwill.

For it's the thing that touches a person's heartstrings that counts. And a toy sent by a child in the U.S.A. to a family in Europe can make a more lasting impression than rebuilding a dozen factories or munitions plants that can easily be taken over by the enemy if the people of Western Europe lack the will for defense.

War Notes

About 50 of the Army's revolutionary lightweight tanks will be ready for combat in the next few weeks. They have radar fire-control which guarantees a hit on the first or second shot, and are reported better than anything in the Russian arsenal . . . The Russians are reported to have turned up a new and tremendous deposit of uranium. This probably explains why Moscow has suddenly begun to close down the uranium mines in Eastern Germany . . . The American Embassy cables that Prime Minister Nehru of India is bitterly disillusioned with the Chinese Communists. Apparently Nehru finally is waking up to the facts of life . . . One hundred and fifty American prisoners are in a special camp at Tunghau, decorated with pictures of William Z. Foster, Eugene Dennis and other Commie leaders where the Chinese are trying to convert them to communism. So far no luck.

Merry-Go-Round

Charles Wilson, the new mobilization boss, testifying behind the closed doors of the Senate Banking Committee, summed up his plan of action in four words—"analyze, organize, deputize, then supervise."... Senator Humphrey of Minnesota ends all his letters by asking for the prayers of Minnesota constituents to help give him divine guidance in his Senate work . . . Only 10 per cent of our commercial planes can be used for defense purposes, according to a confidential Air Force survey. This means the Air Force could not reopen the Berlin airlift in case of another Berlin blockade, because 90 per cent of our cargo planes are tied up in Korea. Despite this, Congress still dillydallies about building up the merchant marine of the air . . . Because of the delicate international situation, British Labor officials and Tory leaders both are convinced they ought to hold off new British elections until next fall.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

An Ungentle Reminder

WASHINGTON

ONE of the more sinister tactics adopted by the new isolationists is to disseminate the rumor that the Soviet Union does not, after all, have an atomic bomb. Not long ago Sen. Owen Brewster, of Maine, whose irresponsibility can always be relied on, told the Senate so in plain terms.

For the sake of the record, it is unfortunate that much more can now be told about how the Soviet bomb explosion was detected. And the facts, if they are studied at all, prove conclusively what was exploded in the Soviet Union in September, 1949, was indeed an atomic bomb.

To begin at the beginning, the net for detecting a Soviet bomb explosion was established shortly after the war, by the combined efforts of the three armed service staffs, the Joint Research and Development Board, the Atomic Energy Commission and the Central Intelligence Agency. It consisted of four main parts.

First, since a bomb explosion is sufficiently violent to create earth tremors, a chain of seismological stations was organized, to detect any such tremors anywhere in the world.

Second, an atomic explosion releases a cloud of radioactive particles, which ascend to the stratosphere, and there are blown around the earth by the prevailing winds. The presence of this radioactive cloud in the stratosphere is detectable by Geiger counters. Therefore a second chain of stations with Geiger counters operators was set up.

Collect Air Samples

Third, and this is vital, air samples from the radioactive cloud can be taken by high-flying aircraft and/or balloons equipped with special apparatus. The radioactive particles thus caught can be subjected to mineralogical analysis; and the results tell much about the nature of the atomic explosion that has occurred. Arrangements to collect such air samples were also made.

Finally, all the data thus obtained can be precisely interpreted by properly trained scientists. This task, of interpreting and forming conclusions from the data collected, was intrusted to the Scientific Advisory Committee of the Atomic Energy Commission. This body, including such men as Professor Robert Oppenheimer, Dr. Enrico Fermi, Oliver Buckley of the Bell laboratories, and James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard, is as powerful and well balanced an assemblage of scientific minds as this country can muster.

When the Soviet bomb exploded in central Siberia in September, 1949, all this elaborate organization, already trial-tested by our own Eniwetok bomb, went smoothly to work. The seismologists physically located the place of the explosion. The Geiger counter chain detected the radioactive cloud a little later. Air samples were immediately taken. The scientific analysts went to work.

The air samples provided the decisive evidence. In the Pentagon the hope was briefly entertained that instead of exploding an atomic bomb intentionally, the Soviets had accidentally touched off one of their radioactive piles. But the metallic components of a pile and a bomb are entirely different. A plutonium bomb particularly, of the improved

Withdrawal From Korea, Record Income Predicted

By ROGER W. BABSON

SPECIAL—The United Nations will withdraw from Korea in 1951.

1. Excluding defense orders, the total business volume in 1951 will be less than that for 1950. However, national income in 1951 will be the highest ever recorded, as war orders take the place of peace production and high prices prevail.

More Government Controls

2. The outstanding feature of 1951 will be the ever-increasing interference of the government in the lives of businessmen and consumers.

3. The Administration and its economic advisors are firmly convinced that radical inflation is about to break out next year. But the "brain trusters" are overlooking the fact that the boom is already old and that it was creaking badly when the Korean War broke out. War postponed the downturn which would have taken place much sooner. The date of the slide has only moved ahead.

4. Rushing to catch up on its neglected defense program, the Administration is anxious to shrink business volume to an unnecessary degree. Efforts at first will be along the line of tighter credit curbs, such as restrictions on mortgage and installment loans and increased bank reserve requirements.

5. As 1951 wears on, the effect of credit controls will cause a decline in legitimate business. Civilian production will decline more than armament production will increase. The public may then cry, "This is a government-made slump; let's get rid of the controls!"

6. If in 1951 it becomes evident that business is declining too fast as a result of government curbs, the planners at Washington may rush their patient into an oxygen tent.

Labor Outlook Will Be Tight

7. Most labor groups will not be successful in getting a sixth round of wage increases in 1951. Although there may be more strikes in the first part of 1951, there will be fewer for the whole year as compared with 1950.

8. Tightness in the labor supply will be continued as the year wears on, particularly of highly-skilled workers.

9. The Taft-Hartley Law will not be repealed during 1951 but may be amended. The Administrators of the law will continue to wink at some of its clauses.

Commodity Prices Remain Firm

10. Wholesale prices of many commodities will be marked by a mild decline in 1951 when compared with the price level for December 31, 1950. In some lines the drop may be quite steep from the high levels of late 1950. Retail prices for 1951, I do not now forecast.

11. The year 1951 should prove an excellent time to keep a tight grip on inventories. Commodity speculation for the rise will not pay in 1951. Furthermore our expanding stockpiles of strategic materials present a real price threat in the event of a peace scare. Such stockpiles could then act strongly as a depressant on prices.

12. The cost of living will remain high during 1951. This prediction recognizes that living costs next year may be above the lower levels that existed during the first half of the year now closing.

Farm Outlook Good

13. Farmers' income for 1951 should average no less than that for 1950. Since the trend in the first half of 1950 was down, this forecast is not so optimistic as it might otherwise seem, for there is likely to be a weakening of the farmers' income position during the latter part of 1951.

14. Barring crop failures, the total supply of food available should be larger in 1951 than for 1950, since the government will raise planting quotas as part of its attack on inflation. If the weather is extremely favorable, the government will be blamed for farm-price weakness during the latter part of 1951.

15. With prospects good for a rising supply of feed grains, meat should be more plentiful next year than in 1950. Prices for meat however, will be held up by continued high national income and by military needs.

Taxes Will Be Higher

16. The burden of federal taxes, both corporate and personal, will be increased again in 1951. State and municipal taxes will remain high.

17. There will be an excess profits tax in 1951. These excess profits taxes will be milder than those in force during World War II; but they will be inflationary and retard efficiency, economy and incentive.

18. There will be heavy pressure for increased federal "sales taxes" to discourage purchasing of luxury and certain nonessential goods. Congress will see the value of some such sales taxes as an inflation road block.

19. States and municipalities will again be under pressure to find adequate sources of revenue. Further increases in such taxes can be looked for next year with additional cities and/or states adopting sales taxes.

20. Despite renewed efforts to increase the long-term capital gains tax above the present 25 percent figures, rates will remain unchanged.

Domestic Trade Will Be Less

21. Credit curbs will cut into the demand for automobiles and household equipment. Completions of fewer dwellings will also act as a damper on furniture sales.

22. Falling demand for hard goods should mean a stabilization of the public's spending for food and lower-priced soft goods.

23. The trend forecast in No. 22 will mean a decline in department store volume, but I predict a rise in the sales of variety chains and of drug chains.

Foreign Trade Outlook Fair

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE government of the United States differs from most so-called democracies in our congressional system. We have a separation of powers between the executive and legislature which contrasts with the unity of powers under the parliamentary system. The prime minister of the United Kingdom is a member of Parliament and that is the only office to which he is elected.

Our president is elected as such and is not a member of Congress. He is neither the leader of his party in Congress nor is he expected after election, to be president of the party.

In this year of crisis, while the Democrats still hold the majority in both houses of Congress, it is an uncomfortable one. The ratios stand:

The Senate

Democrats ..... 51 per cent
Republicans .... 49 per cent

House of Representatives

Democrats ..... 54.5 per cent
Republicans .... 45.5 per cent

In actual seats, the Republicans will have 47 in the Senate as compared with 49 Democrats. In the House, the margin will be slightly wider.

After the Democrats have organized both the Senate and the House, placing Democrats into the chairmanships of the various committees, they will split into two basic groups: 1. The Truman Democrats, who will be led by Senator Harry Byrd. The latter group, representing the South, will hold the balance of power, the principal chairmanships of committees by seniority, and will prevail in legislation because they will be in a position to shift from the Democratic to the Republican side with freedom.

Among the Republicans there will also be a cleavage but it will be narrower. The leadership of Robert A. Taft in the Senate will be unquestioned. His vote in his industrial state of Ohio was so enormous that it added authority to his incontestable intellectual powers.

The small group of New Deal Republicans, not more than four or five, cannot offset the strength of the independent Democrats nor is there a man among them who possesses either the political position or the intellectual force to lead his party away from Taft. The most outstanding of them is Wayne Morris, of Oregon.

Thus, in this year of crisis, Harry Truman with a divided party faces Robert A. Taft and a Republican-Dixiecrat coalition, as it is called. The word, Dixiecrat, is politically unsound, as being associated with a specific group in the South rather than a general anti-New Deal group of Democrats.

The Taft-Byrd leadership is constructive. It is neither narrow nor partisan. Taft has shown a breadth of outlook, which is one reason why so many labor union members in his state rebelled against their unions to vote for him.

One issue this Congress will not have to face: that is the repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. The election settled that. Senator Taft undoubtedly will introduce some amendments and revisions and they will be passed.

In the matter of foreign policy, the elements of agreement and disagreement will cross party lines. Governor Thomas E. Dewey while he holds no seat in Congress, has taken a position

On the other hand, the opposition of Republicans to the continuance in office of Dean Acheson has such rank-and-file support that it will overwhelm all the efforts of Dulles. No Republican who will have to stand for election in 1952 can risk support of Acheson, no matter what part of the country he comes from.

Furthermore, the Republicans, in foreign relations, will have to face the reality of a rising antagonism to and disappointment over Great Britain. The fact that the British insist on "ordinary business" when our sons and theirs are being killed, just does not go down. So long as in the public mind, Dewey, Dulles or any other Republican is regarded as wedded to British policy, his influence may be discounted.

The 82nd Congress will be a difficult one for the President. He cannot lead it, yet his temperament is such that what he cannot lead, he is impelled to combat.

State Game Commission Plans To Trap Rabbits

A trapping program which will cover the entire state has been mapped by the State Game and Inland Fish Commission in an effort to trap 5,000 wild rabbits.

Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke attended a meeting in Frederick last Wednesday at which Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the state commission, outlined the program. Vaughn said that the trapping would be done in suburban areas and at the outskirts of cities.

Young boys, especially 4-H Club members and Boy Scouts, could do the trapping. Such organizations interested in the plan should contact Minke or the nearest game warden for particulars.

Traps will be furnished by the State Game Commission and 75 cents will be paid for each rabbit trapped.

Last week game wardens in this district began checking over the game to determine how they are faring in the current cold weather. Bob white quail are wintering very well, Minke reports.

Strange 'Rivers' Of Stars May Be Clue To Creation

CLEVELAND, (AP) — Discovery of vast rivers of glowing gas and stars formed by cosmic collisions has been reported by Dr. Edwin F. Carpenter of the University of Arizona.

Long and thin, they stretch like a faint filament or link between two galaxies, the great star cities of the universe, he told the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He proposed they were formed by a great side-swiping collision of two galaxies that lasted for a million years. Hot gases were sucked out as a long streamer of wreckage as the galaxies tore through each other, and then rushed on apart.

The swirling river of gas apparently condenses into stars as it cools, and thus keeps glowing all the time.

The rivers give a clue as to how some stars are created, and indicate that more stars are continually being born.

Dr. Carpenter said he found 15 cases in which pairs of galaxies are engaged in a collision, or emerging from one. Galaxies are great collections of stars, containing up to 100 billion. Our milky way is one of the largest.

Some are spiral shaped, some globular, and they may be 100,000 light years wide, a light year being the distance light travels in one year. There are millions or billions of galaxies in the universe.

Stars in a galaxy are so widely separated that one galaxy can go right through another "without either group being aware of the other," Dr. Carpenter said. But gas clouds in the galaxies collide and grow hot, and the glowing filament of gas is pulled and trailed out as the star cities race on away. In four to six million years, the streamer becomes as long as a galaxy is wide.

Dr. Carpenter found the rivers in studying pairs of galaxies, or even larger groups, far out in space.

Three other astronomers announced the finding of what seems to be a brand new type of star, a blue dwarf. It is one of the bluest stars in the heavens, and very hot. But it is relatively small. All other very hot blue stars are extremely large.

The blue dwarf lies in the Northern Cross constellation, but is well outside the milky way. That is, in a place where hot stars rarely are found, they explained.

It may represent a new family of dwarf, high-temperature stars, said the three—Dr. Donald A. Macrae of Case Institute of Technology, Dr. Robert Fleischer of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, and Dr. Edwin B. Weston of the University of Michigan.

sort exploded by us at Nagasaki, contains highly special metals. And the air samples brought in radioactive metallic particles plainly indicating the explosion of a plutonium bomb at least of the Nagasaki type, if not better. Members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff sat with the Scientific Advisory Board in the last phase of preparation of their report to President Truman. All agreed on the conclusion, which was informally summed up by one of the authors of the report in a single, bleak sentence:

Military Significant

"The chances are 999 to 1 that if it was a bomb that went off, and if it was not a bomb, neither I nor any of my colleagues can think of what it might have been."

Subsequently, secret intelligence confirmed the findings made in September, 1949. The highest intelligence sources now agree, moreover, that current Soviet bomb output is at the rate of about two a month, and by the end of the coming year will rise to five or more a month. Thus, as of now, the officially estimated Soviet stockpile is about 24 bombs; it will be nearly 50 bombs in another 12 months; and in two years, it will be well over a hundred bombs. The military significance of this timetable does not need to be underlined.

Such, for the information of Sen. Brewster, are the undisputed facts. It is well to remember, because this new isolationist denial of the Soviet bomb's existence recalls the tactics of the men who simultaneously told the British people in the late '30's that the enemy was too weak to attack, and that Britain was too weak to resist. These men also were attempting to organize their country's abject surrender.

Mother Reads Son's Letter To President By Telephone

A Cumberland mother, irate over the fact that her soldier-son had fought 147 consecutive days on the Korean front, "went to the top man" and telephoned President Truman over the weekend.

Mrs. Robert E. Colomy, 322 Bedford Street, talked to the President Friday afternoon, just before he departed from Blair House for a cruise down the Potomac on the Williamsburg.

Mrs. Colomy, a Republican, said the President "treated me with the greatest respect" and was in agreement with her feeling that arrangements should be made to relieve frontline troops for a rest. Mrs. Colomy described him as "very courteous, very courageous and very pleasant."

Mrs. Colomy said she placed the telephone call in order to read President Truman a paragraph from a letter received Friday from her son, Sgt. David A. Colomy, 20, also a veteran of World War II. It follows:

"I prefer not to bitch as I have been very lucky. But I am still hoping all nations will come to an agreement. This is like a fire—if not put out it will spread. It seems all that the U. N. delegates can accomplish is to throw more wood on the fire. I would suggest they all meet here in the swamp and field of snow we are on right now, out of their warm offices, and have their discussion. It would be a safe bet that they would come to an agreement."

Mrs. Colomy, who said she was "not at all surprised" in reading and talking to President Truman, stated he took down the quotation and repeated the paragraph "word for word."

Her son, she said, has never complained in letters home but "she could read between the lines." A tank commander in Korea, he had served four years in Europe during World War II, fighting from North Africa to Germany. After the war he re-enlisted and went to Japan last April to serve with occupational forces.

Minister Sends Holiday Letter To His Friends

Celebrating his 43rd Christmas, the Rev. Chauncey R. Botsford, retired Lutheran minister, 421 Piedmont Avenue, sent out his usual letter of greeting to friends, with the observation that "this time it's your I little thought I would be able to send out another letter with the motto calendar it has been my pleasure to send for many years." Mr. Botsford was once pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church here.

S. T. Little Jewelry Co. To Mark 100th Anniversary

A variety of special events are being planned for the year, according to Mrs. Cara Little Ebert, president, who is the granddaughter of the firm's founder, Samuel Trawin Little.

The month of January has been designated "Little Folks Month" in the celebration plans, and a collection of sterling silver and 10 karat gold baby gifts valued at $50 will be awarded to the first baby born in Cumberland in 1951. Birth records at Allegany and Memorial hospitals will be used to determine the time of the first birth. Among the baby sterling gifts are a cup, fork and spoon, porringer, rattle, feeding spoon, comb and brush, and picture frame. The 10 karat gold gifts will include a ring, beauty pins and identification bracelet.

During January every baby born in the local hospitals will receive a 10 karat gold baby ring as a special feature of "Little Folks Month." Rings will be delivered direct to the maternity wards of both hospitals twice weekly.

Throughout their 100 years the S. T. Little establishment has occupied a Baltimore Street location. The first store was near the Western Maryland crossing, about where Harbaugh's book store is now located. Approximately ten years later the store moved to the other end of Baltimore street, next door to the famous Barnum House (present site of the Windsor Hotel). Shortly after 1900 the present building at 113 Baltimore Street was purchased and has been the Little Jewelry headquarters during the second half century of the firm's existence.

Not luck, but how you adjust to events and changes will determine your happiness in the year ahead!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

At this early hour of 1951, the big question is how much happiness are you going to enjoy in the year ahead?

It is not a matter of your luck, or how well you fare in the realm of material success. It depends far more on your orientation to the world in which you find yourself.

It depends on how well you adjust to the problems and situations that come your way, especially regarding the people with whom you associate and come in contact; your surroundings, both in business and private life; and your circumstances, which mean everything from today's headlines to the amount of change you have in your purse. Your relationship with these factors of your life largely determines your happiness.

Formula for Happiness

There is a one-two formula that will help you adjust to any changes in these factors more quickly and easily, and in the best way possible. When any situation or problem arises, here's what you do: One—do your utmost to understand it as it really is. Two — frankly face and accept the truth about it.

After taking those two steps, you will know and be able to do what you can either to make the most of the situation or to solve the problem.

By using this formula, you avoid wasting time and energy in fighting conditions which you can't change. You eliminate any chance of throwing yourself against the proverbial stone wall. You will be cooperating with life as it is, instead of running away from it or pretending that conditions are other than as they are.

"Try to fool yourself, and you won't be fooling anybody," runs an old saying. Make sure that you are not fooling yourself, and you'll escape many of the causes of unhappiness, such as martyrdom, defeatism, self-pity, self-censure, perfectionism, suspicion and resentment.

Satisfaction Guaranteed

When you accept fact, and waste no thought or effort on trying to change people or situations beyond your control, you can devote your time to accomplishments which are within the realm of possibility. When you do, you are sure to attain the satisfaction of a productive life, and the out-turning, forward-looking thoughts that are always the passport to happiness.

The capacity to make this a happy new year lies within yourself.

WIFE PRESERVERS

A tool chest for the bride might be a very good and novel idea, and she'll find it useful. Include a hammer, large and small screwdrivers, medium-size pliers, and a six-inch crescent wrench with adjustable jaws.

You may notice that blanket bindings get extra dirty. Brush thick soapsuds on the bindings with a soft brush before putting the entire blanket into the suds.

Let our small voice join all the rest. Happy New Year to our many wonderful friends.

By JOHN L. SPRINGER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The Korean war was the outstanding event of 1950.

This bloody outbreak, which started June 25 when North Koreans invaded South Korea, was voted the year's major story by editors of Associated Press newspapers.

Virtually every editor gave pre-eminent position to the war. Viewed from the American military angle alone, it ranks first: For the United States it began as a "police action" with the dispatch of troops to halt the invasion, but it quickly became the fifth greatest war in the nation's history. What made it overwhelmingly significant was that in far off Korea Communist troops clashed openly with United Nations forces. It raised higher the barrier between Communist and anti-Communist countries. It threatened to involve much of the world.

Worsening U. S.-Russian relations were reflected throughout the list of the ten top stories selected by the editors.

The ten stories:

1. — THE KOREAN WAR. First reports indicated it might be merely another border skirmish. But the Communists sliced through the southern republic's defenses and threatened to take over the entire country. However, the U. N. Security Council charged aggression and urged its members to help put down the uprising. While the North Koreans continued to gain ground, U. N. forces under Gen. MacArthur built up strength. In September, MacArthur's men swept northward and U. N. prestige climbed to its highest point. But then occurred the development which editors termed the second greatest of the year:

2. — CHINA ENTERS THE WAR. U. S. intelligence agents knew the Chinese Communists were massing troops along their Korean frontier but did not know they planned to intervene. In November, however, they struck in force. Badly-outnumbered U. N. troops managed to extricate themselves.

3. — ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF TRUMAN. The President napped on the afternoon of Nov. 1 in the upstairs bedroom of Blair House. Suddenly guns barked. The President looked out on a scene of confusion: Two gunmen of the small Puerto Rican nationalist movement, had come to try to assassinate him. In his defense, one guard was shot and two injured. One gunman died by the Blair House steps; the other was wounded and captured.

4. — REPUBLICAN GAINS AND RE-ELECTION OF TAFT. In November, the United States elected a new House of Representatives. Charges of leftist sympathy became the major issue in scores of contests. When the smoke cleared, the Democrats had only a precarious control of the new 82nd Congress. The most spectacular victory was that of Robert A. Taft, Ohio's senior senator, a top Republican leader and outstanding administration critic. As co-author of the Taft-Hartley law, he was attacked by organized labor. But he won out over the Democratic candidate, Joseph T. Ferguson, by more than 400,000 votes — 20 times his margin of victory when he was last elected in 1944.

5. — THE UNITED STATES REARMS. The growing strain in our relations with Russia was reflected in rapid increases in defense expenditures, calling up of reserves, expanding of draft calls, reactivation of "moth-balled" warships. New controls were placed on non-defense industries. The word "rationing" came back into the vocabulary. As the year ended, it seemed obvious that even stricter clamps to meet the emergency were on the way.

6. — SENATOR McCARTHY'S CHARGES. One of the most controversial figures of 1950 was the young senator from Wisconsin Joseph R. McCarthy. He stepped into the spotlight in March with charges that the State Department had become a haven for Reds and fellow-travelers. He demanded that Secretary of State Dean Acheson be fired. Soon everybody, it seemed, was in the act. The President refused to permit FBI files to be examined. Owen Lattimore denied McCarthy's statement that he was the top "Soviet espionage agent" in the U. S. Former Communist Louis Budenz supported some of McCarthy's charges. Former Secretaries of State Marshall and Byrnes denied some. McCarthy's campaign was given added significance by what editors regarded as the year's next most important story:

7. — THE ALGER HISS CASE AND OTHER SPY TRIALS. In a second drawn-out trial, Hiss denied that he had ever turned over secret State Department documents to Whittaker Chambers, then a Communist, in 1938. Chambers introduced evidence that Hiss had given him such documents for transmittal to Russia. Who was lying? Hiss, President Roosevelt's adviser at Yalta, or Chambers, who had denounced Communism and become a top editor of Time Magazine for a time? A jury decided Hiss was lying. It shocked the nation to learn that men in such high places could be the agents of Red Russia. Other trials of alleged Soviet-helpers featured the news of 1950, especially that of Judith Coplon, the Brooklyn girl sentenced to 15 years as a spy. A court later found, however, that the methods the F. B. I. used to trap Miss Coplon were illegal and a new trial loomed.

8. — TRUMAN ORDERS CONSTRUCTION OF THE H-BOMB. It was a fateful decision to make, but Russia dictated it. Insisting that the U. S. must maintain its atomic lead over the Soviets, the President on January 31 ordered work to proceed on the hydrogen bomb, theoretically 1,000 times more devastating than the A-bomb which razed Hiroshima.

9. — THE "MERCY KILLING" TRIAL OF DR. SANDER. When Dr. Hermann Sander went on trial in a Manchester N. H. court in February for the slaying of Mrs. Abbe Borrotto, in death-bed agony from cancer, many persons thought that the question of whether it is ever legal for an individual to take another's life might be decided. But Dr. Sander did not base his defense on those grounds; he said that the woman died a natural death, his mind snapped, he injected air into her veins. The jury acquitted him.

10. — BRINKS HOLDUP IN BOSTON. Supposedly the place was impregnable, as any place where the receipts of armored bank trucks were counted ought to be. But on January 17 well-briefed robbers found ways to open doors and escaped with $1,500,000.

Other stories of the year in their order of importance, as voted by the editors:

The Long Island Rail Road wreck at Richmond Hill, N. Y., on Nov. 22, in which 78 were killed.

The South Amboy, N. J., munitions barge explosion May 19 when nearly a million pounds of anti-tank and anti-personnel mines blasted the city and killed 31.

MacArthur Voted Year's No. 1 News Maker

AP Newsfeatures

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR was the outstanding newsmaker of 1950.

The man who was confronted with two "impossible" military tasks within six months, one of the great military leaders of the times and one of its most controversial political figures, was given his news designation by editors of Associated Press newspapers in a poll on the year's outstanding events and personalities.

The poll was conducted when MacArthur's "win the war" offensive in Korea already had bogged down before the Chinese Reds, and United Nations forces had begun their flight down the peninsula.

Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, who overcame strong labor union opposition to win re-election by a thumping majority and achieve nationwide recognition as "Mr. Republican," was voted the year's outstanding personality in politics.

Leaders in Other Fields

Others voted as key newsmakers were:

FOREIGN AFFAIRS — Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

LABOR — Walter Reuther, head of the CIO's powerful Auto Workers Union.

LITERATURE — Novelist William Faulkner.

ENTERTAINMENT — Al Jolson.

WOMAN OF THE YEAR — Perle Mesta.

Nomination of MacArthur as outstanding news maker jibed with editors' selection of the Korean war as the year's main news event. MacArthur, commander of the Allied occupation forces in Japan, also became the leader of the United Nations troops put together to stem the invasion of South Korea by the Communists.

MacArthur's First Task

He got his first "impossible" assignment soon after the North Koreans burst through the 38th Parallel in a blitzkrieg maneuver. There was no doubt that the South Koreans, unaided, soon would fall. MacArthur's job was to try to get enough outside troops onto the rocky peninsula to hold at least a beachhead.

GEN. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR

He succeeded. The Reds came within 40 miles of the key port of Pusan, upon which U. N. forces converged, but soon the flow of battle was reversed. In September, a surprise landing at Inchon, masterminded by MacArthur, sent the Communists on the run. It appeared that the war might be won by Christmas.

Then came "impossible" assignment Number Two. Out of their sanctuary in Manchuria — which MacArthur was not authorized to bomb — the Chinese Communists poured hundreds of thousands of fresh troops against the Allies. This unforeseen development created a "new war," MacArthur said, as he retreated.

In nominating Secretary of State Acheson as outstanding personality in foreign affairs, many editors noted the controversy which has enveloped the Cabinet member all year. In January, he was under fire for adopting a policy (later reversed) of keeping hands off Formosa. His department was attacked by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy for allegedly harboring Communists. When Alger Hiss was found guilty of perjury, Secretary Acheson expressed sympathy for the former State Department associate — a statement which evoked widespread criticism. In fact, the "Battle of Acheson" was one of the hottest stories in Washington in 1950.

Labor's Peace Formula

In voting Reuther as outstanding in labor and Wilson in industry, the editors had in mind the precedent-making labor-management agreement reached May 23, when a five-year contract was adopted. This pact, covering nearly 250,000 employees, gave auto workers at General Motors a raise, pensions, and a cost-of-living formula by which future wages would be measured.

The medical miracles worked by the hormones ACTH and cortisone were reflected in the selection of Dr. Kendall and Hench in science. These hormones have spectacularly treated a wide assortment of chronic ailments including arthritis, asthmas and rheumatic fever. A dramatic new use — for persons with burns which previously have always been fatal — was announced just as the two doctors were arriving at Stockholm, Sweden, to receive the Nobel Prize in medicine and physiology for their work.

Faulkner, Jolson and Mesta

Another Nobel Prize winner, William Faulkner, won the editors' recognition in the field of literature. The 53-year-old native of Oxford, Miss., has given the world a sharp insight into his South in such memorable novels as "Sanctuary," "The Sound and the Fury," "Sartoris" and "Intruder in the Dust."

After completing a strenuous tour of Korea, entertaining troops up front, the veteran singer and comedian, Al Jolson, collapsed in a San Francisco hotel room and died at age 64. Noting his outstanding sacrifices for the GIs in the last war as well as this, the editors named him top figure in the entertainment world.

When Perle Mesta was appointed U. S. minister to Luxembourg last year, much of her reputation was based on parties she had sponsored in Washington. She has won the admiration of Luxembourg, however, and is credited with having built that small country into a tourist spot for American troops abroad. Key character in the hit Broadway musical, "Call Me Madam," is said to be patterned after Mrs. Mesta.

Divorces Decline In Allegany Co.

The 1950 total shows that for the third straight year in Allegany County the number of divorces decreased.

However, marriage licenses issued at the Court House showed a comeback from 1949 when a drop was noted.

This year, according to figures in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court, 206 couples severed the marital knot while 3,693 were given marriage licenses.

The year 1947 topped the past four in the number of divorces granted in Circuit Court when 410 decrees were awarded.

In 1948, 340 decrees were granted; 240 in 1949 compared to the 206 this year.

In 1948 marriage licenses totaled 4,101 and last year, 3,391.

The top months for divorces this year were November and April with 24 decrees awarded in each. High for marriage licenses was July instead of the traditional nuptial month of June. A total of 454 were issued in July.

Plan New Insurance Dividend For Veterans

The Veterans Administration is considering issuing another cash dividend on their GI insurance policies early next year. Thousands of local veterans would benefit.

VA officials in Washington said tentative plans are being made to distribute insurance dividends that may total as high as one billion dollars.

An official of the VA said approximately 6,000,000 veterans would be eligible. He added that estimates of the amount of money available for the disbursement vary from $500,000,000 to slightly more than $1,000,000,000.

Under plans being considered, the proposed dividend payment will represent policy earnings for the years 1948-51. Policies which lapsed prior to 1948 would be excluded.

Roger Babson's 1951 Outlook

age in our exports during 1951. Imports, however, should rise further. Total foreign trade should not be much changed, but the exporters will be on the short end of this business with the importers gaining.

25. It will become more difficult to convince Congress that additional heavy credits should be granted abroad except for war supplies.

26. As was the case this year, many domestic manufacturers will feel increasing competition from foreign merchandise. The cry for increased tariff protection will be heard again in the land.

27. Business and financial forecasts for next year are not based on the thought that World War III will start in 1951. Russia is certainly heading for war, but we do not believe she now wants it in Europe. She will be satisfied to have her satellites continue taking unexpected jabs at us, while the Politburo boys hand out the soothing syrup. But we may see another episode like "Korea" in 1951.

More Deficit Financing

28. The first half of 1951 may actually see a budget surplus as a result of high national income and increased taxation. Later, if Congress goes along with the Administration's plans for huge rearmament, a federal deficit will arise during the last half of the year.

29. As a result of the preceding prediction, money supplies should not begin to rise until after business has turned down. Increases at such a time are not likely to have much effect on prices.

30. Government bonds will be held tightly between the floor of Federal Reserve support purchases and the ceiling of Federal Reserve anti-inflation sales. Under such conditions, price changes should be negligible.

31. A great deal will be heard in 1951 about giving the Federal Reserve Board powerful controls over member bank loaning policies. Congress is not likely to pass such controls, however, unless commodity prices go a lot higher, or World War III comes.

Stock Market, Bond Outlook

32. I see nothing now to indicate that we are entering a period of improved international relations. The danger of war remains. Until it disappears, wise people will move out of large bomb-vulnerable cities and avoid having investments in such areas.

33. The stock averages may work somewhat higher during the first half of next year, but sometime during 1951 they will sell lower than current quotations.

34. Stocks now in the best position for 1951 should be those that have not been popular as inflation hedges in the past months. I like good chain store stocks.

35. Investment Trust funds, pension funds, and insurance companies will provide an excellent backlog of demand for sound income stocks where good values can be demonstrated.

36. The successful investor next year will be the one who follows a carefully planned investment program. Such a program will emphasize diversification — not only by company and industry, but also by quality. Overconcentration will not pay in 1951.

37. Highest-grade taxable corporate bonds should hold in a narrow price range during 1951, but I see no reason for individual investors buying them. For my forecast for long-term government bonds, see No. 30 above. The only corporation bonds which interest me are convertibles.

38. With income taxes slated to increase in 1951, tax-exempt bonds should continue in good demand. There has been some speculation in these, however, and any downward change in the tax outlook might cause a sudden turnabout in prices for municipals. Investors should see to it that their bond maturities are carefully diversified, with some part of their bond funds maturing each year.

Real Estate Activity

39. The real estate outlook for 1951 will be strongly affected by curbs on mortgage credit. Much of the recent boom was the result of easy credit—almost nothing down and small easy payments for years hence.

40. New home construction will suffer a greater decline than other lines. Nonessential commercial building will also be hit.

41. The coming decline in new building will throw a wet blanket over speculation in vacant suburban lots.

42 The scare caused by the Korean-China War and fears of an early outbreak in other sections will adversely affect the demand for big city real estate. Lower business volumes and the draft next year will also curtail such demand.

43. Small sustenance farms should hold up well in prices as demand will be spurred by those seeking refuge outside the big cities. Demand for large commercial farms, however, should weaken as the year progresses.

44. The swing back toward rent control will act as a further damper on new building. There is no incentive to build homes for rental income.

45. Tighter credit controls will make it more difficult to purchase older residential properties, and the prices for these should weaken.

46. As building volume slackens in 1951, the quality of available materials and workmanship should improve. This will help those who have saved their month and can pay for at least half the cost of a new home.

Defense Orders And Politics

47. Those who can do so should attempt to get defense orders as a means of holding up production volumes and reducing overhead. Not too much profit from such war business should be expected, however, as these contracts will be subject to tightfisted renegotiations.

48. The political outlook for 1951 will be completely dominated by jockeying for position in the Presidential race for 1952. Most of Congress' time will be spend on international problems; but either war or peace could come early in 1951, which could make many of the above forecasts useless.

49. In domestic matters, despite recent election changes in party alignment, Congress will still be dominated by a conservative coalition of Northern Republicans and "unregenerated" Southern Democrats. When the heat is on in a tough fight, the North-South coalition will still be able to curb onslaughts by New Dealers.

50. We are gradually headed for a one-party system and finally a dictatorship. The Republicans will sometimes win with the slogan "Had Enough?"; but their reign will be short-lived. Too many persons are following the pernicious doctrine of asking for higher wages and shorter hours, speculating in stocks and goods, growing rich on paper, voting Democratic for selfish reasons and letting the country go to the dogs, war or no war!

Bradley Defeats St. Louis Five In Sugar Bowl Final

N. C. State, Oklahoma Aggies Win Tourneys

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (AP)—Two Missouri Valley unbeatens—Bradley and Oklahoma A&M—today were set to move up the basketball ladder following the unexpected fall of Kentucky.

Bradley, ranked second behind Kentucky in last week's Associated Press poll, captured the coveted Sugar Bowl title Saturday night in New Orleans by nipping St. Louis, 64-59.

Oklahoma A&M, rated No. 3, wrapped up the all-college tourney at Oklahoma City Friday with a 54-41 victory over Arkansas.

Kentucky, which had won six straight, fell before an inspired St. Louis team in the semi-finals of the Sugar classic Friday evening, 43-42. The Wildcats, however, rebounded Saturday to whip Syracuse, 69-59, and take third-place honors.

Three Win 12 Straight

So, with West Virginia, Michigan State and Siena losing Saturday, the thinning list of major or near-major unbeaten teams dwindled to 17. Oklahoma A&M, Bradley and Wyoming top this select group, each having won 12 straight games.

Two other unbeatens — Murray State of Kentucky (10-0) and Evansville (9-0)—will tangle Wednesday in an Ohio Valley Conference tilt. Hence, the list will diminish even further.

North Carolina State, Kansas State and Wyoming also added tournament conquests to their list of victories.

NC State (10-1), outlasted a surprising Colgate quintet, 85-76, to retain its Dixie classic title. Kansas State (9-2) became the first team to win two Big Seven tourneys by tripping Minnesota 70-62. And Wyoming defeated Utah, 55-42, to take the Skyline Conference Tourney.

West Virginia Halted

Arizona (8-1) dealt West Virginia its first setback in seven starts, edging the Mountaineers, 68-67, at Morgantown, W. Va. A desperation shot by Jack Howell in the final 20 seconds was ruled good because of interference by Joe Ryan, who touched the ball as it entered the basket.

Princeton (6-0) ended Michigan State's four-game run with a 52-46 verdict over the Spartans at East Lansing. Little Lemoyne of New York stopped Siena after nine in a row, 53-47.

Now the unbeaten list includes: (only those with four or more victories)

TWELVE GAMES
Bradley, Oklahoma A. & M. and Wyoming.

Tropical Park Strike Is Off

Purses Are Hiked $40,000 By Track

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 31 (AP) — The Florida Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association today unanimously accepted an offer of a $40,000 increase in purse distribution at Tropical Park race course and called off its proposed strike that would have become effective Tuesday.

The HBPA's 10-man executive committee and Nathan E. Herzfeld, president of Tropical Park, conferred after a two-hour meeting of some 200 members of the association. Herzfeld offered to increase purses $200 a race retroactive to Dec. 23.

He first offered a $28,000 increase, which would have raised purses to a minimum of $2,000 effective Jan. 1 for the last 14 days of the meeting.

The horsemen originally demanded a $300-per race minimum purse increase for all races of less than $5,000. The increase would have amounted to $54,000 with a $2,100 minimum.

Herzfeld told the membership called back after it had adjourned its first meeting, that he wanted to stay in business "a long, long time."

"I was sorry this controversy has come up and in the interest of the horsemen and my track I am willing to take this step in offering an olive branch."

Bucs' Advance Sale Runs Ahead Of 1950

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 31 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club today reported advance sales for 1951 tickets are running ahead of 1950 on the same date.

The National League Bucs finished in last place in 1950 but a club spokesman said the big advance sale showed the fans still are loyal. Ticket sales now total $580,529, compared to $522,961 on the same date last year. A club spokesman predicted sales will approach $700,000 by Jan. 6.

Louis And Beshore To Meet Wednesday

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (AP) — Joe Louis, aiming to show the fans more punching than they saw the last time he fought, meets Freddie Beshore of Harrisburg, Pa., in a ten-rounder in Detroit's Olympia Stadium Wednesday night.

This is the second step on the comeback trail for the old Brown Bomber since he was conquered by champion Ezzard Charles. In his first outing against Argentina's Cecar Brion Nov. 29, the former heavyweight king won but his victory was disappointing.

Colts' Grid Player Is Severely Slashed

BROCKTON, Mass., Dec. 31 (INS)—Donald Colo, 24, ex-Brown football star and now a professional player with the Baltimore Colts, was severely slashed today in a fight with another man outside a Brockton night club.

Colo's nose was nearly cut off and his lips were badly lacerated as his assailant swung a piece of jagged glass. The six foot three inch, 235-pound football player was taken to Goddard Hospital where doctors strove to save his face from permanent disfigurement.

Later, police arrested Edward J. Robillard, 23, of Brockton, in another local night club and charged him with assault.

"Mum Mum" Passes On Jack George Starring
Ball May Become Exec License Boost Sought

By C. V. BURNS

Final rites were held yesterday at Barton for Mrs. Elizabeth Schramm, 70, widow of Henry Schramm, who died at her home there on Friday.

Mrs. Schramm was the mother of Karl Schramm and the late Harrison "Base" Schramm, who starred on Barton High School's championship soccer and basketball teams a quarter of a century ago.

Mrs. Schramm seldom missed a game in which her boys played and in 1923, 1924 and 1925 when the Braves swept through everything to three state soccer championships she was on hand to witness all of the triumphs.

In recent years Mrs. Schramm conducted a grocery-confectionery business in Barton. She was widely known as "Mum Mum" — a name which appeared on the window of her store.

Mrs. Schramm was an aunt of Ernie Schramm, the ex-Barton High soccer, basketball and baseball star, who now resides in Cumberland.

Smith, who boxed here as an amateur flyweight in 1948 and decisioned "Sonny" Lafferty and knocked out "Socky" Lewis of Pittsburgh, has won 22 consecutive fights since turning pro—16 via the KO route.

Gene is now managed by Irving Cohen, who pilots Rocky Graziano.

Jack George, the sharpshooter who performed for St. John's High School, Washington, in several games here against LaSalle, is now the scoring ace of LaSalle College's (Philadelphia) basketball team.

When LaSalle whipped Idaho the other night, Jack racked up 21 points on seven fielders and 7-14 fouls.

A bill calling for an increase in the cost of the county resident hunting license will be placed before the General Assembly soon to meet in Annapolis.

The present fee of $1.25 has long been in force since the Maryland Game and Fish Department was organized and the cost of labor and material has skyrocketed since then.

Out of the present $1.25 the department itself has only 78 cents for management upkeep after the clerk's fee and the actual cost of the license itself are deducted.

This is less than the actual cost of placing one rabbit or a single quail into the field.

The department will ask for an increase of 50 cents, making the cost of the proposed license $1.75.

RAMS HIT THE ROAD

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (INS) — A happy and prosperous new year to you all. And with that off our chest let's take a look at what the biggest "if" year in sports has to offer.

The "if," of course, depends on Uncle Sam, Joe Stalin and a few other unpredictable quantities.

If there is no total mobilization and if there is no World War III, we may expect to see:

Two more hot pennant races with the Giants, Dodgers and Phils battling it out right down to the wire in the National League and with the Red Sox, Yanks, Tigers and Indians again disputing ownership of the American League flag.

Draft or no draft, we confidently predict that Ewell Blackwell of the Reds will be the pitcher of the year. The long string bean has fully recovered from the loss of a kidney and the hitters will welcome him about the same way they would a bad case of the mumps.

We also feel confident that the Cardinals' Stan Musial will lead the parade of hitters in the National and that Ted Williams, with elbow mended, will take charge in the American.

Racing is due for a tremendous year and at this early date we are climbing right out on a long limb to predict that Battlefield will win the triple crown—Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont. (Bill Corum, please note, and save yourself some dough.)

Early in the year Toronto's Maple Leafs will win the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world's best in hockey. Hockey, like other sports, has been playing boys instead of men, but even so these boys are tops.

About the same time Kentucky should prove it is the best that college basketball has to offer.

Australia will continue to hold the Davis cup. Our boys, providing no wide-spread war intervenes, will go down yonder to get knocked off in the finals.

Some of our older tennis stars—we are treading on dangerous ground mentioning age in this connection—will decide to put their short skirts in hock for duration, thus giving some of the younger element a chance to show their stuff to better advantage.

Sam Snead will continue to be top hand in the professional golfing ranks. And Frank Stranahan, the simon pure strong boy, who plays more golf than any pro, will take charge of the amateurs.

The fight racket promises to be more putrid than ever and that's really saying something.

Ray Robinson will win the middleweight title provided Jake LaMotta doesn't think up another excuse for not meeting him. Ezzard Charles will continue to rule the heavyweights and should fate and the International Boxing Club decree, will belt Joe Louis out if Charles gets another crack at him.

Willie Pep and Sandy Saddler again will battle for the featherweight crown and we don't know yet whose turn it is to win. We are inclined to think Willie may grab another big pay day and hang up the gloves.

But remember, we said this will be strictly an if year.

11 Football Contests Today Expected To Attract 450,000

100,000 To Witness Bears And Michigan In Rose Bowl Battle

Some 450,000 people are slated to pay around $2,000,000 to witness this star-spangled encore in the form of 11 bowl games stretching from California to Florida.

Millions of others will hear the details from the comforts of their living rooms through radio broadcasts. There will be no network telecasts.

In California, scene of the Rose Bowl, it will be fair with temperatures in the 60's. Even higher temperatures are forecast for the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans and the Orange Bowl in Miami. Dallas' Cotton Bowl can expect cold and cloudy.

These are the four bowls matching top-ranking elevens. The Rose, Sugar and Cotton combatants are all paid up members of football's "First Ten." The Orange bowl at Miami matches the tenth team, Clemson, against No. 15, Miami (Fla.).

Sooners Are Favored

The recognized national champion, Oklahoma, is playing its third straight engagement at New Orleans, a 6½ point favorite over once-beaten but quick-hitting Kentucky, seventh nationally.

The Cotton Bowl at Dallas boasts two of the highest standing powers in Texas, No. 3, beaten only by Oklahoma, and Tennessee, No. 4, upset early in the campaign by Mississippi state. The Texans, who will outweigh the Vols by nearly 20 pounds, are seven-point favorites.

The tradition-loaded Rose Bowl at Pasadena sends California's unbeaten but once tied Golden Bears against Michigan's Big Ten champions. The Bears, fifth ranked, are favored by three points over a ninth-placed Wolverine team that lost three games and tied one.

Should California prevail, it would mark the Pacific Coast's first triumph in the five-year series with the Big Ten. The Coast dropped the first four meetings.

100,000 To Attend

The largest crowd, 100,000, is expected to attend the Pasadena game where the big question seems to be whether the rugged Bears can halt Michigan's Chuck Ortmann, one of the most gifted backs of the year.

The veteran California Coach, Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf, is counting on doing just that and then beating the Wolverines' ears back with such racehorse operatives as Jim Monachino, Pete Schabarum and Johnny Olszewski.

Despite some close calls, the Sooners came through a nine-game schedule without mishap and appeared to be growing stronger at the season's end. Fullback Leon Heath is the big gun in the Oklahoma arsenal.

Kentucky, which swept through 10 games before losing to Tennessee, hopes to crack the Sooners' success streak through the passing of Babe Parilli, who threw 23 touchdown passes during the season, and Bill Leskovar, a fullback who averaged six yards a whack.

Clemson Is Choice

At Miami, Clemson rules a thin one-point favorite over the home-town heroes from the University of Miami. Each team played nine games, won eight and tied one.

Culmone Equals Miller's Mark

Closes Out Year With 388 Winners

HAVANA, Dec. 31 (AP)—Joe Culmone today equalled but failed to break the all-time jockey record of riding 388 winners in a season, set by Walter Miller in 1906. Culmone had three winners on Oriental Park's eight-race card.

Culmone, who began the day in a tie with Willie Shoemaker for the 1950 riding title at 385 victories each, won the second race on Misle and got credit for another triumph when his mount in the fourth race, Airsis, figured in a dead heat for first with Chestwick.

The 19-year-old Sicilian then clicked for the third time on Shurleys Pride in the fifth contest.

Willie Shoemaker, riding at Agua Caliente, Mexico, today was just one away from the Culmone-Miller record after victories in two of the first three races. He failed in the next three, however, but had five more races to go.

Wards Have Boy

LANDOVER, Md., Dec. 31 (AP) — Bob Ward, Maryland's All-America guard, is a proud papa. His wife, the former Mary Ellen Zalezak of Union, N. J., gave birth to a seven-pound 11-ounce boy last Friday.

Ward, from Elizabeth, N. J., is the first Maryland player ever to be chosen on the All-America squad.

TEN TIGHT ONES

NEW YORK—(AP)—The American League had ten 1-0 games during the 1950 season and Vic Raschi, ace of the world champion Yankee staff, pitched two of them.

He blanked the St. Louis Browns with three hits and pitched a three-hitter against the Indians.

Randy Gumpert of the White Sox figured in three 1-0 games. He beat Hank Wyse and the Athletics 1-0 on four hits and lost 1-0 duels to Sam Zoldak of the Indians and Hal Newhouser of the Tigers.

West Virginia Cage Team Is Built Around Workman

By CHARLES R. LEWIS
AP Newsfeatures

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. —Coach Robert N. (Red) Brown is systematically putting together a West Virginia basketball machine which well might shoot the Mountaineers back into national prominence.

His first objective is a serious bid for the Southern Conference title in West Virginia's first campaign within the loop. The Mountaineers play 12 league games.

The 43-year-old Brown, whose Davis and Elkins teams won 70 of 91 tussles in the past three years, is minus three lettermen from last season's mediocre West Virginia squad which won 13 and lost 11.

But seven lettermen, including two seniors and five juniors, are back. Five sophomores are contending for starting jobs, and Godfrey Wright, a 6-3 transfer, is another bright prospect.

West Virginia's quintet naturally is built around junior Mark Workman, who — at six feet, nine inches — is expected to become an all-time-Mountaineer great. Workman recently scored 44 points against George Washington and averaged 28.8 points in the first six games.

Despite a late start, Workman led WVU last season with 271 points in 24 games. He drew rave notices the past summer with his play in New York state's Catskill resort league.

Four other juniors on the team are 6-5 Jim Coalter, Harry (Moo) Moore, 6-2, Jack Shockey, 6-1, and Dave Steindler, 5-11.

The West Virginia post, left vacant by the death of Lee Patton as a result of an automobile accident last winter, is not entirely strange to Brown. He was an assistant to Patton in 1947, when West Virginia posted a 19-3 mark.

Brown's D. and E. five of last season rolled up a 29-5 record, won both regular-season and tournament crowns in the 14-school West Virginia conference, and was a quarterfinalist in NAIB tournament at Kansas City.

Now he hopes to lead West Virginia back to the National Invitation competition which the Mountaineers won in 1942 in Madison Square Garden.

COACHED BY THE LAW

DENVER — (AP) — Mullen school, winner of the Denver Parochial League 1950 grid title, was coached by a city detective, Dick Brown, who played only sandlot football.

Brown coached the team while off duty. He had 13 assistants—fellow officers who would fill in at practice sessions when Brown was busy maintaining law and order.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

Today, in honor of the Rose Bowl game between California and Michigan, I am reviving an old custom of mine. For 11 years, before World War II, I made up my selection of movie players worthy of being on a mythical "All American" acting team.

This year I'm changing it slightly to my "Oscar Team"—or those actors who, in my opinion, will be in the game when Academy Award time rolls around. Here goes:

And for mascot—Who else but "Francis," the talking mule?

That's all, unless we mention such cheer leaders as Bob Hope, Red Skelton and Jack Benny.

Chit-chat: Gary Cooper is still in Palm Beach with Rocky and little Maria. Rocky and Maria went there from New York, and Gary joined them, going directly from Hollywood to the fashionable Florida resort.

Gary is playing tennis like mad and since Rocky is a very good player they have spent much of their time on the tennis court. I, personally, think everything is okay now, and that they will iron out their differences.

"Of course we have arguments now and then," she told me, "like all married people. But I have been married three years and I have no intention of separating from him, nor he from me.

"I go back to the studio next Wednesday for retakes on 'Mr. Imperium.' You know toward the last of the picture I wasn't very well and we want to have it just right. Then Bob and I are going up in the snow country."

Lana says she's getting a little fed up with rumors about her marriage which are not true.

Lloyd Bacon has made Margaret Truman a fabulous offer to star in a movie for him, but Margaret has rejected this as she has all other movie offers.

Gig Young and Sophie Rosenstein pulled a last minute switch in plans and are going to be married tomorrow, New Year's. Gig's wedding present to his bride is a diamond and ruby pin to match her engagement ring.

From Paris comes word that Munitions King Fritz Mandl is giving Princess Ghika a beeg rush. He is Hedy Lamarr's ex-husband, and Ghika is Errol Flynn's ex-fiancee.

Jesse Lasky's daughter, Betty Biblac, and Singer Bob Savage a Tallyho twosome. She has separated from her husband.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A Virginia newspaper published a brand new gripe from an indignant reader recently. A Mr. J. W. Wiseman, local tailoring expert, wrote, "Please stop printing maps showing the Korean war lines of battle super-imposed over this and nearby states for comparison. My best presser left without notice for three days to get his two sisters away from their home in Enfield, North Carolina, since the map showed the Communists were only a few miles away."

An interesting town to fly over is Palestine, Texas, whose citizens do not encourage witticisms about its name. "Get a load of this," said the pilot of one passenger plane, as he picked up his earphone. "Ahoy, Palestine," he bellowed cheerfully. "How's the Ay-rab situation down there?" The reply wafted aloft from the gent in the Palestine control tower was a unique and explicit bit of Texan eloquence which I will not attempt to quote here.

Piedmont Wedding Is Announced

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Announcement has been made of the wedding December 9 of Miss Kathryn Rebekah Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson, Sr., East Hampshire Street, Piedmont, and Galen D. Ludwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. North Ludwick, Burlington, W. Va.

The double ring ceremony by candlelight was performed by Rev. O. C. Mitchell at Trinity Methodist Church here. The church was decorated with white pom-pons, assorted gladiollius and pine.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. William Thompson, Piedmont, played various selections of nuptial music. Mrs. Frank Poland, Piedmont, sang, "Through the Years." During the ceremony as the bridal couple knelt in prayer she sang, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of balenciaga nylon lace over slipper satin. Her shoulder veil of matching net was held by a small Juliet cap fashioned from the lace of the gown. Short mitts of lace and satin slippers completed her costume. She carried a nose-gay of petal pink carnations with orchid center, tied with pink satin.

Robert Ludwick, son of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Howard Ludwick, Burlington, W. Va., was his brother's best man. Oscar W. Johnson, J., Keyser, W. Va. and Roy Ludwick, Burlington, W. Va., were ushers.

Mrs. Johnson, mother of the bride, wore black and a corsage of purple-lavender pom-pons. Mrs. Ludwick mother of the bridegroom was attired in black with a corsage of purple-lavender pom-pons.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's brother, Oscar W. Johnson, Jr., Keyser. Among those attending the ceremony from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Ludwick, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wentz, New Creek, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Ludwick, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ludwick, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ludwick, Keyser; Mr. and Mrs. A.S.A. SWANTON — William L. Otto, RFD 1, Swanton, has announced the marriage of his daughter, Elsie Elizabeth, to Raymond Aronholt, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Aronholt, Sr., Gormania, W. Va.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. James E. Cox, Cumberland. Mrs. Aronholt attended Oakland High School. Her husband is an alumnus of Bayard High School and is employed as a trackman in Elkins, W. Va. They will reside in Gormania.

Piedmont Pastor Opens Evangelical Campaign

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — Edwyn Rupert, pastor of the Piedmont Pentecostal Holiness Church, who was given a leave of absence for four months, has opened an evangelical campaign starting at Sharon, Pa.

Mrs. Rupert and family are with him as he will conduct meetings in various cities. Rev. Miss Katherine Harvey, of Luke, is the pastor of the church in Rev. Rupert's absence.

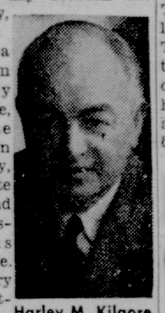
By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Sen. Harley W. Kilgore, West Virginia Democrat, made a historic find the other day between the pages of a musty, old book.



Harley M. Kilgore

He discovered a letter written in longhand by James Blaine, GOP candidate for President in 1884, to John Hay, Lincoln's private secretary and later Teddy Roosevelt's famous Secretary of State.

Lost to history until now, the letter had been tucked in an old volume of Blaine's "Twenty Years of Congress," and had gone unnoticed until the volume fell into Kilgore's hands. The West Virginia senator purchased the book from an old collection after scouring Washington for a copy.

Dated March 13, 1886, Blaine's note to Hay is published here for the first time:

"My Dear Colonel Hay: You and I have let each other alone for the last year and a half to such a scandalous extent that I am not even advised of your whereabouts. Wishing to send you my two volumes of 'Twenty Years Of Congress,' I could no nothing else than forward them according to the letter of the law (in such cases made and provided) to 'your first and usual place of abode.' They were accordingly sent to Cleveland.

"I have since learned that you are in your new house—Commorant of Washington.

"I hope the package may reach you safely. You may probably find something between the covers that may interest you—by recalling the past if not communicating the new.

"Pray write me a line about yourself and Mrs. Hay and the children. I have not of late had my share of your wisdom and your wit. Faithfully Your Friend, James G. Blaine."

Note—Blaine lost the presidency to Grover Cleveland in 1884. Previously he represented Maine in Congress and also served as James A. Garfield's Secretary of State. Later, from 1889 to 1892, Blaine served as Benjamin Harrison's Secretary of State. Hay started his career as Lincoln's private secretary, but went down in history as America's "Great Secretary of State" under William McKinley and Teddy Roosevelt.

Keyser Rotary Hears Discussion About Mexico

Judge Medina's Kin Speaks To Club Men

KEYSER, W. Va. — Alfredo Medina, Jr., whose father is known internationally as a famous engineer and more famous as the creator of a fortune out of Mexican land that none other could develop, was a guest speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Keyser Rotary Club.

Young Medina, a student at George Washington University, Washington, and an attache of the Mexican Embassy in Washington, is a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wildemann, State Street, for the holidays.

The Rotary speaker, talked to the local group on the social, economic, political and religious life of Mexico. He is a nephew of Judge Harold Medina, federal jurist who conducted the trial of 11 Communist leaders in New York, several months ago, and won fame through his masterful handling of the cases.

His father, an engineering graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., set out about 15 years ago to tame the jungles of Yucatan. Although considered wealthy when he entered the jungle, he came out broke. Eventually, however, he interested some bankers at Merida in an idea that would provide plenty of fine lumber, among which was much mahogany. The bankers doubted that he could make good but gave him a chance by granting the privilege of working the Yucatan forests and swamps on a royalty basis.

In two years Medina, the engineer, paid his royalty payments and in four years purchased the concession for a million pesos. Today the land is a prosperous business enterprise, the swamps cleared and people living there in happy homes, and business, which has become an international enterprise, is florishing.

This is latest of five cases filed as a result of the fatal accident that cost the life of Thomas E. Daskel and the injury to three members of his family. One case was tried in the November term of court, when Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Daskel Heinisch, a daughter of the deceased man, who asked for $15,000 damages, won a jury verdict for $5,000.

The other cases filed for the November term, included one by Mrs. Thomas Daskal for $10,000; another by James Daskal, a nephew, for $15,000, and one by Genevieve Ann Daskal, a daughter for $2,900.

The new action filed by Mrs. Ruby L. Daskal is for alleged loss to the estate of the automobile, which was completely demolished in the collision with the Schriver Company truck driven by August F. Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Walt Disney Takes The Plunge

WALT Disney's hour-long Christmas production, "One Hour in Wonderland," the premiere showing of Disney's celebrated characters on television, must have struck despair into the hearts of most the people who earn a living in the medium. There is nothing in television even remotely comparable to Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Dopey, Goofy, Pluto and the rest of them. And there isnt likely to be, ever.

John Crosby

After all, "Snow White" took a couple of years to produce. The enchanting "Happy Song" sequence, just a few minutes long, which was shown on Christmas Day, probably was on the drawingboards longer than the elapsed time taken to stage half a dozen Milton Berle shows. If you'll cast your mind back to that wonderful film, all the dwarfs in this little song had a bit of song, a bit of patter—each hit, delicate, absurd and somehow touching. From the opening note to the finish, when Sneezy blew Dopey into the rafters, this little sequence had the polish and finish of the craftsman who is also very much an artist.

* * *

Disney is an artist with one eye on the ledger. He once told me that "Snow White" was his own favorite of all his pictures. When I asked why, he remarked simply: "Because it made the most money." This isn't entirely avarice. Disney wants as many people as possible to see his work and that is why he went on television in the first place. "This is not the beginning of a regular television series for me," he said, "but rather an experimental effort to reach millions of people who might otherwise never see our motion pictures. I've always felt a keen dissatisfaction over the fact that out of 150,000,000 people in America, only about 20,000,000 ever see the greatest of our films."

Right there, there lies a ray of hope. Television, the greatest of communication mediums, not only can (and frequently does) distribute the finest things to millions of people who should, but haven't, been exposed to them before, but it will also eventually attract the Disney's for no other reason than that it has an audience. "It isn't the money that attracts people to Hollywood," George Jean Nathan once said. "It's the publicity." For publicity, read audience.

* * *

"One Hour In Wonderland" revolves around a children's party given by Disney, who, incidentally, has great charm, and attended by Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd (chaperoned as usual by Mr. Bergen), the Disney children, Bobby Driscoll who starred in Disney's "Treasure Island," and Kathryn Beaumont, a pretty young English girl who is the voice of Alice in Disney's forthcoming "Alice in Wonderland." On the wall was a magic mirror in which resided a genii who summoned up the Disney films. He did well by us, this genii.

Besides the fragment of "Snow White," he produced two Disney shorts "Bone Trouble" and "Clock Cleaners." Both are pretty wonderful and both are excellent examples of Disney's habit of borrowing and perfecting the classis comic formulas. "Bone Trouble," starring Pluto, is little more than the chase which ended most Mack Sennett comedies and still ends a lot of movies, including such good ones as "The Third Man." "Clock Cleaners," which contains Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, and Goofy, has a liberal portion of Harold Lloyd's old habit of falling off buildings, a device which Disney and staff have extended, elaborated and—as I said earlier—finished. (Nothing is ever quite finished in television.) There were also scenes from two long Disney pictures, one of Uncle Remus's stories about Br'er Rabbit from "Song of the South" and an immensely appealing story it was, and the tea party from "Alice in Wonderland" with Ed Wynn's voice as that of the Mad Hatter and Jerry Colonna's as the March Hare. The last scene was a little disappointing, but only, I should say, because you expect so much from Disney.

The kiddies and the adult's, too, could hardly ask for more of a Christmas afternoon. Mr. Disney captured 9 per cent of the available television audience which must comprise a good many of those 150,000,000 people he was complaining about earlier and he got in a nice plug for his upcoming movie. I hope he decides to do it again. And the Coca Cola company, too, deserves a little kiss on the cheek, not only because it picked up the check (a big one) but also for the restraint and excellent taste of its brief commercials.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

THE PASSING SHOW . . .

A Miami man named Cyrus French Wicker has suggested to the Miami Herald, and to this writer, a new type of cordon sanitaire which might bear further study.

He would have the Air Force drop a long strip of A-bombs across the mountainous, unpopulated waistline of Korea, and thus create an eerie "buffer state" through which no Chinese Red replacements could move, unless they chose to die the frightening death of exposure to radiation.

P.S.—Interesting idea. An A-bomb that fell all the way to the ground (all those which have been used to date, by the U.S. at least, have been detonated at heights ranging from 100 feet to about 1,500 feet) might contaminate the earth for a long time. Perhaps even a hundred years, but no one really knows. However, the cost of drawing such a line as Mr. Wicker suggests would be astronomical.

• — • — •

A widowed Brooklyn mother of a boy who was badly wounded in Korea, and then was sent back to the front after being patched up, writes me bitterly about the Hollywood edict prohibiting its stars from going there to entertain troops. She says that as a result she has stopped attending movies.

She wishes that the avalanche of drunken drivers who afflicted the Los Angeles area during the Christmas holidays had been sentenced to service in Korea, "where they might have brought glory to Hollywood instead of disgrace."

She also would like to know what kind of consciences our congressmen possess that enable them to race home for a leisurely holiday at a time when American troops were undergoing the worst rout in the country's military history.

P.S.—A very hard letter to answer.

• — • — •

Of all the Christmas cards the writer received, the one that was done in the best taste—it incorporated Longfellow's immortal "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day," etc.—came from Frank Costello.

• — • — •

General Motors announces that it is custom-building a two-seater sports car with a 300 horsepower motor. It has a couple of high tail-fins, new-type brakes, air-scoops like a jet fighter (it is named, appropriately, Le Sabre) and burns not only high test gasoline but also methyl alcohol. In the event of a flat the driver can jack up the car without leaving his seat.

The seats are electrically heated for winter driving. Special metals developed in recent years are used in the chassis and body.

To stop the playboy set from rushing immediately to Detroit, G. M. announces that the car won't be for sale, probably. One would cost perhaps $100,000 maybe a lot more. It will be a mobile laboratory to test on the road what has heretofore been confined t the drawing boards.

The company put out a similar super job in 1938, and from it came such standard present day equipment as electrically controlled convertible tops and door windows, curved glass door windows, push-button door latches, a low front grille, fender extensions over the doors—and that last word in ingenuity, tail lamps recessed in rear fenders.

One can easily imagine, therefore, the jalopy of 12 years hence—and picture Joe Blow and his family, out for a Sunday spin to Jones beaches at 210 M.P.H.

Better not give up your bomb shelters after this next war.

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

SHOW ONE AT THE START

POSSESSION of two biddable suits in a biddable hand is a real asset if you use it aright. In case the hand is strong enough for an opening bid, you will nearly always profit from calling one of the suits instead of No Trumps. And, if the opponents have opened, there is usually just one sound action to take over the several optional moves available. That is to bid one of those suits, ordinarily the one which will make it most convenient for you to show the other later on, thereby giving your partner an option.

	♠ 5 2 ♥ 9 8 4 ♦ K 10 9 6 5 ♣ J 10 8
♠ Q 8 6 ♥ J 7 5 3 ♦ 8 ♣ 9 7 6 3 2	N W E S	♠ 7 4 ♥ K Q 10 6 ♦ A Q J 4 2 ♣ K Q
	♠ A K J 10 9 3 ♥ A 2 ♦ 7 3 ♣ A 5 4

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	?

East had a chance to choose among four different options on his first turn. They were to pass and await developments, to double for a takeout, to bid 2-Diamonds or to bid 2-Hearts. Each of those courses was taken in a big social duplicate, and in general the outcome of the entire hand depended on what East did.

Where East passed, South bid 2-Spades, which in some cases was passed all around and South made the 2-Spades. In other cases, an East who had passed the first time did not like to see South get it at 2-Spades, so bid 3-Diamonds, which was soundly beaten, sometimes doubled and sometimes not.

A double for a takeout by East brought the same ensuing developments as the pass, a bad result for East-West at all tables.

Where East bid 2-Diamonds over the 1-No Trump, South bid 2-Spades and it was passed around to East, who then either passed or else bid 3-Diamonds and took a licking. East had shown his diamonds on the first round, but didn't dare try 3-Hearts on the next, which might force his partner to 4-Diamonds in case he preferred that suit.

Only those Easts who bid 2-Hearts on their first turns made out well. When South's 2-Spades reached them, these Easts were able to bid 3-Diamonds, thereby completing their two-suit story. West of course shifted to 3-Hearts, which was down only one in some cases, and over which South bid 3-Spades to be set in other cases.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A Q 2 ♥ A K Q J ♦ Q J 10 9 8 7 ♣ None
♠ K J 10 9 8 7 ♥ 5 4 3 2 ♦ None ♣ K Q J	N W E S	♠ 6 5 4 3 ♥ None ♦ 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ 5 4 3 2
	♠ None ♥ 10 9 8 7 6 ♦ A K ♣ A 10 9 8 7 6

How would you play for 7-Hearts on this trick deal if West leads the club K?

HANDS BECOME FAMOUS

CERTAIN bridge hands acquire fame, just as individuals do. They are so interesting that they are passed along from one player to another, not only in the vicinity of the place where they were first seen or constructed, but all over the world. In most cases they are known by the name of some person who introduced or promoted them. In others there is no clear-cut identification except the features of play involved. One of these is the deal in which the contract depends on a trump-shortening play that makes possible the unblocking of a side suit.

	♠ A Q 2 ♥ A K Q J ♦ Q J 10 9 8 7 ♣ None
♠ K J 10 9 8 7 ♥ 5 4 3 2 ♦ None ♣ K Q J	N W E S	♠ 6 5 4 3 ♥ None ♦ 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ 5 4 3 2
	♠ None ♥ 10 9 8 7 6 ♦ A K ♣ A 10 9 8 7 6

This hand was written-up first by your correspondent more than twenty years ago. No claim to originality was put forth. It was being studied by several bridge fans when first spotted. How old it is, and who constructed it is not known. It may possibly date from the days of Whist, decades before there was any form of bridge. Through the years, it has been referred to probably all bridge writers of standing, who know it well, and every decade or so it is incumbent on us to explain it.

The latest request comes from Mrs. Eugene Simpson, of Boylston, Guysboro county, Nova Scotia, a reader of the Halifax Chronicle-Herald, one of the 400-some-odd papers receiving these despatches.

South is in a contract of 7-Hearts, against which the club K is led, and she wonders if he can make it. He can.

Noting that the diamond tops in the South hand block that suit in dummy, he must plan to discard them. One can be put on the spade A. The other can be disposed of through first shortening South's trumps by ruffing spades twice, then using the fourth trump in dummy to discard the blocker.

Here's the order of tricks: Club A wins, discarding a diamond from dummy; then heart 6 to A, spade A to discard diamond A, spade 2 ruffed by heart 7, heart 8 to K, spade Q ruffed by heart 9, heart 10 to Q, heart J for discard of diamond K and wind up running the diamond Q, J, 10, 9 and 8.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

E U P H R B B P U K E U U B Q U A A N E X B P C H A C W U - K B M X R U I M A I L H A — W H F M K.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: A LITTLE REBELLION NOW AND THEN IS A GOOD THING—JEFFERSON.

County Board May Discontinue Surplus Foods

Only Eggs And Milk Now Being Allocated

The distribution of surplus foods in Allegany county after next month doesn't seem likely in view of information received by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from R. J. Simpson, of the State Budget and Procurement Department.

Simpson said that the federal government is not allocating butter or cheese any more and that only limited supplies of dried eggs and dried milk are available.

There is about enough butter and dried eggs on hand for allotments to about 2,500 persons while the cheese supply will take care of 6,000 persons, according to J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the Allegany County Roads Department, who has charge of the distribution for the county board.

Commissioners William H. Lemmert, James Holmes and James Orr are in agreement that if no butter or cheese can be obtained for February and/or the succeeding months there doesn't seem much use in having distributions.

Dates and places where the surplus foods will be distributed next month will be announced by the board later.

The deadline for persons seeking to be certified for the distribution in January is next Thursday. Only needy or unemployed are eligible and they should contact the Welfare Board, Red Cross Chapter or other agency in their community which is handling the certification.

The surplus food program was started here through the efforts of the Steering Committee for Economic Development, with the distribution of surplus potatoes. The other items were added later. Last month the County Commissioners assumed charge of the entire program.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Can you really "make a fresh start"?

Answer: No. The "1951" on the calendar does not make you a different person from what you were yesterday, or alter the fact that you will be the same person tomorrow. Nor does the New Year wipe out the fact that it was you who last year did the things you now wish you had not done. If you want to build a future better than the past—and you can do it!—the materials you will have to work with are the same as ever. But you can find wiser, more effective ways to use them. And if you do, you will have a Happy New Year.

Will loving a person make you dream about him?

Answer: Not in itself. No matter how dearly you love someone from whom you are separated, the song-writers are mistaken in assuming that you can console yourself by being "with him in your dreams." You'll dream of a loved one only if he symbolizes for you some unconscious inner conflict such as your yearning for someone or something that you feel you "have no right to." Only the surface material of dreams comes from current experiences or emotions—basically, they are ways of gratifying secret wishes.

Do the stars really "twinkle"?

Answer: No, their light is constant and invariable. But the long-accepted theory that atmospheric changes are what make them scintillate has been challenged by two British ophthaimologists, Drs. Hartridge and Weale. They say their experiments have shown that when we watch a light of medium brightness, unless we are concentrating on some detailed pattern, our eyes do not remain stationary, so that the image of the light falls now on one part of the retina and now on another. This causes "apparent fluctuation in both brightness and color."

Does travel "broaden the mind"?

Answer: That depends on two things: the extent to which your mind is "open," and whether you travel of your own choice or because you have to. If you're willing to admit that your ideas and ways of doing things are not the only "right" ones, visiting foreign countries may be a liberal education, but if the very word "foreign" means inferior or barbarous to you, you might as well stay at home. And of course, if you are torn away from home against your will, you'll tend to see only the worst side of the country you are sent to.

Is psychotherapy a science?

Answer: Not yet, anyhow, writes Dr. I. Atkin in the American Journal of Psychotherapy. While based upon scientific research, the practice of helping people overcome emotional disturbances through an exclusive mental approach (i.e., by listening and talking to them) is still an art in which no system of fixed rules can be consistently followed, and in which the therapist's personality is as important as his training. It is this "intangible quality" that makes psychotherapy hard for "pure scientists" to accept.

Can high-pitched sounds harm your ears?

Answer: Apparently not, say a group of ear specialists in the Annals of Otology, St. Louis. The idea that sounds too high-pitched to be heard—for instance, those of the inaudible whistle sometimes used for calling dogs, whose ears are more acute than those of humans—may be dangerous to human hearing seems unfounded. As long as supersonic vibrations are airborne, with no physical contact, they have no specific effect on the sense-organs or the nervous system. It is sounds that are too loud, whatever their pitch, that do damage.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 31 (AP) — The badly mauled body of a woman found sprawled in a small Baltimore backyard was identified last night as Ella Jackson, 39, Baltimore.

Winter's Record Begins Parallel Of Flood Years

Snowfall In December Totaled Nearly Foot

The stage is being set for high water and possibly floods in the area, so far as weather records show, according to Robert R. Golden, superintendent of Constitution Park and official local weather observer.

There is enough snow in the mountains of the area now, to cause serious trouble, if there should be a warm rain or sudden thaw over the water shed, Golden observed.

During December, just ended, there was a total of 10.7 inches of snowfall recorded here, with a melted precipitation of 2.29 inches. Snowfall in the area, especially the mountainous sections was much greater.

In December 1923, there was no snow but there was 3.53 inches of precipitation recorded. This was the December preceding the heavy snows of January, February and March, just before the 1924 flood.

For December 1935, preceding the 1936 deluge here, snowfall was 10.8 inches and precipitation was 2.20 inches. Almost identical with the December record.

However, cold weather, Golden comments, retards the melting of the snow. Warm days and cold nights also gives the melted snow a chance to run off gradually, so there is no real flood danger unless the snows continue heavily through the winter, or there is a sudden thaw with the grounds carrying two and three feet of snow over the water shed.

	Snowfall	Precipi.
December, 1935	10.8 in.	2.20 in.
January, 1936	16.7 in.	4.14 in.
February, 1936	8.0 in.	3.34 in.
March, 1936	3.7 in.	5.42 in.
December, 1923	none	3.53 in.
January, 1924	8.0 in.	4.14 in.
February, 1924	20.5 in.	2.69 in.
March, 1924	20.0 in.	5.18 in.

November Auto Accidents Kill Three In County

Allegany County had three fatal accidents in which three persons were killed during the month of November a report from Maryland State Police Traffic Collision Statistical Bureau shows.

Altogether state police investigated 10 automobile accidents in November when 12 persons were injured in addition to the fatalities.

Six of the accidents occurred between two or more cars, two with automobiles and fixed objects, one car overturned in the road and one hit a pedestrian. The report shows the pedestrian was killed and fatalities resulted in one of the fixed objects collisions and the overturned automobile in the road.

The police report stated two of the auto collisions happened between cars traveling more than 70 miles per hour, three when the driver of one car failed to keep to the right of the center of the road and the others for miscellaneous reasons.

Property damage resulted from two of the collisions. Forty-eight arrests were made by the state police and 51 warnings given to drivers. Three of the arrests were for excessive speeding and 16 for reckless driving. Thirty-four of the warnings were for light violations, the report read.

The statistics also revealed most of the accidents occurred between the hours of midnight and 1 a.m. and 6 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday proved to be the worst days for traveling as most of the accidents happened on these days. Monday proved to be an excellent day for Allegany County motorists as not a single collision marked the month of November on that day.

Has Anybody Seen Whizzie?

Little Miss Donna Lee Metz, McMullen Highway, near Dawson, has lost her pet and playmate "Whizzie" and the little girl is grief-stricken. "Whizzie" looks like a very intelligent cat, and Donna Lee's father believes he must be penned up somewhere or he would find his way back home.

Three-Year-Old Girl Appeals For Return Of Pet "Whizzie"

Blue Maltese Cat Was Playmate

It isn't a very Happy New Year for little Miss Donna Lee Metz, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold "Horsey" Metz, of near Dawson, because "Whizzie" didn't come home.

"Whizzie" is a two-year-old pet cat at the Metz household, who disappeared Christmas eve. Donna Lee doesn't believe "Whizzie" followed Santa Claus back to the North Pole, because if he had Santa would have sent one of his helpers back with him.

The Metz family lives along the McMullen Highway and "Whizzie" was always very careful of the traffic. It isn't likely that he was run over, but it seems more probable to the family that he may have been picked up and carried away by some passing motorist or others in the vicinity.

The family has advertised the fact that "Whizzie" is missing and a liberal award is offered for his return. He is a blue Maltese-type tom cat, according to Donna Lee, and she is appealing to anyone who might have him to bring him back, or anyone who might know where he is to tell her.

Plane Makes Safe Landing In Local Area

Police Report No One Hurt; Craft OK

State Police said yesterday they had received information from the Civil Aeronautics Administration in Washington that the plane reported missing Saturday night in the Cumberland area had landed safely somewhere west of here.

The LaVale barracks sent Trooper William F. Baker to investigate the report the plane was down west of Frostburg.

CAA authorities relayed the information to the Maryland police here that the AT-6 plane had developed trouble with the hydraulic landing gear and was seeking a spot to set down. The plane landed safely with no injuries to the occupants and no damage to the plane. Police said the definite spot picked for the landing was not reported to them and that the plane had evidently resumed its flight after making necessary repairs.

The craft reportedly was enroute from Detroit, Mich. to Rockville, and had been scheduled to land at the Congressional Airport near there.

Warren Mullenax, local airport manager, heard a radio report from the stricken craft Saturday night while preparing to make a flight from the airport. He said last night "the plane was calling the control tower in Martinsburg, W. Va., and reported trouble with its hydraulic landing gear."

Mullenax related he could get no contact with the plane and that he and several other local pilots made a search of the area at the time but could find no trace of the disabled craft.

Winchell's Message:

America's Final Power Has Never Been Greater Or Honor So Bright

U. S. Secret Weapons Outclass Moscow's

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (INS)—Columnist and Commentator Walter Winchell, in a New Year's Eve message tonight to the American people, said:

"Things look bad for our country, I know. . . Many experts who do not know what they are talking about are now as unreasonably gloomy as they once were absurdly cheerful.

"The truth is that in the secret of the world, our final power was never greater, and our national honor was never brighter. . . The fact is our secret weapons are so powerful—that out of common humanity we will not use them—except in extreme necessity. . .

"This nation can defeat any other nation or combination of nations in the world, if it comes to a matter of survival. We not only can defeat the Communists as a nation—we can obliterate the Russians as a people.

U. S. Could Vaporize Russians

"In our secret arsenals are enough weapons to remove every Russian city of over 100,000 population from the map. . . Within easy striking distance of our foreign bases, we culd vaporize 50 million Russians in one mass bombing. . . We KNOW what the Russians have in secret weapons—but compared to ours they don't amount to a 4th of July fire cracker — against the broadsides of the battleship Missouri.

"That is also true of Korea. . . We could burn out not only the Red Chinese army in Korea tonight, but every blade of grass—and the only reason we don't do it is that we would not think of killing the 29 million Koreans we are going to liberate. . .

No Slaughter Of Children

"We could incinerate the Kremlin faster than we could free Korea. But of the fifty million Russians we could kill at will—twenty-five million would be children. . . And it is not in the tradition of our weapons to attack babies. . . At the same time, our allies have children, too.

"Stalin knows that the very second the artillery of his field armies rolls west on Europe—something is going to roar north from the Mediterranean . . . and the black hole in the earth—which once was Moscow—will be the only evidence left of the blacknes of his crimes."

Jaycee Board Backs Public Parking Plan

Membership Will Consider Resolution

A resolution commanding the action of Mayor Thomas S. Post and City Council in requesting authority from the Maryland Legislature to purchase and operate public off-street parking facilities has been approved by the directors of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce and will be submitted to the group's membership at its dinner meeting at Ali Ghan Country Club at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Jaycee President William Scott IV, has emphasized that this resolution is a matter of much importance to the entire membership and urges a good attendance at Wednesday night's session.

Mayor Post and City Council seek to operate city-owned parking facilities to alleviate the traffic problem in the center of the city.

The traffic committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce has considered this proposal and there has been considerable pro and con discussion on the part of the public.

The resolution, as approved by the Jaycee directors:

"Whereas, the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland have faced up to the need for off-street parking facilities by requesting authority from the Maryland Legislature to purchase and operate their own facilities for the alleviation of the traffic problem in the center of the city;

"And Whereas, support of this legislation in the coming session of the Legislature in Annapolis will be of great benefit to the citizens who must operate their cars in downtown Cumberland;

"Now Therefore, be it resolved that we, as members of the Junior Association of Commerce support this bill and commend the action of the Mayor and City Council."

Arthritis Chapter Drive Continues

Only $300 is lacking in the Allegany Chapter of the Maryland Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation's drive to reach a goal of $1,500 by the New Year.

Mrs. Marion T. Powers, chairman of the foundation's financial plan, announced Saturday that the organization will continue the drive until next Saturday in an effort to reach the mark set.

Mrs. Powers said she realized that the many holiday activities probably have kept subscribers from contributing and felt that the books should not be closed for another week.

The director said donations from $1 up would be accepted and all contributions may be sent to Arthritis, in care of the local Post Office.

One Year Old Today

First Local Baby In 1950 Marks Birthday Today

The event took place last year at 7:23 p.m. in Allegany Hospital and the child weighed five pounds, 10 oz. at birth. Today, she weighs 22½ pounds and stands 27½ inches in height.

Her mother explains that Denise Maire has been a perfectly normal child during the past year, has been in all ways well, and has made the normal accomplishments for a child in its first year. For example, she says "Hi" to strangers; calls her parents "Mommy" and "Daddy" and her 22-month-old brother, she calls "Aull" for Paul.

Local Scout Troops Plan Pageant Here In February

A pareant depicting Scouting will be the feature of the local observance of National Boy Scout Week February 6 to 12, Willis V. Smith, executive of Potomac Council has announced.

Smith explained that each year a Scout circus has been held at the State Armory, but last year the event "outgrew" the building.

He said the 25 troops and Cub packs that gathered to present stunts and demonstrate various phases of scouting last year was too large for the accommodations.

This year, the Boy Scouts and Cubs of Cumberland District will observe the 41st anniversary of Scouting in America with a pageant in 25 scenes to be presented in a theatre.

Each troop or pack will have charge of a scene, which will deal with some phase of Boy Scout training.

A narrator will announce each act which is designed to progressively show the training a Boy Scout receives from the time he is a Cub, through the Scout badges and finally the merit badges.

Scenes will deal with courtesy, obedience, the Flag, camping, first aid, signalling, segregation, and other "musts" of Scouting.

A local theatre or auditorium is being considered as the site of the production being rehearsed by the 25 packs and troops.

Smith said the Scouts and Cubs will be treated to a "fun night" during Scout Week. This will include movies, magic acts and stunts by outside entertainers. At this event the boys will be spectators, and not actors as they will be in the pageant.

Physicians Must Register For Draft On January 15

Doctors, dentists and veterinarians under 50 years of age and not now registered will be required to sign up for the draft sometime next month, according to P. Emmett Fahey, local draft board coordinator.

Fahey estimated that between 40 and 50 men will register in Cumberland's three boards. He said that about 15 are either in service or registered.

Tentative day for registration throughout the country is January 15, but in order for the date to become official, President Truman must issue a proclamation to that effect, Fahey pointed out.

13,000 Doctors Needed

Dr. Richard L. Meiling, director of medical service for the Defense Department, has estimated that about 13,000 doctors will be needed under the present plans to expand the military services to 3,500,000 men.

It was also announced today by Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state Selective Service director, that drafting of 19-year-old Marylanders will have to start in March if present quotas remain unchanged. However, nothing official on this phase of induction has been received by Fahey's office here.

18 to Get Physicals

"By the latter part of January we will probably be inducting 21-year-olds," Stanwood declared. At present, 22-year-olds are being called up to meet the state's draft quota. The present age limits for the draft are 19 through 25.

Colonel Stanwood said that if draft calls continue "about as they have been" Maryland will be able to meet them through April.

Meanwhile, the draft machinery continues to function, with a call for 18 men received today by Local Board 27 for armed forces physicals. The men will leave here January 8 at 5:55 a. m. for Martinsburg, W. Va., where they will be examined.

New Safety Tags For Pedestrians Distributed Here

Lynn Walker Warns Of Weekend Danger

The Western Maryland Safety Council is cooperating with the Maryland State Police in distributing pedestrian safety tags, according to Lynn Walker, president of the council.

These tags are white and can be worn by the pedestrian as a badge when walking on the highway to make it easier for drivers of motor vehicles to see them.

On one side of the card, there are rules for pedestrian safety as follows:

Be alert to protect yourself — don't depend on luck or the operator of the car.

Look both ways before you cross — make sure the way is clear.

Don't walk from behind parked cars.

At night wear or carry something white so that the driver of the car can see you before it is too late.

A thousand tags have been delivered to PTA organizations in the county for distribution to members. This work, Walker said, has been handled by Walter G. Bell, safety chairman of the Allegany County Council of Parent Teacher Associations.

The Cumberland Transit Lines, through their drivers on suburban routes, have also assisted the Safety Council in placing the tags in the hands of those who walk on the highway at night.

Walker said, "We are facing a national emergency that will demand every last ounce of effort we can throw into the balance to assure the survival of our way of life. In spite of the constant reminders of this need to conserve our strength and our assets, we go on a binge and over the Christmas weekend squander 545 lives in traffic."

According to the estimate of the National Safety Council we face the dismal prospect of an additional 330 deaths through the New Year weekend from the same source.

"Impatience, thoughtlessness, or the decision to have just one more drink before I go, is a weak alibi for an automobile accident that may rob our nation of its most precious asset, the life of a free man working to maintain and strengthen freedom," Walker added.

County Farmers Advised To Check Run Off Of Soil

O'Neal Emphasizes Great Loss Of Land

Allegany county farmers were asked yesterday by Albert O'Neal, chairman of the Allegany County Production and Marketing Administration, if rain and fast-melting snow take top soil from their farms.

Chairman O'Neal raised this question to call attention to the tons and tons of top soil which have left Allegany county during 1950, with some of the county's best land going down the Potomac River with every heavy rain.

"Too many farmers unwittingly help prepare their land for these trips to the sea by keeping the top soil pulverized so that it takes very little water to carry it away," O'Neal said. "Many farmers also make it easier for the run-off to take the soil away by running furrows up and down the slope," he added.

The "business side" of the farm is the top side—the layer of top soil in which the roots of growing crops obtain moisture and essential minerals. When it is washed away, it may take years to restore the land to productivity.

To check this soil runoff, O'Neal recommends sodded fields. However, because it is not practical to have all the land in sod, the next best way of checking the soil is to run the furrows on the contours.

One of the big jobs of the agricultural conservation program is to help farmers do the things which will keep their good top soil at home and many of the conservation practices are primarily for this purpose, O'Neal emphasized.

Farmers in Allegany county are improving their soil by using lime and fertilizer provided under the 1950 PMA program. O'Neal reminds all farmers to report their lime and fertilizer usage for 1950 immediately.

Two Vets Who Started Hauling Business After War Have Continued Success

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Mortimer C. Schaidt, Jr. And Karl Bachman Buy Meders Transfer

Two local World War 11 veterans who formed a partnership in 1946 as the first GI's to enter business here following their war-time experiences, have made a marked degree of success and yesterday announced a decided expansion of their enterprise.

Schaidt

Effective today, the Maryland Motor Lines, operated by Mortimer C. Schaidt, Jr., 754 Fayette Street and Karl W. Bachman, 426 North Centre Street, will absorb and operate the Meders Transfer Company, purchased from Edward F. Meders.

When the two young men, who have been lifelong friends, started their motor lines on February 4, 1946, they did so with four pieces of equipment and six employees.

The business which consists of local and long distance hauling with a branch office in Pittsburgh, Pa., and headquarters here, has grown until the two young partners own and operate nine pieces of equipment and employ 12 men.

The Meders outfit consists of 12 pieces of equipment and 17 employes, all being absorbed by Maryland Motor Lines.

Bachman and Schaidt have also constructed a large storage warehouse and garage at 27 Laing Avenue, where the two operations will be consolidated.

Since forming the business here Bachman and Schaidt have concentrated largely on contract hauling between Cumberland and Pittsburgh and other long distance freight movement. The Meders outfit has been hauling local and long distance freight, coal and also engaged in moving household furniture anywhere in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Bachman

The acquisition of this business will now give Maryland Motor Lines freight rights throughout the Tri State Area, including Everett and Bedford, Pa., Petersburg, Romney, and Moorefield in West Virginia, Oakland, Grantsville, Accident and other communities in this section.

Schaidt said last night he plans to continue the management of the long distance business conducted by Maryland Motor Lines, while Bachman will devote his time to the management of the Meders operation.

1951 Predictions

Moderate Weather Forecast For Today

The moderate temperatures yesterday caused the traffic on most of the main arteries in the Tri State area to be heavy, but State Police are expecting an even larger number of cars by late this afternoon.

Unofficial temperatures in downtown Cumberland fluctuated slightly around 30 degrees yesterday. The highest temperature in Constitution Park was 36 degrees and the lowest reported was 28 degrees.

At Thomas, W. Va., where skies were reported cloudy, the temperature was 18 degrees at 7 o'clock last night.

A temperature of 20 degrees was reported from Deal, Pa., were skies were also cloudy.

Woman Hurt In Auto Crash Near Bedford

Pennsylvania State Police reported that a California woman suffered a possible fractured leg in a two-car collision on the turnpike about 40 miles east of Bedford yesterday.

Mrs. Geraldine Jacobs, wife of John Jacobs, 28, Riverside, Calif., driver of one car, was taken to Timmins Hospital in Bedford after the accident, police said.

A car driven by Norman K. Muschany, 25, St. Charles, Mo., reportedly skidded on an icy spot in the highway and crashed against the Jacobs car which was traveling in the opposite direction. The Jacobs vehicle was overturned. Neither driver was injured.

Damages to Muschany's automobile amounted to $150 and $300 to Jacobs' car, police reported.
